THE FACTORIES ACT (XXV OF 1934)

PREFATORY NOTE FACTORY ACTS—Factory Acts are laws enacted for the purpose of regulating the hours of work and the sanitary conditions and preserving the health and morals of the employees, and promoting the education of young persons employed at such labour

THE FOUNDATION OF LAW IN RELATION TO LABOUR—The foundations of law in relation to labour may be summed up in the words protection and improvement. Three reasons may be assigned for the enactment of laws designed to protect and improve the status of wage earners in industry—

(i) the prevalence of self interest as the dominant motive of economic activity which often results in the exploitation of defenceless workers by avaricious employers,

(ii) the complexity of modern industrial organization and operation which makes it practically impossible except under the compulsion of law, for even well meaning and scrupulous employers to safeguard the physical, mental and economic interests of their employees, and

(iii) the necessary relationship that obtains between the protection and improvement of standards of employment, on the one hand and social welfare and progress on the other

THE DEVELOPMENT OF LABOUR LEGISLATION IN ENGLAND—'The legal status of the labouring classes in England as in other European countries during the mediæval period was definitely fixed. The workers found themselves encompassed with legal regulations concerning wages, hours of work, apprenticeship, migration from one locality to another and various other aspects of their working life. Combinations of labourers for the purpose of changing conditions of employment were prohibited. Many of these measures were ineffective because of lax enforcement. The revolutionary changes that were taking place in the eighteenth century made the prevailing system of regulation burdensome to the rising class of capitalist employers as it had been from time to time to the labourers. Free access to the labour market and the abolition of extended periods of apprenticeship were desired because the new machines could be operated by women and children. Inspired by the teachings and writings of Adam Smith concerning freedom of economic activity the manufacturers made successful attacks on statutory limitations. Freedom of action became the shibboleth of the nation and the restrictive laws were repealed.

The abolition of the old restrictions on industry and trade and the consequent free play of economic forces under the sanction of laissez faire philosophy brought new problems and new evils no less serious than the old. Technical improvements and increased production were secured at the expense of the physical and mental well-being of the men, women and children who worked excessive hours under unfavourable conditions.¹ New regulations therefore had to be prescribed by law. Robert Owen and some other employers of labour regarded themselves as the trustees of the interests of those whom they employed in their factories and aided greatly in the movement for reform. Social and moral motives rather than any conception of the economic waste of child labour and other evils led to the demand for protective laws; there was no reference to the facts concerning the relation of hours and conditions to output. The agitation of Robert Peel and Robert Owen resulted in the Health and Morals Act to regulate the labour of bound children in Cotton Factories in 1802. Children who were not napper apprentices were protected by the second of the Factory Acts enacted in 1819. In 1833 all textile mills were brought under regulation. This measure prohibited the employment of children under 9 years of age; children between the ages of 9 and 13 might work only 8 hours a day and young persons between 13 and 18 years of age for only 12 hours with no employment at night. Provisions were made for holidays and a certificate of fitness was demanded. Special factory inspectors were appointed to enforce the Act. The Children's Half Time Act of 1844 provided for the safeguarding of machinery, accident reports, public prosecution and actions for damages in cases of accidents and the employment of children for half time only; the other half to be spent in school. Under this Act all women workers were classified with young persons of 13 to 18 years of age for the purposes of restricting their hours to 12 a day and prohibiting their employment at night. The Ten Hour Act of 1847 secured the 10 hour day for women and young persons. But all these measures failed to reach the thousands of women and children who worked in the mines. Children began their life in the coal mines at 5, 6 or 7 years of age; girls and women worked like boys and men and the hours were 12 or 14 in every 24, often at night. The Mines and Collieries Act of 1842 was enacted to prohibit the employment of women and children under 10 years of age in underground mines. The law was revised to exclude from such employment all females and all boys under 13 years of age. Moreover the Factory Acts were extended to all large industries in 1864 and to smaller workshops in 1867. In 1878 the Factory and Workshop Consolidation Act repealed all former laws and substituted a Factory Code which made regulations more stringent. Since that time protection has been extended to workers in laundries, docks, sweetshops, mercantile establishments and other enterprises. The new Factory Code of 1902 raised the minimum age for child workers from 11 to 12 years and in 1920 the employment of Women, Young Persons and Children Act was passed governing the employment of women and young people on the two-day shift system, excluding from industrial employment children under 14 years of age, and permitting women and young persons of 16 years of age and over to be employed under certain conditions in shifts averaging not more than 8 hours a day at any time between 6 A.M. and 10 P.M. or 6 A.M. and 2 P.M. on Saturdays. Workmen's compensation, sickness insurance, unemployment insurance, old age pensions and many other protective measures have been enacted in Great Britain on behalf of the workers and social welfare.

LEG. REF.

¹ 'We manufacture everything except men. We bleach cotton and strengthen steel and refine sugar and shape pottery but to brighten, to strengthen, to refine and to reform a single living spirit never enters into our estimate of 'advances'." (John Ruskin quoted in de Gubben's English Social Reform 212)

PROTECTIVE LEGISLATION FOR WOMEN—The movement for the legal protection of women workers developed almost contemporaneously with the movement for the protection of children and in many instances the same legislation has been made applicable to both of these groups of workers. Laws limiting the hours of employment were most prominent among the early protective measures for women.

MINIMUM WAGE LAWS—Among the most recent extensions of the principle of protective legislation is the legal minimum wage which by specifying minimum standards of pay for certain groups of workers seeks (1) to protect the health and welfare of those workers (2) to equalize the bargaining power of employers and employees covered by the laws and (3) to promote social welfare and progress. These laws are usually made applicable to women and minors and other low skilled and unskilled workers. Among such workers labour organization and collective bargaining have made little progress and the keenness of competition among them has resulted in the depression of wage scales to a sub standard equivalent to the bargaining power of the weakest individual bargainer. In a very real sense therefore the State intervenes to secure for these workers the full competitive rate of wages such has been the history of labour legislation in England. —(Watkins Introductory to the study of Labour Problems)

FACTORY LEGISLATION IN INDIA—Factory Legislation in India has followed on the same lines as similar English Legislation.

The first time that public attention was drawn to the subject in India was in 1873. In a report on the Administration of the Bombay Cotton Department in 1872-73 the writer Major Moore dealt with Factory conditions in Bombay and touched specially on the length of the working hours, the condition of women and children and the age at which children were employed. It appears that at that time children began to work at six years of age and worked from sunrise to sunset with a brief interval of half an hour for meals and frequently were allowed only two holidays in the month.

The Secretary of State whose attention had been drawn to the condition of labour in India and who had seen Major Moore's Report wrote on the subject to the Bombay Government and in 1875 that Government appointed a Commission to determine whether legislation was necessary. The decision arrived at by a majority of seven against two was not in favour of legislation.

During this period the mind of Britain was greatly exercised about reforms in legislation. Those interested in British industry began to make inquiries about the condition of labour in India and a strong desire was expressed that mills in India should not be allowed to go on unwatched and repeat the disasters that had taken place in Britain. A powerful portion of the British Mill owning Community seized this opportunity for diverting criticism from conditions in their own country by drawing attention to those in India and urged that no further burden should be laid upon them which would make it still more difficult to compete with cheap labour abroad. About this time Miss Carpenter of Bristol founder of the National Indian Association had visited India and made inquiries about the Indian factory conditions. The Secretary of State in his dispatch to the Government of India urging legislation in respect of factory work wrote of pressure being brought to bear on him but had not mentioned from what quarter. There was however a general feeling in India that the voice was the voice of Fether Hall but the hand was the hand of Manchester. British influence being exerted in respect of Indian Legislation and British interference with Indian industry was strongly resented and criticised as being wielded by ignorant English philanthropists and grasping English Manufacturers.

The result was that special irritation was roused in India and every suggestion that was inspired from Britain which might imply interference with Indian labour conditions was viewed with suspicion. This suspicion was for some time strong and real. But facts could not be ignored for long. Abuses in factories must be attended to from whatever source criticism came.

As has been said by Mr. T. M. Nair in his Minute of Dissent to the Report of the Factory Labour Commission 1908. The many abuses which exist in connection with factory labour in India are certainly not of Lancashire's creation. Because certain representatives of the cotton industry in Lancashire have prominently drawn the attention of the authorities to the existence of grave abuses in the working of the textile factories—it is no ill effect pointed out by friends or foes.

FACTORY ACT 1881—In 1877 there was framed the first draft of a Bill which after much discussion and alteration was passed for all India in 1881. Owing to the strong criticism to which it had been subjected it finally saw the light in what was from the point of view of its supporters in a very inadequate form. By it children were allowed to work for nine hours a day from the age of eight upwards, clauses that related to the work of women and holidays had to be dropped and the District Officers were expected to enforce the Act and its regulations without any addition to their staff.

FACTORY ACT XII OF 1911—Between 1881 when the first Factory Act was passed and 1911 when Act XII of 1911 took its place, there were continuous discussions roused by Government Reports and various Labour Commissions. The Act of 1911 secured one weekly holiday for all workers in factories a maximum of eleven hours work a day for women with one and a half hours rest during that time. It also prohibited the work of women and children at night raised the age of children permitted to work in mills from eight to nine years and allowed them to work for seven hours only.

Apart from pressure from English Manufacturing interests which were viewed with suspicion in India, other influences also were at work. There had been an international conference at Berlin in 1890 called by the Emperor of Germany through the Swiss Government. In 1900 an "Association for labour legislation" was formed and met for the first time in Paris. The members of this Association continued to agitate till at an official International Conference called by the Swiss Government in Berne in 1905 the first international Conventions were formulated. These were signed at the same place a year later. One of the subjects dealt with by this convention was the employment of women at night.

ACT XII OF 1911—STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS—The following extracts from the Statement of Objects and Reasons attached to the Bill would show the problems that confronted the Legislature and how it was proposed to solve them.

The object of this Bill is to consolidate and amend the law in India relating to Factories. The Indian Factories Acts 1881 and 1891 will be repealed and the new Act will take their place. The report submitted by the Factory Labour Commission, 1908 disclosed the existence of abuses in factories particularly in connection with the employment of children and the length of the hours for which the operatives were generally employed. The commission made proposals with the object of checking those abuses and also submitted proposals for strengthening the law on several points so that inspection might be more effective and the administration of the law improved. It is now proposed to under take legislation to give effect to these recommendations in so far as they have been approved by the Government. The opportunity has been taken to remodel the framework of the existing law and to redraft several of its provisions.

The Report of the Commission showed that excessive hours were not worked except in textile factories. The restrictions which it is considered necessary to impose on the textile factories are the following—

(1) No person shall be actually employed for more than 12 hours in any one day.

(2) No person shall be employed before 5.30 in the morning and after 7 in the evening.

(3) The period for which mechanical power is used shall not in any one day exceed 12 hours.

(4) No child shall be employed for more than 6 hours in any one day.

Of the above restrictions the second and third will not apply to any factory for ginning cotton or for pressing cotton or jute. Power is also taken to grant exemption in special cases from restrictions (1) (2) and (3).

The Government of India will be empowered to extend by notification the provisions of the law relating to textile factories to any other specified class of factories should the necessity arise. In the case of non-textile factories certain new restrictions have been proposed in the case of women and children (which are explained in the notes on clauses 24 and 25 attached to the Bill).

The existing Act contains no substantive provisions providing for the health and safety of the operatives excepting one section which deals with the fencing of the machinery. In accordance with the recommendations of the Factory Labour Commission a number of provisions for securing the health and safety of the operatives have been included in Chapter III of the Bill. These provisions are in some cases borrowed from the English Factory and Workshop Act 1901 and in others are based on rules which are already in force in several Provinces.

Several provisions have been inserted in the Bill with object of making inspection more effective increasing the powers of the Inspectors and providing generally for the better operation of the Act. The existing law makes the occupier of the factory primarily liable for any breach of the provisions and of the rules and orders made thereunder. It has been found difficult to enforce this responsibility and in the Bill it is now proposed that in place of the occupier the manager of the factory shall be held responsible when any offence is committed against the Act—(See Fort St. George Gazette Part III August 10 1909 pp. 180-182).

ACT XXV OF 1934—It was not long before Act XII of 1911 was found inadequate to satisfy the growing needs of labour. With experience of its working the development of factory employment, the changes consequent on war conditions the conventions arrived at by the Labour Conference at Washington in 1919 united to make further legislation necessary. A Royal Commission was appointed in 1929 with Mr. John Henry Whitley as president, 'to enquire into and report on the existing conditions of labour in industrial undertakings and plantations in British India on the health efficiency and standard of living of the workers and on the relations between employers and employed, and to make recommendations.

ACT XXV OF 1934—STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS—‘The Royal Commission on Labour in India made a number of recommendations for the amendment of the Factories Act. These were published with their Report in July 1931. After examining these in detail the Government of India drafted a Bill to replace the Factories Act 1911 which embodied the great majority of the proposals and included some further alterations that experience had shown to be desirable. This Bill was circulated with a covering letter and a series of explanatory notes to Local Governments in June 1932 and the Governments were asked to forward the papers to association of employers and employed and to other organisations or individuals who might be interested. In reply a series of opinions were received discussing the Bill and the original Act in great detail and after considering the numerous suggestions offered the Government of India framed the Bill which subsequently was passed as the Factories Act (XXV of 1934).

The substantial changes made in the law are discussed in the Notes on Clauses. Nearly all the more important alterations are based on the Labour Commission's recommendations. At the same time the opportunity has been taken to re-arrange the law and to revise its expression where necessary. The old Act was in force from 1911 but since that date large changes had been made by amending Acts and the consolidation of the law in a clearer and more logical form was in itself a desirable reform.

PROCEEDINGS IN COUNCIL—In introducing the Bill which afterwards was passed as Act XXV of 1934 the member in charge of the Bill made the following observations—The Act which forms the framework of the Bill that we are now submitting to the House was passed as long ago as 23 years when factory industries were far from the state of development they have recalled to day and when many of the problems now facing us were unexplored or even unknown. Extensive amendments were made in 1922 and there have been no less than three other amending Acts since then. As a result few of the more important provisions of the 1911 Act survive in their original form. The present Act it is not going too far to say is a thing of shreds and patches and it stands in urgent need of consolidation and also of clarification. But that is not the only need. Government have been aware of defects in the law in certain directions for a number of years past. We have realised for instance that the Act gives inadequate protection to workers in respect of safety, health and comfort. Experience of its working has revealed other defects and weaknesses. Further it countenances hours of work which I think every one even those who are not in favour of immediate change realises cannot be regarded with equanimity as a permanent feature of Indian industry but which presented the limit to which it was thought desirable to go when the provisions in question were enacted.

Finally the work of the Whitley Commission which probed more deeply into this subject than Government have naturally ever had an opportunity of doing not only brought to light the need for other changes but gave valuable guidance towards the framing of a new law. As I am not asking the House to commit itself to any particular provisions of the Bill, even those which relate to hours it is not, I think, necessary for me to discuss those provisions in detail. I hope that in respect of at any rate most of the sections the Statement of Object and Reasons affords a sufficient explanation.

I should like to deal specifically if very briefly with one clause clause 35 which relates to the weekly hours of work for it is in regard to that clause that I think there is to say the least a considerable possibility of some diversity of opinion. Briefly our proposals are that in seasonal factories, the limit of 60 hours should remain continuous process factories should be allowed a 56 hour week which is the normal limit in such factories at present in the other non seasonal factories the week should be ordinarily limited to 54 hours. This is important to remind the House was the limit already observed by the majority of the factories to which it is proposed to apply it. But there is a large minority of factories which still work up to the 60 hours limit. The minority includes the bulk of the mills in that very important industry the cotton textile industry. Now I should like to state the reasons which have led me to the view that this limit, if it were enforced would be to the advantage both of industrialists and of workers. So far as employers are concerned it seems to me that as I have already indicated stability in any industry must be dependent on a reasonably efficient and contented labour force. It is impossible to my mind to build a sound industrial structure in India or for that matter in any other country on a foundation of inefficient work. It is unreasonable to expect any high degree of efficiency or any high degree of contentment from men who have to spend ten hours a day—indeed it amounts to eleven hours if the rest interval is included—within the limits of a factory. Shorter hours are in my view an essential condition for any substantial advance in efficiency. Further I would remind the House that there has recently been a very radical change in the labour position. Formerly there was a constant scarcity of labour and many employers were therefore naturally anxious to keep the men they had at work as long as possible. Now we have the spectacle of men sitting idle outside the factory gates unable to get work, whilst others inside are required to work an unduly long period.

Turning to the workers, I recognise that for many of those in employment that is, those who are working a longer day, the reduction in hours must mean a definite sacrifice. Industry to day in India is unfortunately not in such a position that if production is reduced it can pay the same wages as it did before and until workers can make good this reduction by more intense labour they must face a reduction from the level of earnings prevalent in the last few years. On the other hand prices have fallen greatly and any reasonable reduction that would be required on this account, would not bring the workers' purchasing power below the level of only a few years back. There are indeed signs that in certain industries particularly in the cotton textile industry, the employers are endeavouring to secure a reduction in wages before any reduction of hours has been offered or enforced. I believe that even from the point of view of those in employment a reduction in earnings would be a reasonable price to pay for a reduction in toil. The man who spends eleven hours a day in a factory throughout the year cannot be said to live at all. He is a machine and he has not the efficiency of the machine nor has he the incapacity of a machine for suffering.

But these are not the only facts that deserve consideration. There is a considerable measure of unemployment. Many men are idle. Many others have their lives shadowed by the fear of idleness. To the one reduction of hours would bring new prospects, to the other greater security.

After much discussion Act XXV of 1934 was passed and received the assent of the Governor General on the 20th August 1934.

A solution has been found for the pressing problems of the day. But the solution is only temporary. It cannot be said that the Act has finally satisfied either the claims of the employer or the needs of the employed. In some respects labour legislation in India had to contend against opposition both from the workers as well as the employer's points of view.

The poverty of workers in India and their need to earn every pittance they could has been made a plea for non-interference. The fear of checking a new industry has also loomed large in the minds of those who at one time opposed factory legislation and though that fear still acts as a barrier against over rapid legislation the fact that the inefficiency of much of the labour power of India is the greatest check to its industry is widely realised—(Labour in India by Mr J. H. Kilman 1923).

RESUME OF FACTORY LEGISLATION IN INDIA—In making a general survey of Industrial Legislation in India the members of the Whitley Commission made the following observations.

The history of factory law in India has throughout been one of steady advance each successive Act covering a wider field than the last and bringing within its orbit classes of workers of establishments which the increasing spread of industrialism has shown to be in need of protection or regulation. As in England it was the case of the children which first attracted attention with the result that the initial Act sought to regulate the conditions of work of children in the bulk of factories employing 100 or more workers. This 1881 Act excluded children under 7 years while the child of from 7 to 12 years became a 'half timer' who could be worked for a maximum of 9 hours. The second Act of 1891 raised the minimum working age of the half timer from 7 to 9 years and the age at which he became an adult from 12 to 14 years reduced his working hours from 9 to 7 and prohibited his employment on dangerous work. The importance of this Act however, lay not so much in the granting of increased protection to the child worker as in its extension also to women workers who were given a maximum day of 11 hours. In addition the Act brought under control all places employing 50 instead of the previous 100, employees provided they used power machinery. Moreover for the first time Local Governments were given power to include all factories using power and employing 20 persons or more within the scope of the new Act. The Act of 1911 which repealed both the earlier Acts, took the extremely important third step of regulating the hours of men in textile factories as well as those of women and children. The hours of children employed in such factories were reduced from 7 to 6. At the same time new provisions in respect of health and safety were introduced but on this occasion the definition of a factory remained unchanged. The year 1922 saw the passage of an amending Act fixing an 11 hour day and 60 hour week for adults. The importance of this Act in showing the gradual extension of the principle of control lay in the reduction of the number of workers necessary to constitute a factory from 50 to 20 and in extending to Local Governments power to include places employing as few as ten persons in the case of those without any installation of power machinery as well as those using such machinery. It also took another step in protecting the child worker by excluding altogether those under 12 years raising the age at which the industrial child became an adult to 15 years and restricting the hours of the half timer in all factories to 6 daily. The subsequent amending Acts of 1923 and 1926 did not make any change of importance in the scope of the Act either as regards establishments or classes of workers.

GRADUALNESS THE KEYNOTE IN THE PAST AND ALSO A SAFE GUIDE FOR THE FUTURE—This brief outline of the history of certain features of factory legislation in India shows that from the beginning the principle of factory regulation, here as in other countries, has been gradually to extend the area of protection afforded to the industrially employed worker. This principle has been effected in three ways—by regulation affecting specific classes of workers by regulation affecting specific classes of establishments and by powers given to Local Governments to include under such regulation smaller places of a similar kind (see S 5). The value of a policy of gradualness has been clearly demonstrated in the history of factory Legislation in India in the past and the dictates of common sense and practicability confirm us in the beliefs that the same policy should continue to actuate future developments of factory Legislation

An Act to consolidate and amend the Law regulating labour in factories

WHEREAS it is expedient to consolidate and amend the Law regulating labour in factories, It is hereby enacted as follows —

CHAPTER I

PRELIMINARY

Short title extent and commencement

1 (1) This Act may be called THE FACTORIES ACT, 1934

NOTES

Sec 1 OBJECT OF THE ACT — The object of the Act is to protect human beings from being subjected to unduly long hours of bodily strain or manual labour. It also provides that employees should work in healthy and sanitary conditions so far as the manufacturing process will allow and that precautions should be taken for their safety and for the prevention of accidents. In order to obtain the informations necessary to ensure that its objects are carried out the Local Government are empowered to appoint inspectors to call for returns and to see that the prescribed registers are duly kept. This is part of the machinery which enables the authorities to maintain effective supervision and it is undoubtedly important that there should be substantial compliance with these provisions of the Act 38 C W N 1008=152 I C 556=1934 C 730 (Per McNair J). At the same time it should not be forgotten that the Act is sanctioning interference with the ordinary rights of the citizen and that the inquisitorial powers which are given should be used with tact and circumspection 38 C W N 1008=152 I C 556=1934 C 730 (Per McNair J).

CONSTRUCTION OF THE ACT — The provisions of the Act have to be construed in favour of the employee and strictly in favour of the employer 152 I C 556=38 C W N 1008=1934 C 730 'A law which is enacted for the benefit of the employee should not be used merely for the purpose of harrassing the employer. The launching of a test case in respect of an infringement of provisions which are not generally available the meaning of which is doubtful to the authorities themselves and which the factory management honestly complied with as they understood them asking for further enlightenment from the authorities without getting any is to be strongly deprecated (Ibid.) I am fully alive to the great importance of Factory Acts being properly enforced for the protection of workmen and I have no doubt that in India it is particularly necessary that their beneficial provisions should be carried out. On the other hand one must also bear in mind that the employers' position has to be considered too. It may be that without any negligence on their part defects will exist in their factories but if they are to be proceeded against in a Criminal Court for alleged negligence then it would seem only fair that the matter should be clearly brought home to them. That I have no doubt is the reason why the Legislature has distinctly specified what the Inspector has to do. Whether a particular accused in any case was negligent or not does not con-

CRITICISM ON THE DRAFTING OF THE ACT (XII of 1911) — "We desire to point out to the authorities concerned that it will be difficult to uphold prosecutions under many of the sections of this Act unless they are amended especially in cases of factories to which exemptions have been granted (Per Mallick J) 35 C W N 1108. The Act is carelessly and loosely drawn. It seems to consist mainly of parts of the English Act taken from their context and patched together. It is a penal statute and as such it is essential that its terms should be clear definite and unambiguous. On the contrary it is difficult—if not impossible for a lawyer still less a layman to understand many of its provisions (Ibid) 35 C W N 1108. 'There are many provisions in the Act which are confused and ambiguous and the rules and forms provided do not tally with the requirements of the sections. The truth seems to be that the application of the Act to special factories has never been properly thought out. Drastic redrafting and amendment of this important Act seem to be required urgently' (Ibid) 35 C W N 1108.

APPLICATION OF THE ACT TO CROWN FACTORIES—Crown factories had from the beginning been brought under the operation of the Act which followed in this respect the British law on the subject. This had been another subject of discussion when the Bill was introduced and the conclusion to which the Committee had come on full consideration was that Crown factories should be brought within the scope of the Act but that the power to exempt them temporarily in cases of emergency should be reserved to the Government. It was quite necessary that such power should be reserved in order to avoid great inconvenience and mischief. It would be sufficient to instance the case of the Mint and of the powder and gun manufactories in time of war to show the necessity for such a provision. (Proceed ings in Council Fort St George Gazette 4th May 1881)

Sec 2 STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS—The amendments made in the section have been explained as follows—The definitions have been generally revised and supplemented and those defining the manufacturing process and determining when a person is employed have been simplified. The definition of factory has been modified so as to cover those establishments which although they employ more than 20 persons in the day do not employ that number simultaneously. The Select Committee said—The changes made in the definitions are aimed generally at making these definitions more accurate and exhaustive and meet various criticisms contained in the opinions received upon the Bill (Report of the Sel Com)

CI (a) ADOLESCENT—The expression used in the English Act is 'young person' which expression is defined to mean a person who has ceased to be a child and is under the age of eighteen years (English Act S 156). The Indian Law fixes the age at seventeen.

CI (b) ADULT—Under the English Act a person would be an adult only after completing his eighteenth year.

CI (c) CHILD—ENGLISH ACT—The expression child has been defined by the English Act as follows—The expression child means a person who is under the age of fourteen years and who has not being of the age of thirteen years obtained the certificate of proficiency or attendance at school mentioned in Part III of this (English Act) Act (S 156).

CI (d) DAY—ENGLISH LAW—Under the English Act the expression night has been defined to mean the period between nine o'clock in the evening and six o'clock in the succeeding morning (S 156).

CI (f) ANY OTHER FORM OF ENERGY WHICH IS MECHANICALLY TRANSMITTED—These words must be construed ejusdem generis with electric steam or water power and do not include hand power [Hill v Paton (1902) 1 K B 237]

(g) "manufacturing process" means any process—

(i) for making, altering, repairing, ornamenting, finishing or packing, or otherwise treating any article or substance with a view to its use, sale, transport, delivery or disposal, or

(ii) for pumping oil, water or sewage, or

(iii) for generating, transforming or transmitting power,

(h) "worker" means a person employed, whether for wages or not, in any manufacturing process, or in cleaning any part of the machinery or premises used for a manufacturing process, or in any other kind of work whatsoever incidental to or connected with the manufacturing process or connected with the subject of the manufacturing process, but does not include any person solely employed in a clerical capacity in any room or place where no manufacturing process is being carried on,

(j) "factory" means any premises including the precincts thereof where on twenty or more workers are working or were working on any day of the preceding twelve months, and in any part of which a manufacturing process is being carried on with the aid of power, or is ordinarily so carried on,

NOTES

Cl (g) 'PROCESS' — Process has been defined by the English Act as including the use of any locomotive (S 156).

"MANUFACTURING PROCESS"—These words merely refer to the particular business carried on and do not necessarily refer to the production of some article. So that laundries, carpet beating or bottle washing works etc. are factories within the Act if mechanical power is used [Owner v Cottingham Sanitary Steam Laundry Co Ltd (1910) 74 J P 219; Johnstone v Lalonde Bros and Parham (1912) 2 K B 218. See also Royal Masonic Institution for Boys v Parker (1912) 3 K B 212 and Patterson v Hunt (1909) 73 J P 496]. Putting ginned cotton into bales and having it pressed must be considered work connected with the manufacturing process and the men engaged in the work must be deemed to be employed in the factory. 143 I C 772=1933 N 283.

Cl (h) WORKER — Cf the definition of Workmen in the Indian Workmen's Compensation Act S 2 cl (n).

Cl (j) FACTORY — The definition in this cl (j) applies to the term factory used in S 9 (3) of Cotton Ginning and Pressing Factories Act 1925. 1937 M W N 1335. See also 1 L R (1937) Nag 88=1937 Nag 311. By a factory is meant premises where anything is done towards the making or finishing of an article up to the stage when it is ready to be sold or is in a suitable condition to be put on the market. 109 I C 599=8 L 666=29 P L R 234=29 Cr L J 583=1928 L 78. See also 1 N L R 115. A factory includes every thing machine rooms sheds godowns yards. If within these premises or precincts mechanical power is used in aid of any process for altering for transport or sale of any article, then these premises or precincts are a factory. 50 M 834=1927 M 345=52 M L J 207. The drying yard used for drying ground nuts, where machinery for decorticating the ground nuts was working is a part of factory although there is no connexion with machinery or any work incidental to the manufacturing process. (Ibid.) See also 1941 N L J 471=1941 Nag 337 (Notification of C P Government as to what places are factories under this Act is not ultra vires).

RAILWAY WORKSHOPS are factories. 119 I C 722=1929 Lah 573. A Gurhal Ghar is a factory even though the engine shed is a separate building and less than twenty persons are employed therein but over twenty persons are employed in the Gurhal Ghar inclusive of those employed on the crushers and those employed in the boiling shed and these latter must be said to be employed both on the premises and within the precincts of the Gurhal Ghar. 32 Bom L R 329=1930 Bom 162=31 Cr L J 1094.

TWO OR MORE BUILDINGS entirely separate from each other may in certain circumstances form part of one and the same factory. See L C C and Tuffs, In re (1903) 86 J P 29; Hoyle v Gram, (1862) 12 C B 124.

USE OF POWER IN PART OF BUILDING — Every part of the premises unless specially exempted forms part of a factory although power may only be used in one part [Taylor v Hucks, Hardcastle v Jones (1862) 3 B and S 153, Palmer's Shipbuilding Co v Chaylor, (1869) 4 Q B 209, but see Vues v Inglis, (1915) S C 181]. The definition of "factory" is intended not to cover merely individual business in any premises but is intended to denote any premises as a composite whole with a central source of power, i.e., either steam, water, or other electrical or mechanical power. 57 B 150=35 Bom L R 83=1933 Bom 109.

"WORKPLACE" is not defined either in this Act or in the English Act, but in Bennett v Hardinge, (1900) 2 Q B 397, Charnell J., said — "I think that a workplace must be a but does not include a mine subject to the operation of the Indian Mines Act, 1923,

(k) "machinery" includes all plant whereby power is generated, transformed, transmitted or applied,

(l) occupier of a factory means the person who has ultimate control over the affairs of the factory

Provided that where the affairs of a factory are entrusted to a managing agent, such agent shall be deemed to be the occupier of the factory,

(m) where work of the same kind is carried out by two or more sets of workers working during different periods of the day, each of such sets is called a 'relay,' and the period or periods for which it works is called a "shift", and

(n) 'prescribed' means prescribed by rules made by the Provincial Government under this Act place where some work is being perpetually or permanently done I do not say that the mere presence of workmen in repairing a private house would make it a workplace

N B — The Act mainly deals with labour employed in what may be described as perennial factories (i.e.) excluding those which deal mainly with agricultural products in the raw state and work for part of the year only, and all those establishments which either use no mechanical power or using power employ less than 20 persons. These also are excluded from the definition of factories. See Whitley Commission Rep p 6

PERSONS EMPLOYED IN THE FACTORY — A person who works in a factory whether for wages or not may be deemed to be employed in that factory. Where it is shown that certain persons were engaged in the factory in one of the ways specified in S 2 (2) [of the old Act of 1911] it must be presumed they were employed in the factory. 61 Cal 332=35 Cr L J 1401=38 C W N 801=1934 Cal 546. See S 2 cl (2) of the old Act XII of 1911. Persons employed merely for selling the manufactured articles do not come within the definition of employed in that factory even though they happen to occupy a room at the factory for the sake of convenience. 109 I C 599=8 L 666=29 P L R 234=29 Cr L J 583=1928 Lah 78. It is not correct to say that the Factories Act affects only manual labourers. 152 I C 566=38 C W N 1008=1934 Cal 730

POWER — See S 2 cl (f) supra

Cl (k) ENGLISH ACT — Under the English Act the expression machinery includes all driving strap or band (S 156). The expression mill gearing comprehends every shaft whether upright oblique or horizontal and every wheel drum or pulley or other appliance by which the motion of the first moving power is communicated to any machine appertaining to a manufacturing process (Ibid)

Cl (1) — [See also Notes under S 70 infra.] OCCUPIER — The word occupier in general means a person who occupies the factory either by himself or his agent. He may be an owner, he may be a lessee or even a mere licensee but he must have the right to occupy the property and dictate how it is to be managed. 55 B 366=32 Cr L J 1063 (1)=33 Bom L R 309=1931 B 308. See also Rat 902. The definition of occupier in the Act is not an exhaustive definition and there is nothing in it which in any way limits the normal meaning of the word occupier as indicating a person who is in actual possession and control of a factory. 50 B 34=27 Bom L R 1405=27 Cr L J 165=1926 B 57. The word Mumim as commonly used does connote agency, and persons dealing with the chief authority in charge of the factory where it is situated would look upon him as the agent of the owner or occupier. If there is a special contract of service or agency between him and his master he must prove it. 19 N L J 247. The word occupier bears the same meaning in this Act as it bears in similar enactments in England that is a person who regulates a factory and controls the work that is done there. 20 I C 144=14 Cr L J 384=15 Bom L R 328. The question who is the occupier of a factory must depend among others upon these considerations namely — Who alone has the right of using the factory for the purposes for which it is constructed and worked, who has the right of regulating and controlling it, whose is the predominant possession of and general superintendence over it. 10 Bom L R 38=7 Cr L J 44. The manager of a factory who resides in a part of the premises in which the factory is is not an occupier of the factory within the meaning of the Act. 29 B 423=7 Bom L R 454, 2 Cr L J 428.

OWNER'S LIABILITY — Even if the accused who is the owner of a factory shows that he knows nothing about the management of the factory and that he has left the whole conduct of its affairs to a manager appointed by him for the purpose he is not free from the liability imposed on him by S 41 (a) of the Factories Act. 55 B 366=32 Cr L J 1063 (1)=33 Bom L R 309=1931 B 308. Sel. Com.) The Notification of the Central Provinces Government No. 2022644 VII, dated 17th January 1939, which declares that all places in Central Provinces, wherein manufacturing process is carried on with the aid of power and wherein on any one day of the twelve months preceding the date of the notification ten or more workers were employed, to be factories under the Factories Act is ultra vires of the power given to the Provincial Government by S. 5 (1) of the Factories Act. The notification is not universal but selective and it does not render S. 5 (1) of the Act nugatory inasmuch as the Act applies to the whole of British India while the notification applies only to Central Provinces. 190 I.C. 438=1941 N.L.J. 471=1941 Nag. 337.

Sec. 6: STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.—“This reproduces in substance S. 53 of the old Act, but it is proposed that notifications should be limited to specified factories as there is no occasion for notifications applicable to classes of factories.” The Select Committee have omitted reference to the control of the Governor-General in Council, which is in this connexion unnecessary.

EXTENT OF A FACTORY.—Subject to certain specified exceptions the area of the factory or workshop is the whole space contained within its walls. Back v. Dick, (1906) A.C. 325. “In the case of factories..... etc., the walls or fences built around the factory.....fix the boundaries and determine the area.” Back v. Dick, (1906) A.C. 325, per Lord Atkinson, at p. 334.

MORE THAN ONE FACTORY IN A SINGLE BUILDING.—More than one factory or workshop may be contained in a single building or group of buildings, and different parts of the same building may constitute separate factories or workshops. (See 14 Hals. Laws of England, pp. 559-570.) “I cannot help thinking that we should be in great difficulties if we were to hold that the mere fact of one factory overlapping another caused them to be within the same curtilage.” Per Kennedy, J., in Brass v. London County Council, (1924) 2 K.B. 336. In Vines v. Inglis, (1915) S.C. (J.) 18, 24 Digest 902 (b), a building consisted of a retail shop on the ground floor a millinery room in which no mechanical power was used on the next floor, and a non-textile factory for dress-making on the top floor, in which mechanical power was used, but not in respect of the millinery work. It was held that the millinery room was not a factory. A part of a factory may, under circumstances, be declared for the purposes of the Act to be a separate factory or workshop. [English Factories Act, 1901, S. 149, cl. (2).] Different branches or departments of work carried on in the same factory or workshop shall, for all or any of the purposes of the Act, be treated as if they were different factories or workshops. (English Factories Act, 1901, S. 150.)

SEPARATE BUILDINGS CONSTITUTING SAME FACTORY.—Separate buildings, even though a considerable distance apart, may, if used for one continuous manufacturing process, constitute a single factory or workshop. [English Factories Act, 1901, S. 149, cl. (4).] The place where the product of a factory is delivered, even if directly connected with the place of production, is not necessarily a part of the factory. Spacey v. Dowlat, (1905) 2 K.B. 879 (C.A.).

ROOMS USED SOLELY FOR SLEEPING PURPOSES.—Rooms used solely for sleeping purposes and places within the precincts of a factory solely used for some purpose other than the manufacturing process are excluded from the operation of the Factories Act. [English Factories Act, 1901, S. 149, cl. (4). Lewis v. Gilbertson, (1904) 91 L.T. 377.]

- (c) the nature of the manufacturing processes to be carried on in the factory,
- (d) the nature and amount of the power to be used, and
- (e) the name of the person who shall be the manager of the factory for the purposes of this Act

(2) Whenever another person is appointed as manager, the occupier shall send to the Inspector a written notice of the change, within seven days from the date in which the new manager assumes charge

(3) During any period for which no person has been designated as manager of a factory under this section, or during which the person designated does not manage the factory, any person found acting as manager, or, if no such person is found, the occupier himself, shall be deemed to be the manager of the factory for the purposes of this Act

Sec 13 REPORT OF SELECT COMMITTEE—Local Government is given discretion to make or not to make detailed provision by rules for the time and methods of cleansing a factory

these methods may include lime washing, or colour washing, painting, varnishing, disinfecting and deodorising

14 [Cf Ss 9 (c), 10 and 37 (2) (e), Old Act and Ss 1, 7 and 74, English Act] (1) Every factory shall be ventilated in accordance with such standards and by such methods as may be prescribed

(2) Where gas, dust or other impurity is generated in the course of work adequate measures shall be taken to prevent injury to the health of workers

(3) If it appears to the Inspector that in any factory gas, dust or other impurity generated in the course of work is being inhaled by the workers to an injurious extent, and that such generation or inhalation could be prevented by the use of mechanical or other devices, he may serve on the manager of the factory an order in writing, directing that mechanical or other devices for preventing such generation or inhalation shall be provided before a specified date, and shall thereafter be maintained in good order and used throughout working hours

(4) The Provincial Government may make rules for any class of factories requiring mechanical or other devices to be provided and maintained for preventing the generation or inhalation of gas dust or other impurities, which may be injurious to workers and specifying the nature of such devices

15 [Cf Ss 9 (d) 12 and 37 (2) (g), Old Act and Ss 90 96 English Act] (1) The Provincial Government may make rules—

(a) prescribing standards for the cooling properties of the air in factories in which the humidity of the air is artificially increased

(b) regulating the methods used for artificially increasing the humidity of the air and

(c) directing prescribed tests for determining the humidity and cooling properties of the air to be carried out and recorded

(2) In any factory in which the humidity of the air is artificially increased the water used for the purpose shall be taken from a public supply or other source of drinking water, or shall be effectively purified before it is so used

Sec 14 STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS—Sub clauses (1) and (2) are based on S 9 (c) and S 37 (2) (g) of the old Act All of 1911 while sub-cl (3) is based on old S 10 Sub-cl (4) is designed to enable Local Governments to do by rules for classes of factories what Inspectors under sub-cl (3) can do by orders for single factories

REPORT OF SELECT COMMITTEE—Exercise of the power here conferred has now been confined to the Chief Inspector We have provided in cl 31 (now S 31) that an order under this clause shall be suspended during the hearing of the appeal if any appeal is preferred against it

Sec 15 STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS—SUB-CL. (1)—S 9 (d) of the old Act at present requires that the atmosphere shall not be rendered so humid by artificial means as to be injurious to the health of the workers, and S 37 (2) (g) gives the Local Governments power to prescribe standards of artificial humidification and the methods to be adopted to secure their observance It is now established that humidity by itself affords no measure of the degree of danger or discomfort, the cooling power a factory dependent on the temperature the humidity and the movement of the air is a much more reliable criterion Moreover the Labour Commission has called attention to the fact that the existing Act gives inadequate power to protect the worker from acute discomfort It is therefore proposed to omit the prohibition of excess humidity and in sub-cl (1), to enable the Local Government to prescribe standards of cooling power in place of standards of humidification, and to regulate the methods used for artificial humidification Sub-cl (2) and (3) reproduce the substance of S 12

REPORT OF THE SELECT COMMITTEE—"The alteration made by the Select Committee enables standards to be prescribed either generally or for a particular class of work."

CL (1) (c) has been added by the Select Committee as a necessary supplementary provision to enable tests to be prescribed.

section (2) is not effectively purified, he may serve on the manager of the factory an order in writing, specifying the measures which in his opinion should be adopted, and requiring them to be carried out before a specified date

16 [Cf S 6, English Act] If it appears to the Chief Inspector or to an Inspector specially authorized in this behalf by the Provincial Government that the cooling properties of the air in any factory are at times insufficient to secure workers against injury to health or against serious discomfort, and that they can be to a great extent increased by measures which will not involve an amount of expense which is unreasonable in the circumstances, the Chief Inspector may serve on the manager of the factory an order in writing specifying the measures which in his opinion should be adopted, and requiring them to be carried out before a specified date

17 [Cf Ss 1 and 3, English Act and Ss 9 (b) and 37 (2) (f), Old Act]

Overcrowding

In order that no room in a factory shall be crowded

during working hours to a dangerous extent or to an extent which may be injurious to the health of the workers, the proportion which the number of cubic feet of space in a room and the number of superficial feet of its floor area bears to the number of workers working at any time therein shall not be less than such standards as may be prescribed either generally or for the particular class of work carried on in the room

Lighting

18 [Cf S 11, Old Act] (1) A factory shall be sufficiently lighted during all working hours

(2) If it appears to the Inspector that any factory is not sufficiently lighted, he may serve on the manager of the factory an order in writing specifying the measures which in his opinion should be adopted, and requiring them to be carried out before a specified date

(3) The Provincial Government may make rules requiring that all factories of specified classes shall be lighted in accordance with prescribed standards

19 [Cf S 75, English Act and Ss 14 and 37 (2) (s), Old Act] (1) In every factory a sufficient supply of water fit for drinking shall be provided for the workers at suitable places

(2) The supply required by sub section (1) shall comply with such standards as may be prescribed

(3) In every factory in which any process involving contact by the workers with injurious or obnoxious substances is carried on, a sufficient supply of

Sec 16 STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS — This is based on a recommendation of the Labour Commission who give in their report the previous history of the legislative proposals for protecting workers against the effects of excessive heat

ENGLISH LAW — In textile factories other than cotton factories 600 cubic feet of fresh air per hour per individual are required to be supplied — St R & O Rev, 1902 Vol IV

REASONABLE TEMPERATURE — This is a question of fact and may vary with the circumstances of the particular case. See Deane v Barnes, (1901) 65 J P 235, Peter v Plouden (1903) 67 J P 152. In Berret v Hardwicke (1900) 2 Q B 397 Channel J said It seems to me that the phrase workers in attendance means persons who are in fact on the premises for any substantial period and I do not think that they are any the less in attendance on the premises because they are there as customers. It does not seem to me that the purpose or object for which they are there affects the matter one way or the other

Sec 17 STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS — This combines the provisions of old S 9 (b) and S 37 (2) (f) with an addition enabling the Local Government to prescribe standards of floor space

Sec 18 STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS — Sub cls (1) and (2) reproduce the substance of old S 11. In sub cl (3) it is proposed to enable the Local Government to prescribe standards of lighting by rule for particular classes of factories

Sec 19 STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS — Sub cl (1) combines old Ss 14 and 37 (2) (s), sub cl (2) is new and is based on a recommendation of Labour Commission. The change made by the Select Committee is designed to ensure that drinking water is supplied whether standards are prescribed or not water suitable for washing shall be provided for the use of workers at suitable places and with facilities for its use according to such standards as may be prescribed

20 [Cf S 9 English Act and Ss 13 and 37 (2) (h) Old Act] For Latrines and urinals every factory sufficient latrines and urinals according to the prescribed standards shall be provided for male workers and for female workers separately of suitable patterns and at convenient places as prescribed and shall be kept in a clean and sanitary condition during all working hours

23 [Cf S 16 Old Act and S 14 English Act] (1) Every factory Means of escape shall be provided with such means of escape in the case of fire as can reasonably be required in the circumstances of each factory

(2) If it appears to the Inspector that any factory is not so provided he may serve on the manager of the factory an order in writing specifying the measures which in his opinion should be adopted and requiring them to be carried out before a specified date

(3) The means of escape shall not be obstructed while any work is being carried on in the factory

24 [Cf S 10 English Act and S 18 old Act] (1) In every factory the following shall be kept adequately fenced namely —

(a) every exposed moving part of a prime mover and every flywheel directly connected to a prime mover

(b) every hoist or lift hoist well or lift well and every trap door or similar opening near which any person may have to work or pass and

(c) every part of the machinery which the Provincial Government may prescribe

NOTES

See 20 STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS—This combines old Ss 13 and 37 (2) (h). The proviso to the former section has been omitted in accordance with a recommendation of the Labour Commission.

See 21 STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS—Cf old S 15. The maximum number of persons who may occupy a room in which the doors open inwards has been reduced to 20 and the saving in favour of factories erected before 1912 has been omitted.

See 23 ENGLISH LAW—FIRE—Factories and workshops are to be furnished with a certificate that they are provided with such means of escape in case of fire as can reasonably be required. It is the duty of the district council to ascertain whether factories and workshops are provided with such means of escape from fire and where necessary to require its provision. The County Court has jurisdiction on application to apportion the cost of complying with the requirement between the owner and the occupier of the factory or workshop in a just and equitable manner (S 14). See Monk v Arnold (1902) 1 K B 761 Horner v Franklin (1904) 2 K B 877 (1905) 1 K B 479 [S 14 English Factory and Workshop Act (1901)].

See 24 REPORT OF SELECT COMMITTEE—Sub-cl (3) has been expanded so as to apply to any fencing which may be required in pursuance of an order under S 26 (1) and to make it clear that fencing may be removed for necessary attention to machinery.

SAFETY PROVISIONS IN ENGLISH LAW—The Act contains many most valuable provisions for securing the safety of the per-

(2) If it appears to the Inspector that any other part of the machinery in a factory is dangerous if not adequately fenced, he may serve on the manager of the factory an order in writing, specifying the measures which in his opinion should be adopted and requiring them to be carried out before a specified date.

(3) All fencing required by or under this section or under sub section (1) of section 26 shall be maintained in an efficient state at all times when the workers have access to the parts required to be fenced except where they are under repair or are under examination in connexion with repair or are necessarily exposed for the purpose of cleaning or lubricating or altering the gearing or arrangements of the machinery.

(4) Such further provisions as may be prescribed shall be made for the protection from danger of persons employed in attending to the machinery in a factory.

25 [Cf Ss 17-19, English Act] If it appears to the Inspector that any building or part of a building, or any part of the ways, machinery or plant in a factory is in such a condition that it may be dangerous to human life or safety, he may serve on the manager of the factory an order in writing requiring him before a specified date—sons employed and also of the public. Thus it is provided that in every factory every hoist or teagle and every fly wheel directly connected with the steam or water or other mechanical power whether in the engine house or not and every part of any water wheel or engine worked by such power must be securely fenced. Every wheel race not otherwise secured must be securely fenced close to the edge. All dangerous parts of the machinery must either be securely fenced or be in such position or of such construction as to be equally safe to every person as they would be if securely fenced. The fencing is to be maintained in an efficient state. [As to the extent of obligation to fence see Redgrave v Lloyd (1895) 1 Q B 876 and Hindle v Britton (1897) 1 Q B 192. See also S 10 English Factory and Workshop Act (1901) and Rules.] The fact that the machinery is so situated that there is little or no danger of accidents happening is no justification for not carrying out the requirements of a statute as to fencing. [See Doel v Shepherd (1856) 25 L J Q B 124] but it is only necessary to keep up the fence when the parts required to be fenced are in motion for some manufacturing process. [Coe v Platt (1851) 6 Fx 252] but the obligation to fence machinery is absolute. [Watkins v Naval Colliery Co (1921) A C 693. Purcell v Talbot (Clement) Ltd (1914) 79 J P 1] and is unaffected by the fact that with regard to some particular machine it may be commercially impracticable or mechanically impossible to fence it securely. [Davies v Owen (Thomas) & Co (1919) 2 K B 39. See also Jackson v Mulliner Motor Body & Co (1911) 1 K B 546.] Moreover the defence of common employment is not applicable where the injury has been caused by the neglect of the employer to carry out his statutory obligations to fence his machinery.

(Britton v G W R 7 Ex 130), nor where the employer has failed to maintain or repair the fencing for his machinery. [Holmes v Clarke (1862) 31 L J Ex 356. Groves v Wimborne (Lord) (1898) 2 Q B 402] and in fact that the statute imposes a penalty for omission to fence does not bar an action for damages by the workman. (Ibid) Sub S (2) includes all machinery in a factory and it is for the Court to say if it is dangerous. [Redgrave v Lloyd (1895) 1 Q B 876.] Machinery is dangerous if in the ordinary course of human affairs danger may reasonably be anticipated from the use of it without protection. [Hindle v Britton (1897) 1 Q B 192.] See Encyclopedia of the Laws of England 2nd Ed. Title Factories. The numerous provisions in the Procedure Code for service of notices or orders are intended to make it certain that a particular process or an order of the Court is brought to the specific notice of the individual affected. A mere knowledge that proceedings may be instituted or something of that sort is not sufficient to take the place of the imperative directions in the Code as to service on the actual individual. The words in S 18 (2) serve on the Manager an order in writing mean that such an order as is referred to in Form O should be served definitely on the manager of the factory and that it should specify exactly what measures the manager is to take in order to remove the danger. But a mere note of a visit is not such an order as is contemplated therein. 85 I C 226=26 Bom L R 1245=26 Cr L J 482=1925 Bom 143. As to the necessity for order or notice by Inspector see 12 Bom L R 225.

Sec 25 STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS—Inspectors have already power under S 18-A which is substantially reproduced in Cl 27 [See now Ss 25 and 26 (1)] to issue orders requiring action to

(o) to furnish such drawings, specifications and other particulars as may be necessary to determine whether such building, ways, machinery or plant can be used with safety, or

(b) to carry out such tests as may be necessary to determine the strength or quality of any specified parts and to inform the Inspector of the results thereof

26 [Cf Ss 17 to 19, English Act and 18 A, Old Act] (1) If it appears to the Inspector that any building or part of a building or any part of the ways, machinery or plant in a factory is in such a condition that it is dangerous to human life or safety, he may serve on the manager of the factory an order in writing specifying the measures which in his opinion should be adopted, and requiring them to be carried out before a specified date

(2) If it appears to the Inspector that the use of any building or part of a building or of any part of the ways, machinery or plant in a factory involves imminent danger to human life or safety, he may serve on the manager of the factory an order in writing prohibiting its use until it has been properly repaired or altered

27 [Cf S 13, English Act] (1) No woman or child shall be allowed to clean or oil any part of the machinery of a factory while that part is in motion under power, or to work between moving parts or between fixed and moving parts of any machinery which is in motion under power

(2) The Provincial Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, prohibit, in any specified factory or class of factories the cleaning or oiling by any person of specified parts of machinery when these parts are in motion under power be taken where the machinery or plant has become dangerous and prohibiting the use of dangerous machinery or plant pending repairs in cases of necessity. But an Inspector may have reason to fear that the use of certain machinery or plant involves danger without having sufficient evidence to warrant him in issuing definite orders requiring its alteration or repair. Cl 26 embodying a recommendation of the Labour Commission, has therefore been added to enable Inspectors to secure the requisite information when necessary. See also S 33 (4).

REPORT OF SELECT COMMITTEE.—The Select Committee have provided in both sub-clauses for the service of orders in writing in order to enable appeal to be made.

Sec. 27 STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.—This is based on old S 19, but it is proposed to extend to the oiling of machinery the prohibition which at present applies to the cleaning of machinery and to extend it to work done between moving parts as well as between fixed and moving parts. As to what is cleaning machinery, see Taylor v. Mark, (1911) 1 K. B. 145.

S 28 STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.—Sub Cl (2) reproduces the substance of old S 19 A. In sub Cl (1) it is proposed to give the Local Governments general powers to exclude non working children with a view to their protection.

ENGLISH LAW.—A child is not allowed to clean in a factory any part of any machinery or any place under any machinery other than overhead mill gearing while it is in motion by the aid of steam water or other mechanical power. A young person is not allowed to clean any dangerous part of machinery while it is so in motion. Neither a woman nor a young person is allowed to clean mill gearing machinery when in motion [S 13 English Factory and Workshop Act, 1901, Pearson v. Belgian Mills Co (1896) 1 Q. B. 244]. A young person employed in a mill oiled part of the machinery during meal times contrary to orders and for his own amusement. The occupier of the mill was held to have committed an offence. [Prior v. Skidmore Spinning Co. (1898) 1 Q. B. 681. But see Robinson v. Melville (1890) 17 R. 62. See also Graves v. Durcan (1891) 1 F. 72.]

(2) If it appears to the Inspector that the presence in any factory or part of a factory of children who cannot be lawfully employed therein may be dangerous to them or injurious to their health, he may serve on the manager of the factory an order in writing directing him to prevent the admission of such children to the factory or any part of it

Prohibition of employment of women and children near cotton openers

29 [Cf S 20, Old Act and S 24, English Act] No woman or child shall be employed in any part of a factory for pressing cotton in which a cotton opener is at work.

Provided that, if the feed end of a cotton opener is in a room separated from the delivery end by a partition extending to the roof, or to such height as the Inspector may in any particular case specify in writing, women and children may be employed on the side of the partition where the feed-end is situated

30 [Cf S 34 Old Act and Ss 19 22, English Act] Where in any factory an accident occurs which causes death, or which causes any bodily injury whereby any person injured is prevented from resuming his work in the factory during the forty eight hours after the accident occurred or which is of any nature which may be prescribed in this behalf, the manager of the factory shall send notice thereof to such authorities, and in such form and within such time, as may be prescribed

31 [Cf S 50, Old Act] (1) The manager of a factory on whom an order in writing by an Inspector has been served under the provisions of this Chapter, or the occupier of the factory, may, within thirty days of the service of the order, appeal against it to the Provincial Government, or to such authority as the Provincial Government

Sec 29.—The provisions of the section are not fulfilled if there is a door made in a partition between the two portions of the room and that door is shown to be open at a particular time or even although it is shut yet it is not locked or other effective means taken to prevent its being opened by a woman or child wishing to get into the press room or prohibited area. 94 I C 949=50 B 34=27 Bom L R 1405=27 Cr L I 165=1926 Bom 57

Sec 30.—STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.—This reproduces old S. 34 with a small amendment to secure that notices are given of all accidents resulting in death or serious injury including those in which injury is caused to persons not employed in the factory.

REPORT OF THE SELECT COMMITTEE.—The small change made by the Select Committee is intended to show that reference is made to injury to a person employed on work in the factory. It might not be possible for the manager of the factory to ascertain in the case of an outsider whether he was able to resume his ordinary work if that work were outside the factory.

'PERSONS' INCLUDES PLURAL.—SINGLE ACCIDENT.—SEVERAL INJURIES.—FAILURE TO NOTIFY.—SINGLE OFFENCE.—The word "person" includes the plural and consequently where as a result of a single accident more persons than one are injured the accident cannot be split up into as many persons injured and the notice contemplated is single notice of the accident which the manager is required to submit to the authorities and therefore contravention of this rule is one offence which cannot in its turn be split up into as many offences as the number of casualties. 31 Cr I J 869=125 I C 380=1930 Lah 658. The duty to inform the authority under the Factories Act under S. 34 is laid on the manager. It is therefore primarily the manager who is to be supposed to have contravened this provision of the Act, but both the occupier and manager are made responsible jointly and severally for this contravention. A I R 1930 Lah 658.

MANAGER'S ABSENCE FROM DUTY NOT NOTIFIED.—LIABILITY FOR INFRINGEMENT.—Where the person who is charged with offences under the Factories Act was absent from his duties as manager at the time when the alleged infringements of the Act took place, he cannot be prosecuted for infringements of the Act which took place during his absence although the absence was not notified to the authorities as required by law, for which non-compliance the occupier could be held liable. 152 I C 506=38 C W N 1008=1934 Cal 730.

Sec 31: STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.—This is based on old S. 50. A minor modification has been made in the conclusion of the last sub section and provision is made for appeals in all cases in which an order in writing is issued by an Inspector.

may appoint in this behalf and the Provincial Government or appointed authority may, subject to rules made in this behalf by the Provincial Government confirm, modify or reverse the order.

(2) The appellate authority, may and if so required in the petition or appeal shall hear the appeal with the aid of assessors one of whom shall be appointed by the appellate authority and the other by such body representing the industry concerned as the Provincial Government may prescribe in this behalf.

Provided that if no assessor is appointed by such body or if the assessor so appointed fails to attend at the time and place fixed for hearing the appeal the appellate authority may, unless satisfied that the failure to attend is due to sufficient cause proceed to hear the appeal without the aid of such assessor or if it thinks fit without the aid of any assessor.

(3) In the case of an appeal against an order under section 16 the appellate authority shall and in any other case except an appeal against an order under sub section (2) of section 26 or sub section (2) of section 28 the appellate authority may suspend the order appealed against pending the decision of the appeal subject however to such conditions as to partial compliance or the adoption of temporary measures as it may choose to impose in any case.

Power of Provincial Government to make rules to supplement this Chapter 32 The Provincial Government may make rules—

(a) providing for any matter which according to any of the provisions of this Chapter is or may be prescribed

(b) requiring the managers of factories to maintain stores of first aid appliances and provide for their proper custody

(c) providing against danger arising from the use of mechanical transport in factories other than railways subject to the Indian Railways Act 1890,

(d) prescribing the manner of the service of orders under this Chapter on managers of factories

(e) regulating the procedure to be followed in presenting and hearing appeals under section 31 and the appointment and remuneration of assessors

(f) regulating the exercise by Inspectors of their powers under this Chapter and

(g) providing for any other matter which may be expedient in order to give effect to the provisions of this Chapter

33 [Cf Ss 73-79 English Act] (1) The Provincial Government may make rules requiring that in any specified factory wherein more than one hundred and fifty workers are ordinarily employed an adequate shelter shall be provided for the use of workers during periods of rest, and such rules may prescribe the standards of such shelters.

NOTES

REPORT OF SELECT COMMITTEE.—We have extended the period within which an appeal may be made and have provided against an ex parte hearing where sufficient cause exists for failure by an assessor to attend. We have also provided for the suspension of an order under S 14 until an appeal against the order is disposed of.

Sec. 32. STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.—Sub-Cl (b) (c) and (d) are new provisions and are all based on recommendations of the Labour Commission.

REPORT OF SELECT COMMITTEE.—“We have added a general rule-making power and have omitted the power to make rules regarding returns of wages. This was in any case inappropriate in a Chapter concerned with Health and Safety and is not really germane to a law regulating labour in factories.” We have provided in Cl 47 (S 47) for securing the recording of such particulars relating to wages as are needed for the purposes of this Act and consider that if general statistics of wages are to be collected, provision should be made for it by separate legislation.

Sec. 33. STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.—The Labour Commission recommended that Local Councils be empowered in general terms rooms for children,—

(2) The Provincial Government may also make rules—

(a) requiring that in any specified factory, wherein more than fifty women workers are ordinarily employed, a suitable room shall be reserved for the use of children under the age of six years belonging to such women, and

(b) prescribing the standards for such rooms and the nature of the supervision to be exercised over the children therein.

(3) The Provincial Government may also make rules, for any class of certificates of stability,— factories and for the whole or any part of the province, requiring that work on a manufacturing process carried on with the aid of power shall not be begun in any building or part of a building erected or taken into use as a factory after the commencement of this Act, until a certificate of stability in the prescribed form, signed by a person possessing the prescribed qualifications, has been sent to the Inspector.

(4) Where the ¹[Provincial Government] is satisfied that any operation hazardous operations, in a factory exposes any persons employed upon it to a serious risk of bodily injury, poisoning or disease, ²[it] may make rules applicable to any factory or class of factories in which the operation is carried on—

(a) specifying the operation and declaring it to be hazardous:

(b) prohibiting or restricting the employment of women, adolescents or children upon the operation;

(c) providing for the medical examination of persons employed or seeking to be employed upon the operation and prohibiting the employment of persons not certified as fit for such employment; and

(d) providing for the protection of all persons employed upon the operation or in the vicinity of the places where it is carried on.

orders applicable to particular classes or groups of factories relating to welfare. In addressing Local Governments the Government of India suggested that such a wide extension of rule making powers was undesirable and that it would be more in consonance with the principles underlying the Act that fresh requirements of this kind should have the approval of the Legislature. This view has been generally accepted and the Government of India have therefore included no general rule-making power relating to "welfare" in the Act. They propose [cf. Cls 21 (2), 33 (4) and sub-Cls. (1) and (2) of this clause] to empower Local Governments to make provision only for those matters to which the Labour Commission specifically directed attention."

Sub-Clause (4) is designed to enable Local Governments to secure the protection of the worker against special hazards arising from the use of particular processes. The present Act already contains in S. 19-B and the Schedule provisions designed to protect women and young persons against dangers from lead poisoning, and S. 38 A confers on the Government of India power to make rules for the disinfection of wool which may be infected with anthrax spores. But with the constant elaboration of factory processes the existing Act has already proved inadequate; and the steady accumulation of knowledge of the best methods for protection against dangers due to special processes render it desirable that Government should be able to make and to modify from time to time the necessary regulations. Sub-CI. (4) is based on a recommendation of the Labour Commission, and is designed along with the provisions of Cls. 26 and 27, to protect workers against dangers arising from the use for factory purposes of unstable buildings. It is limited to new factories and extensions.

REPORT OF SELECT COMMITTEE.—"We think that provision for a children's room is necessary only in the case of children under the age of six, and have made the necessary alteration in sub-CI. (2). Sub CI. (3) has been recast so as to confine the need for the certificate here provided for to factories erected or taken into use after this provision comes into force."

CHAPTER IV

RESTRICTIONS ON WORKING HOURS OF ADULTS.

34 [Cf Old section 27] No adult worker shall be allowed to work in a factory for more than fifty four hours in any week, or, where the factory is a seasonal one for more than sixty hours in any week

Weekly hours
Provided that an adult worker in a non seasonal factory engaged in work which for technical reasons must be continuous throughout the day may work for fifty six hours in any week

Weekly holiday
35 [Cf Old section 22] (1) No adult worker shall be allowed to work in a factory on a Sunday unless—

(a) he has had or will have a holiday for a whole day on one of the three days immediately before or after that Sunday and

(b) the manager of the factory has before the Sunday or the substituted day, whichever is earlier—

(i) delivered a notice to the office of the Inspector of his intention to require the worker to work on the Sunday and of the day which is to be substituted and

(ii) displayed a notice to that effect in the factory.

Provided that no substitution shall be made which will result in any worker working for more than ten days consecutively without a holiday for a whole day

(2) Notices given under sub section (1) may be cancelled by a notice delivered to the office of the Inspector and a notice displayed in the factory not later than the day before the Sunday or the holiday to be cancelled whichever is earlier

(3) where in accordance with the provisions of sub section (1), any worker works on a Sunday and has had a holiday on one of the three days immediately before it that Sunday shall for the purpose of calculating his weekly hours of work, be included in the preceding week.

Daily hours
36 [Cf Old section 28] No adult worker shall be allowed to work in a factory for more than ten hours in any day

Provided that a male adult worker in a seasonal factory may work for eleven hours in any day

Sec. 35 STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.—Cf old S 22, sub Cl (2) providing for the cancellation of notices on the part of the employer is new.

REPORT OF SELECT COMMITTEE.—We have provided for delivery of the notice under sub Cl (1) (b) at the office of the Inspector instead of to the Inspector personally.

Secs 36 and 43.—Where an Inspector of Factories approves a system of working a particular factory he has power under S 21 of General Clauses Act to cancel the approval. If an appeal is pending from the order of cancellation it is not desirable to institute a criminal prosecution in respect of the factory having been worked in contravention during the pendency of the appeal. 59 I C 8, 7=22 Cr L J 13 (Lah.)

Sec 37.—This is based on old S 21, but certain changes have been made. That section is defective in that, where two intervals of half an hour are given, a manager

(b) so that no period shall exceed five hours and so that no worker shall work for more than five hours before he has had an interval for rest of at least half an hour or for more than eight and a half hours before he has had at least two such intervals

38 [New] The periods of work of an adult worker in a factory shall be so arranged that along with his intervals for rest under section 37, they shall not spread over more than thirteen hours in any day save with the permission of the Provincial Government and subject to such conditions as it may impose either generally or in the case of any particular factory

39 [Cf Old Act sections 26 and 36] (1) There shall be displayed and correctly maintained in every factory in accordance with the provisions of sub-section (2) of section 76 a Notice of Periods for Work for Adults showing clearly the periods within which adult workers may be required to work

(2) The periods shown in the Notice required by sub-section (1) shall be fixed beforehand in accordance with the following provisions of this section and shall be such that workers working for those periods would not be working to contravention of any of the provisions of sections 34, 35 36 37 and 38

(3) Where all the adult workers in a factory are required to work within the same periods, the manager of the factory shall fix those periods for such workers generally

(4) Where all the adult workers in a factory are not required to work within the same periods the manager of the factory shall classify them into groups according to the nature of their work

(5) For each group which is not required to work on a system of shifts the manager of the factory shall fix the periods within which the group may be required to work.

who closes his factory before the second interval is due infringes the law. In addition, the present law makes the request of the employees concerned necessary before the rest interval can be split up into two half hours and places two additional limitations on the reduction of the interval to half an hour where the working day is 8½ hours or less viz. the sanction of the Local Government must be obtained and this reduction can only be permitted in the case of male workers. It is proposed to remove all these restrictions. With a short working day it is better that the extra half hour should be spent in the worker's home than in the precincts of the factory and this applies with if anything more force to women than to men. Old S 57 which allowed in certain circumstances unexpected interruptions of work to count as intervals has been omitted. The Labour Commission recommended that it should also be possible to split up the intervals into periods of less than half an hour. But as there is virtually no demand for this refinement and its introduction would add appreciably to administrative difficulties it has not been included "Statement of Objects and Reasons

Sec. 38 — This is based on a recommendation of the Labour Commission and is designed to prevent the hours of work being so arranged that the worker does not get a reasonably long period away from the factory on each day "Statement of Objects and Reasons

REPORT OF SELECT COMMITTEE — We have omitted the concluding words as unnecessary for the protection of the workers and likely to cause difficulty in changing shifts and have provided for the relaxation of the clause in cases where the Local Government considers this desirable

Sec. 39 — This embodies the principle of old S 26 but the opportunity has been taken, by inserting separate sub-sections relating to the various methods by which factory hours are arranged to make it clear that hours need not be fixed separately for each individual worker "Statement of Objects and Reasons

Secs 39 and 40 — This is based on S 36. In order to prevent the evasion of the Act,

(6) Where any group is required to work on a system of shifts and the relays are not to be subject to predetermined periodical changes of shift, the manager of the factory shall fix the periods within which each relay of the group may be required to work.

(7) Where any group is to work on a system of shifts and the relays are to be subject to predetermined periodical changes of shifts, the manager of the factory shall draw up a scheme of shifts whereunder the periods within which any relay of the group may be required to work and the relay which will be working at any time of the day shall be known for any day.

(8) The Provincial Government may make rules prescribing forms for the Notice of Periods for Work for Adults and the manner in which it shall be maintained.

40. [Cf. Old Act, section 36.] (1) A copy of the Notice referred to in sub-section (1) of section 39 shall be sent in duplicate to the Inspector within fourteen days after the commencement of this Act, or, if the factory begins work after the commencement of this Act, before the day on which it begins work.

(2) Any proposed change in the system of work in a factory which will necessitate a change in the Notice shall be notified to the Inspector in duplicate

it is proposed to provide that changes should be notified to the Inspector before they are made, and that his previous sanction should be required if a change has to be made within a week of the previous change.

REPORT OF SELECT COMMITTEE.—We have re-drafted and rearranged the provisions contained in Cls. 40 and 41 of the Bill (Ss. 39 and 40 of this Act) as introduced with a view to expressing more clearly the intention of those clauses. The latter part of sub-Cl. (4), Cl. 39, formerly sub-Cl. (3) of Cl. 40, has been omitted as not relevant to the preparation of the notice, and as covered by the provisions of Cl. (41).

Sec. 39: OBJECT OF THE SECTION.—The main object of the section is not to ensure that the manager and no one else should fix the hours but that the hours should be fixed and regular hours of employment are to be fixed; they are not to be subject to sudden or casual alteration at any one's discretion or caprice. 58 Bom. 137=35 Cr.L.J. 542=35 Bom L.R. 1167=1934 Bom. 43.

SCOPE OF SECTION.—CHANGING SYSTEM OF "SPECIAL HOURS"—LEGALITY.—A continuously changing system of hours "specified" is something altogether different from what is contemplated by a fixation of special hours. The former course is not permitted by the section. 134 I.C. 881=35 C.W.N. 1108=1931 C. 639.

WORK OUTSIDE FIXED HOURS.—Where men work during a time which is admittedly outside the time fixed for employment of each person employed in the factory, the owner of the factory is guilty under the section. 52 A. 444=31 Cr.L.J. 1220=1930 A.L.J. 459=1930 A. 214.

Secs. 39, 42 and 60.—Failure to comply with old S. 36 would not in itself amount to a breach of the provisions of this section or justify the conviction under S. 60. 58 B. 137=35 Cr.L.J. 542=35 Bom L.R. 1167=1934 B. 43. A factory which is exempt from the provisions of S. 37 under the rules framed under S. 43 (2) (d) cannot be held to be exempt also from the provisions of Ss. 39 and 40. Therefore where there is a breach of the provisions of S. 42 read with S. 39, the fact that under the rules the factory is exempt from the provisions of S. 37 does not afford any defence to a prosecution under S. 60 (b) (i). POWER OF CHANGING WORKING HOURS CANNOT BE EXERCISED BY MANAGER AFTER MILL STARTS WORKING.—The manager and he alone can change the working hours on complying with the conditions stated in old S. 36 (3) of the Act, but that power of change cannot be exercised by the manager after the mill starts working on the period fixed by him. Any change subsequently made therein could not be covered by the change in the standing orders as contemplated by S. 36 (3), but would be an unauthorised departure from the fixed period on a particular day. Although the hours fixed on the night in question were 12-30 A.M. to 5-30 A.M. the mills stopped work.

object is to secure for women a night rest of not less than 11 hours which is the period prescribed by the International Convention relating to this subject and recommended by the Labour Commission. The latter's proposal to extend the period within which a factory may employ woman to the hours between 5 A.M. and 10 P M. has been strongly criticised and is not embodied in the Bill. The first proviso is based on old sec 51 (2) and the second on a recommendation of the Labour Commission. It is applicable only to seasonal factories, and is intended to enable Local Governments to enforce the legal hours in rural factories where repeated infringements have shown the necessity for further limitation. Its application will not reduce the maximum hours for which women may work, but will limit further the hours within which they may be employed. Sub-clause (2) is based on old S 32 A (b) but provides for exemption by rules instead of by notification. Sub-clause (3) has the same objects as sub-clause (5) of clause 43.

—Objects and Reasons—

GIVING FACTORIES.—All that the law authorises the Inspector to do in the case of a ginning factory is to express his opinion and not to issue orders. The Inspector has no right to issue a general prohibition against the employment of women at night without going into the question whether the staff is sufficient. 61 I C 22=19 A L J 503=22 Cr L J 369 =1921 All 229

See 46.—"This is a new provision designed to meet the difficulties of factories working on shifts. For example, a factory worker who works up till 4 A.M. on Sunday morning and then gets 40 hours of rest, commencing work again at 8 P.M. on Monday night has at present to be exempted from the provisions relating to the weekly holiday."—Objects and Reasons

REPORT OF SELECT COMMITTEE.—"The rigid application of the clause as it originally stood would have made certain schemes of shifts which involved no additional hardships on the workers impossible in continuous process factories and we have therefore inserted a proviso enabling the week to be reckoned from the beginning instead of the end of the final night shift."

POWERS OF INSPECTOR.—An owner of a factory is prohibited from employing women for night work except with the opinion of the Inspector of Factories and one who does so, is guilty of an infringement of the Act. But the Inspector has no right to issue a general prohibition against the employment of women on night duty. 19 A L J 503=22 Cr L J 369=61 I C 22.

Sec 43 —“Sub-clause (1) is based on old Ss 29, sub-clause (2) is based on old Ss 30 (1) and 30 (3), 32 and 32 A (a). The main change proposed is that these exemptions should in future be made by rules under the Act and not merely by notification. In addition it is proposed that exemptions should not be granted from the weekly holiday in the case of workers engaged in intermittent work, and the definition of such work has been made more specific.” The remaining sub-clauses are new. Sub-clause (3) has been found to be necessary in order to enable the factory management to avail itself of other exemptions that may be given. Sub-clause (4) provides for the fixing of absolute limits to overtime, a matter now covered by rules under the Act. Sub-clause (5) embodies a recommendation of the Labour Commission and is designed to ensure that exemptions and the conditions upon which they are granted are reviewed at intervals of not less than three years.—Objects and Reasons

REPORT OF SELECT COMMITTEE —“We have added a power which seems clearly necessary to exempt workers specified in item (d) of sub-clause (2) from the provisions fixing a weekly maximum of hours of work. Under the clause as it previously stood it would have been impossible to permit a worker in a continuous process factory to stay on after his 56 hours if his relief failed to appear promptly. We have omitted reference to maximum limits for daily hours of work in sub-clause (4), as the weekly limitation on hours should give adequate protection. The concluding words of sub-clause (5) and of clause 45 (3) have been omitted so as to make it possible to bring rules into force from any date that may be specified in them.”

Sec 43 (2) (d) —Exemption of a factory from provisions of S 37, under rules made under this clause, does not operate as exemption under the provisions of Ss 39 and 40 also. Where therefore several hands are found working at a time shown as period of rest in the notice displayed under S 39 (1) there is clear breach of terms of S 42, and an offence under S 40 (1) (i) is committed. Exemption from provisions of S 37 is no valid defence. 11 R 1937 Bom 175=38 Bom L R 1181=38 Cr L J 304=1917 Bom 52. (2) The Provincial Government, or subject to the control of the Provincial Government the Chief Inspector, may, by written order, exempt, on such conditions as it or he may deem expedient, any or all of the adult workers in any factory, or group or class of factories, from any or all of the provisions of sections 34, 35, 36, 37, 38, 39 and 40, on the ground that the exemption is required to enable the factory or factories to deal with an exceptional press of work

The latter's proposal to extend the period within which a factory may employ woman to the hours between 5 A M and 10 P M has been strongly criticised and is not embodied in the Bill. The first proviso is based on old sec 51 (2) and the second on a recommendation of the Labour Commission. It is applicable only to seasonal factories and is intended to enable Local Governments to enforce the legal hours in rural factories where repeated infringements have shown the necessity for further limitation. Its application will not reduce the maximum hours for which women may work, but will limit further the hours within which they may be employed. Sub-clause (2) is based on old S 32 A (b), but provides for exemption by rules instead of by notification. Sub-clause (3) has the same objects as sub-clause (5) of clause 43.

Objects and Reasons

GINNING FACTORIES.—All that the law authorises the Inspector to do in the case of a ginning factory is to express his opinion and not to issue orders. The Inspector has no right to issue a general prohibition against the employment of women at night without going into the question whether the staff is sufficient. 61 I C 225=19 A L J 503=22 Cr L J 369 =1921 All 229

Sec 46.—"This is a new provision designed to meet the difficulties of factories working on shifts. For example, a factory worker who works up till 4 A.M. on Sunday morning and then gets 40 hours of rest, commencing work again at 8 P.M. on Monday night has at present to be exempted from the provisions relating to the weekly holiday."—Objects and Reasons

REPORT OF SELECT COMMITTEE.—"The rigid application of the clause as it originally stood would have made certain schemes of shifts which involved no additional hardships on the workers impossible in continuous process factories and we have therefore inserted a proviso enabling the week to be reckoned from the beginning instead of the end of the final night shift."

POWERS OF INSPECTOR.—An owner of a factory is prohibited from employing women for night work except with the opinion of the Inspector of Factories and one who does so, is guilty of an infringement of the Act. But the Inspector has no right to issue a general prohibition against the employment of women on night duty. 19 A L J 503=22 Cr L J 369=61 I.C. 225.

when such shift begins and that the hours worked before midnight shall be counted towards the ensuing day

Extra pay for overtime 47 [Cf Old Act, section 31] (1) Where a worker in any factory works for more than sixty hours in any week, or where a worker in a factory other than a seasonal factory works for more than ten hours in any day, he shall be entitled in respect of the overtime worked to pay at the rate of one and-a-half times his ordinary rate of pay

(2) Where a worker in a factory other than a seasonal factory works for more hours in any week than are permitted under section 34, he shall be entitled, in respect of the overtime worked excluding any overtime in respect of which he is entitled to extra pay under sub-section (1), to pay at the rate of one-and-a-quarter times his ordinary rate of pay

(3) Where any workers are paid on a piece rate basis, the Provincial Government in consultation with the industry concerned may, for the purposes of this section, fix time rates as nearly as possible equivalent to the average rate of earnings of those workers, and the rates so fixed shall be deemed to be the ordinary rates of pay of those workers for the purposes of this section

(4) The Provincial Government may prescribe the registers that shall be maintained in a factory for the purpose of securing compliance with the provisions of this section

Restriction on double employment 48 No adult worker shall be allowed to work in any factory on any day on which he has already been working in any other factory, save in such circumstances as may be prescribed

Control of overlapping shifts 49 The Provincial Government may make rules providing that in any specified class or classes of factories work shall not be carried on by a system of shifts so arranged that more than one relay of workers is engaged in work of the same kind at the same time save with the permission of the Provincial Government and subject to such conditions as it may impose, either generally or in the case of any particular factory

SPECIAL PROVISIONS FOR ADOLESCENTS AND CHILDREN

Prohibition of employment of young children 50 [Cf section 62, Eng Act] No child who has not completed his twelfth year shall be allowed to work in any factory

NOTES

Sec 47 —“Sub cls (1) and (2) replace old S 31 and embody the Labour Commission's recommendation that work in excess of 60 hours in the week should be paid at the rate of time and a half. It is proposed to make similar provision for work done in excess of the daily limit of hours in a non-seasonal factory and in sub-cl (3), to provide for similar payment for all work done by virtue of an exemption from the weekly holiday” —Objects and Reasons

REPORT OF SELECT COMMITTEE —“The small

change in sub cl (2) expresses more accurately the intention of this provision. We have omitted sub cl (3) of the clause as it stood in the Bill when introduced on the ground that payment at overtime rates is not justified when the worker gets a holiday in exchange for the Sunday or substituted day. (2) The certifying surgeon, after examination, may grant to such person, in the prescribed form,—

(a) a certificate of fitness to work in a factory as a child, if he is satisfied that such person has completed his twelfth year, that he has attained the prescribed physical standards (if any), and that he is fit for such work, or

(b) a certificate of fitness to work in a factory as an adult, if he is satisfied that such person has completed his fifteenth year and is fit for a full day's work in a factory

(3) A certifying surgeon may revoke any certificate granted under subsection (2) if, in his opinion, the holder of it is no longer fit to work in the capacity stated therein in a factory

(4) Where a certifying surgeon or a practitioner authorized under subsection (2) of section 12 refuses to grant a certificate or a certificate of the kind requested, or revokes a certificate, he shall, if so requested by any person who could have applied for the certificate, state his reasons in writing for so doing

53 [Cf Ss 63 67, Eng Act.] (1) An adolescent who has been granted a certificate of fitness to work in a factory as an adult under clause (b) of sub section (2) of section 52, and who, while at work in a factory, carries a token giving reference to the certificate shall be deemed to be an adult for all the purposes of Chapter IV

(2) An adolescent who has not been granted a certificate of fitness to work in a factory as an adult, under sub section (2) of section 52, shall, notwithstanding his age, be deemed to be a child for the purposes of this Act

54 [Wide Old S 23 (b), S 1 (2) and S 25; also Ss 23-30 of the Eng Act.] (1) No child shall be allowed to work in a factory for more than five hours in any day

(2) The hours of work of a child shall be so arranged that they shall not spread over more than seven and-a-half hours in any day

NOTES

Sec 52 MADRAS AMENDMENT.—For sub-S (1) of S 52 of the Factories Act, 1934, the following sub-section shall be substituted namely:—“(1) A certifying surgeon shall on the application of any young person or his parent or guardian accompanied by a document signed by the manager of a factory that such person will be employed therein if certified to be fit for work in a factory or on the application of the manager of the factory in which any young person wishes to work, examine such person and ascertain his fitness for work in a factory.” (Madras Act VI of 1941)

(a) there is any contravention—

Sects 60 to 69—These embody with the necessary consequential additions secs 41 to 44-A of the Old Act Sec 43-A which provided for the grant of compensation to injured workers out of fines has been omitted as adequate provision has been made by the Workmen's Compensation Act (Objects and Reasons).

REPORT OF SELECT COMMITTEE.—“We have re cast in a more succinct form the list of offences contained in the clause. We have also provided both here and in cl 65 that where the manager and occupier were held jointly responsible for the breach of the law, the combined penalty shall not be in excess of the maximum penalty that might be inflicted on either of them.”

Sec 60 CONSTRUCTION OF SECTION.—The section is penal one it ought to be construed strictly. The occupier and manager both or either of them can be required to pay a fine which may extend to Rs 200 (now Rs 500) but between the two they cannot be required to pay any sum exceeding that limit for each offence. (43 Bom 220=1921 Bom, 322) See now the change in the present Code explained in the Report of the Select Committee. See also sec 65 infra. Factory Act should be properly enforced for protection of workmen but on the other hand one must also bear in mind that the employer's position has to be considered too. It may be that without any negligence on their part defects will exist in their factories but if they are to be proceeded against in a Criminal Court for alleged negligence then it would seem only fair that the matter should be clearly brought home to them. 26 Bom L R 124=26 Cr L J 482=1925 Bom, 143. LIABILITY OF MANAGER AND OCCUPIER JOINT AND SEVERAL.—The Act provides that both the occupier and manager shall be jointly and severally liable to fine for any of the offences committed under the Act. This joint and several fine imposed on both the occupier and manager is irrespective of the fact as to which of the two had committed the offence. The duty to inform the authority under the Act is laid on the manager. It is therefore primarily the manager who is to be supposed to have contravened his provision of the Act but both the occupier and manager are made responsible jointly and severally for this contravention. 31 Cr L J 869 (2)=123 I C 380 (2)=1930 Lah 688. See also 55 Bom 366=32 Cr L J 1063=33 Bom L R 309. See also Report of Select Committee. The word “occupier” denotes a person who is either a proprietor or otherwise entitled to be in possession of the factory and control its working. He may or may not actually occupy the building and even if he carries on the work through an agent he does not cease to be the occupier. He cannot therefore be any one who is a mere servant charged with specific duties either in regard to the control of the machinery workmen or office. A mukaddam is really a foreman of the operatives and a servant of the factory. He is neither a managing agent nor a person authorised to represent the occupier. He cannot therefore be regarded as an occupier or manager. He cannot be tried jointly with the manager for an offence under sec 41 (a) of the old Act but can be tried under S 42 (1) on the complaint of the manager. 34 Cr L J 821=29 Nag L R 72=1932 Nag 100. PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE.—Where the manager is prosecuted under sec 60 (b) (i) read with sec 42 for allowing work to be done beyond the prescribed period it is no defence to plead that the accused acted in good faith honestly believing in the clock in the factory to be correct and that he is prosecuted by sec 81. It is enough in a prosecution under the Act to prove that the accused has infringed the Act or rules under the Act and it is not necessary to show that accused of sec 42 of the old Factories Act (1911) indicates that one proceeding is split up into two proceedings and while the manager or occupier is accused of having committed an offence under the Act he is also a complainant on his complaint against the other person or persons he has brought in In the proceedings in which the manager or the occupier is the complainant he is liable to be cross examined by the other person or persons who has or have been brought before the Court on his complaint This must mean that the manager or occupier qua complainant must give evidence himself There is no substance in the objection that the manager or occupier who initially is charged with an offence against the Act cannot go into the witness box and give evidence himself because he goes into the witness box as an accused in the case originally started against him but in his own right as a complainant on his complaint against the other person or persons whom he has brought in It is not a material irregularity to dispose of the two matters by one judgment or to record the evidence in the two matters together 30 Cr I J 818=56 C 400=32 C W N 922=1928 C 557 Where a complaint is lodged by an accused under sec 71 of the Act the Factory Inspector as complainant in the original complaint, can cross examine the accused when he goes into the witness box to prove his own complaint The effect of sec 71 is that when an occupier or manager is charged and the Inspector proves that an offence has been committed a special statutory defence open to

(a) that he has used due diligent to enforce the execution of this Act, and

(b) that the said other person committed the offence in question without his knowledge, consent or connivance, that other person shall be convicted of the offence and shall be liable to the like fine as if he were the occupier or manager, and the occupier or manager shall be discharged from any liability under this Act

(2) When it is made to appear to the satisfaction of the Inspector at any time prior to the institution of the proceedings—

(a) that the occupier or manager of the factory has used all due diligence to enforce the execution of this Act, and

(b) by what person the offence has been committed and

(c) that it has been committed without the knowledge consent or connivance of the occupier or manager, and in contravention of his orders, the Inspector shall proceed against the person whom he believes to be the actual offender without first proceeding against the occupier or manager of the factory, and such person shall be liable to the like fine as if he were the occupier or manager

PROCEDURE—DISCHARGE OF OWNER OR OCCUPIER AND CONVICTION OF ACTUAL OFFENDER ON LATTER PLEADING GUILTY—LEGALITY—If a complaint is made by the Inspector of Factories against the manager or occupier of a factory charging him with an offence under the Factories Act, the latter is entitled under S 71 of that Act to complain against the actual offender and if he does so the actual offender is given notice and brought before the Court and the trial proceeds as against both persons complained against. The carriage of proceedings is with the original complainant on whom the onus lies of proving that the offence has been committed. Both parties complained against are entitled to cross examine the prosecution witnesses at this stage and to lead evidence to disprove the charge but being accused persons they would not be entitled to give evidence themselves. If the prosecution fails to prove the offence both the accused must be acquitted. If the offence is proved the Court should record an order to that effect and the manager or occupier is guilty under the Act. S 71 however affords him an opportunity of escaping liability provided he can give satisfactory proof of the matters set out in Cls (a) and (b) of S 71 (1) viz, that he had used due diligence and that the actual offender had committed the offence without his knowledge. The onus of proof however is now shifted to the manager or occupier and he is entitled to call evidence or to give evidence himself. The actual offender would be entitled to call evidence but not give evidence himself. The difference in procedure being due to the fact that the actual offender occupies the role only of an accused whereas the occupier or manager at this stage besides being an accused, has to discharge the onus of positive proof required by S 71 (1) (a) and (b) and in all probability he alone is capable of proving certain facts of which proof is thereby required. The Crown which has initiated the proceedings and has throughout retained the carriage of the proceedings, is called at this stage to cross-examine the occupier or manager if he gives evidence and any witnesses called by him in support of his charge, and to call rebutting evidence. The Magistrate has no power to convict the actual offender or to exercise the jurisdiction conferred upon it by or under the Government of India Act, 1935, It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title 1 This Act may be called THE FEDERAL COURT ACT, 1937

THE FEDERAL COURT ACT (XXI OF 1941).

PREFATORY NOTE STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.—The Government of India (Adaptation of Laws) Order, 1937, added Ss. 111-A and O 45, r 17 to the Civil Procedure Code thereby made the procedure of Privy Council Appeals applicable to Federal Court Appeals. The aforesaid procedure is cumbersome and dilatory, and for appeals to a Court six thousand miles away and should not be applicable to a Court of appeal situated in India. Moreover, the addition of these provisions to the Civil Procedure Code have derogated from the powers of the Federal Court to regulate its own practice and procedure under section 214 of the Government of India Act and has been commented on unfavourably by the Federal Court in its decision in case No. 13 of 1939, Lachmeshwar Prasad Shukul v Basdeo Chaudhury. It is desirable therefore both from the points of view of simplifying procedure in Federal Court Appeals and restoring to the Federal Court its powers to regulate practice and procedure that the new additions to the Civil Procedure Code should cease to be operative. PART III

ADAPTATIONS OF THE INDIAN INCOME TAX ACT, 1922, TO PROVIDE FOR THE SUMMARY ASSESSMENTS OF INCOME TAX ON TOTAL INCOMES OF LESS THAN RS 2000

1 The Income tax Officer may, save where he has served a notice under sub section (2) of S 22 of the Indian Income tax Act 1922, make a summary assessment of the income of an assessee to the best of his judgment and shall serve on the assessee a notice of demand in a form to be prescribed by the Central Board of Revenue, and such notice shall be deemed to be a notice of demand under S 29 of that Act

2 Any assessee in respect of whom such summary assessment has been made, may, within thirty days of receipt of the notice of demand make an application to the Income-tax Officer for the cancellation or revision of the assessment, and the Income tax Officer shall after examining any accounts and documents and hearing any evidence which the assessee may produce, and such other evidence as the Income tax Officer may require determine by order in writing the amount of the tax, if any, payable by the assessee, and such determination shall be final

Provided that, if any assessee making such application files therewith a return of his income under sub section (2) of section 22 of the Indian Income tax Act 1922 the application shall be deemed to be a return under that sub section and shall be dealt with accordingly

3 A copy of an order under paragraph 2 shall be served on the assessee to whom it relates and shall be deemed to be a notice of demand under section 29 of the Indian Income tax Act, 1922

4 The above procedure shall apply also to the assessment and collection during the financial year 1934 35 of incomes of Rs 1000 and upward and less than Rs 2000 which have escaped assessment in the financial year 1933 1934

THE INDIAN FINANCE ACT, 1935

[N B Repealed in part by Act XX of 1937]

Statement of Objects and Reasons — The object of this Bill is to continue for a further period of one year certain duties and taxes imposed under the Indian Finance Act, 1934, which would otherwise cease to have effect from the 1st April 1935 to reduce the income tax on incomes of Rs 1000 or upwards but less than Rs 2000, to reduce the surcharges on income tax and super tax

* * * * *

4 Clause 5 provides for the continuance for a further period of one year of the existing rates of income tax and super tax with the following alterations —

(a) The rate of income tax when the total income is Rs 1000 or upwards but is less than Rs 1500 is reduced from two pies to 1½ pies,

(b) The rate of income tax when the total income is Rs 1500 or upwards but less than Rs 2000 is reduced from four pies to 2 2/3 pies and

(c) The surcharges on income tax and super tax are reduced from one-fourth to one sixth. As it is proposed to retain the tax on incomes of Rs 1000 and upwards but below Rs 2000 per annum at a reduced rate clause 5 (4) provides for the continuance of the existing procedure for the assessment of such incomes which has already been approved by the Legislature

Clause 5 (5) provides that incomes from salaries and interest on securities should be finally taxed for purposes of income tax and not super tax at the rates applicable to a total income of like amount which was in force at the time when the taxation at source on these incomes took place otherwise salary earners for example will be able not only to secure the advantage of reduced rates during 1935 36 but also to obtain a refund of part of the tax which had been deducted from their salaries during 1934 35. It also makes a similar provision for purposes of refunds under sub section (1) or sub section (3) of section 48 in respect of dividends declared in the year ending 31st March 1935, or of payments made in the said year of salaries or of interest on securities. These provisions form the counterpart of a concession that has been allowed from time to time in the past when rates of income tax were being enhanced

The following Act which has been assented to by the Central Government under the provisions of clause (b) of sub section (1) of section 67-B of the Government of India Act, and has been expressed to be made by the Central Government under the provisions of sub section (2) of the same section, is published in the Official Gazette, dated the 27th April, 1935

Sec 2 EFFECT OF TRANSFER OF TERRITORY—CESSION OF TERRITORY BY BRITAIN TO ANOTHER STATE—BRITISH SUBJECT CEASES TO BE SUCH ON CESSION—A relinquishment by the Government of a territory is not only a relinquishment of the right to soil or territory but also of the rights over the inhabitants of the country. The distinction between a right of election of which sovereign he will become the subject and the method by which a man can leave a newly ceded territory and remain within the allegiance of his former sovereign seems somewhat fine but the distinction is one between a mere assertion of elected allegiance and actual conduct clearly showing such an election. It is not enough for an inhabitant to assert when the question arises that he has elected to remain within the allegiance of his former sovereign there must be conduct on his part such as leaving the ceded territory and going to reside permanently in his former sovereign's dominions to indicate his previous election. Any inhabitant of the ceded or separated territory has not the right to remain an inhabitant of it and at the same time to retain the allegiance and nationality of the State which ceded or permitted the separation. The common law of England embodying the above rules is the law for the time being in force in British India within the meaning of the proviso to S 1 90 I C 310=1925 B 489 [18 Cal 620 (P C) and 42 Mad 589 (P C) Foll]. The applicant was born in Ramdupati which was in British territory. In that village he had some lands and owned a house in which his family resided permanently. He however came to Bombay for purposes of trade. Ramdupati was subsequently ceded to the

Maharaja of Benares by the British Government. The applicant continued to live in Bombay for trade before as well as after the cession. Secs 3 and 3 A PROCEDURE—Government must issue orders about detention or release or removal without delay—Commissioner of Police cannot do any such thing without such orders 85 I C 138=49 B 222=1925 B 139

Secs 3 and 4—Act III of 1864 is not ultra vires of the Governor General of India in Council 18 B 636 Per Bayley J—The Act applies to all foreigners although their residence in Bombay may not be likely to affect or endanger the peace and security of British India (Ibid) Per Starling J—The Government would be the sole Judges of what was necessary for the peace and security of British India and if they acted in accordance with the letter of the Act the High Court could not enquire into the sufficiency or otherwise of their reasons for so acting (Ibid) A warrant issued under Ss 3 and 4 of Act III of 1864 should not comprise two distinct orders one to the foreigner to remove himself from British India the other to arrest him in case it is not duly obeyed. There should be a separate order directing him to remove himself from British India which should be duly served upon him. Then, in case of his refusal or neglect to comply with its terms there should be a further order by the Government authorizing his arrest and detention in jail. The persons named in the warrant should be described with sufficient certainty and particularity. The particular route to be specified in the order referred to in S 3 of Act III of 1864 is intended to be a route in British India, and

(2) Any officer issuing a warrant under sub-section (1) may, in his discretion, direct by endorsement on the warrant that if such foreigner executes a bond with or without sureties for his attendance at a specified place and time, the person to whom the warrant is directed shall take such security and release such foreigner from custody.

(3) Any person executing a warrant under sub-section (1) may search for and apprehend the foreigner named in such warrant; and, subject to any direction issued under sub-section (2), shall forthwith cause such foreigner when apprehended to be produced before the officer issuing the warrant.

THE INDIAN FOREIGN MARRIAGE ACT (XIV OF 1903)¹

PREFATORY NOTE—This Act is intended to give effect to Foreign Marriages Order in Council (see Statement of Objects and Reasons)

The following are the remarks of the Honble Mr. Arundale in moving for leave to introduce the Bill—On several occasions difficulties have arisen in connection with the intended marriage of British subjects under the provisions of the Foreign Marriage Act and Foreign Marriages Order in Council 1892 in cases where one of the parties has been resident in India

The Foreign Marriages Order in Council requires that in cases where one of the parties has not been resident within the district of the Marriage Officer who is to celebrate the marriage that party shall produce a certificate from the Marriage Officer of the place in which he or she has been the resident and that proper notice has been given of the marriage but these requirements of the Order in Council relate only to foreign countries and to the United Kingdom while no instructions are given concerning notice of marriage by persons resident in India

After some correspondence between the Secretary of State and the Government of India an Order in Council was issued on the 12th March 1903 to the following effect—

1. The following further modifications of the requirements of the Foreign Marriage Act, 1892 as to residence and notice which appear to His Majesty to be consistent with the observance of due precautions against the solemnization of clandestine marriages shall have effect in cases where one only of the parties has dwelt within the district of the Marriage Officer and the other of such parties has dwelt in a Colony or in India that is to say—

(i) If the Marriage Officer is satisfied that such notice has been given by the party dwelling in such Colony or in India as may be provided by any law in that Colony or of the Governor General of India in Council (as the case may be) giving effect to this order

(ii) In any such case the oath affirmation or declaration required by section 7 of the Foreign Marriage Act shall be made subject to the modifications thereof to which effect is given by Art. 6 of the Foreign Marriages Order in Council 1892

2. A law enacted by the Legislature of a Colony or by the Governor General of India in Council shall be deemed to give effect to this Order if it makes provision (in whatever terms expressed) as follows

(i) That a notice of a marriage intended to be solemnized under the Foreign Marriage Act may be given by one of the parties intending such marriage who has had his or her usual place of abode for three consecutive weeks immediately preceding in some place in that Colony or in India (as the case may be) to such Marriage Registrar or other officer as may be designated by the law in that behalf

(ii) that such notice shall be published either by proclamation of bans or in such other manner as the law may provide and

(iii) that such Marriage Registrar or other officer, unless he is aware of any impediment or objection which should obstruct the solemnization of the marriage shall on payment of such fee if any as the law may provide give a certificate that the said notice has been so given and published as aforesaid

'This Bill which I beg for leave to introduce is intended to give effect to this Order in Council. It extends to the whole of British India, and applies to all British subjects and to all servants of the King, whether British subjects or not, in the territories of any Native Prince or State in India. The Bill is purely permissive and nothing in it affects a valid marriage solemnized outside its provisions.'

(See Proceedings of the Council of the Governor General of India dated 28th August, 1903.)

[23rd October, 1903]

THE FOREIGN RELATIONS ACT (XII OF 1932) *

[8th April, 1932]

Short title and extent

1 (1) This Act may be called THE FOREIGN RELATIONS ACT, 1932

(2) It extends to the whole of British India, including British Baluchistan and the Sonthal Parganas

2 Where an offence falling under Chapter XXI of the Indian Penal Code is committed against a Ruler of a State outside but adjoining India, or against the consort or son or principal minister of such Ruler, the Central Government may make, or authorise any person to make, a complaint in writing of such offence, and notwithstanding anything contained in S 198 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, any Court competent in other respects to take cognizance of such offence may take cognizance thereof on such complaint

3 [* * * * *]
The provisions of Ss 99 A to 99 G of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, and of Ss 27 B to 27 D of the Indian Post Office Act 1898 shall apply in the case of any book, newspaper or other document containing matter which is defamatory of the Ruler of a State outside but adjoining India or of the consort or son or principal minister of such Ruler and tends to prejudice the maintenance of friendly relations between His Majesty's Government and the Government of such State, in like manner as they apply in the case of a book, newspaper or document containing seditious matter within the meaning of those sections

Provided that for the purposes of this section the said provisions shall be construed as if for the words 'Provincial Government' wherever they occur the words 'Central Government' were substituted

Year	No	Title	Amendments
1927	XVI	The Indian Forest Act 1927	Amended XXVI of 1930 and III of 1933

PREFATORY NOTE—The general law relating to forests in British India was contained in the Indian Forest Act, 1878 and its amending Acts. The present Act brings the law together within the scope of one enactment. The Act is a straightforward consolidating Bill but the original Act having been passed before the General Clauses Act 1897 (No. of 1897), it had been found possible to shorten the language of the Act by taking advantage of that Act. The ambiguous language of the second paragraph of section 42 of Act VII of 1878 had been altered in section 43 (2) so as to bring it into conformity with what appeared to have been the original intention of the law. The only other point which may call for further notice is the extent clause. The original Act extended to the Province of Assam but by Regulation VII of 1891 the Indian Forest Act, 1878, was repealed as far as it related to Assam. This Act accordingly omits Assam from the extent clause. (See Statement of Objects and Reasons.)

PREFATORY NOTE.—SCOPE AND NATURE OF ENACTMENT.—The first Act of the kind that was passed in England was an Act called Lord Brougham's Act, passed in 1851. That Act contained definitions of certain words which were continually used and defined in Acts of Parliament, and further contained one or two convenient rules of construction. Lord Brougham's Act was adopted and somewhat extended by the Indian Act of 1868. The Acts in both countries were found to be convenient and work well, and in 1887, the second Indian General Clauses Act was passed, further extending the same principle. The Act was drafted by Sir Courtney Ilbert, afterwards Parliamentary Counsel. When he went home, he carried the principle rather further, and he drafted the English Interpretation Act, 1889, which he carried on the same principle. In this General Clauses Act, the Government proposed, first to consolidate the previous two Indian Acts on the subject, and secondly to adopt some of the provisions of the English Interpretation Act, 1889, as were applicable to Indian Legislation and other circumstances. Mr Chalmers on whom devolved the drafting of the Indian Bill consulted Sir Courtney Ilbert about it and improved it in the light of his criticisms and advice on the provisions of the bill. The English Act was very carefully considered by a strong committee of the lawyers of the House of Lords, and its provisions were very carefully sifted by the committee. As to the general policy of the Act, it is always convenient to have one prima facie meaning for every term which is in constant use, and in all Acts, wherever possible, the same words should have the same meaning. But, of course, the definitions are only prima facie definitions. The Act provides that in future Acts, these particular terms defined in this Act will have the meaning given to them, unless a special Act otherwise provides in any particular Act. It is always open to give a special definition to any word or phrase, if it is required for the purposes of that Act. Certain general principles of construction have also been adopted from the English Interpretation Act. The Act is not one for creating new legislation, but may be described as one intended to prevent accidental slips in drafting future bills or as Mr Chalmers put in when introducing the bill "a Drafting Accidents Prevention Bill."

The following extracts from the Statement of Objects and Reasons may also be noted —

"This Bill does not propose to effect any change in the Law. Its object like that of the Acts it consolidates is to shorten the language of statutory enactments and to provide for uniformity of expression in cases where there is identity of subject matter.

The first enactment of the kind was Lord Brougham's Act (13 and 14 Vict., c. 21). The provisions of that statute were adapted to India and somewhat amplified by the General Clauses Act (I of 1868) and the General Clauses Act (I of 1887) was a further extension of the same principle. It is obviously expedient that the Legislative dictionary, as it may be called, should be contained in a single enactment and that the two Acts above referred to should be consolidated, and it seems desirable to take the opportunity of making any additions that later experience may have suggested and in particular to incorporate such provisions of the Interpretation Act, 1889 (52 and 53 Vict., c. 64) as are applicable to India. That statute like the Indian Act of 1887 was drafted by Sir C. Ilbert and is in effect a careful revision and extension of the latter. For example, the definition of British India in the English Act of 1889 is merely an expansion of the definition given by the Indian Act of 1868. Its legal effect is the same, but it is more intelligible and it avoids a reference to another statute. The proposed measure will have this further advantage that it will secure uniformity of language and construction in Indian and in English legislation in so far as both have to deal with the same subject matter."

I of 1900, S. 4; in Upper Burma (except the Shan States), Act XIII of 1898, S. 4; in British Baluchistan, Reg. II of 1913, S. 3, in the Angul District, Reg. Cls (21) and (40)—"THE GOVERNMENT"—WHETHER INCLUDES BRITISH GOVERNMENT—"SHALL INCLUDE"—MEANING—The expression, "includes" or "shall include" is used in interpretation clauses in two senses. The ordinary and general sense in which it is used is to enlarge the meaning of the words or phrases occurring in the body of the statute, and when it is so used, these words or phrases must be construed as comprehending not only such things as they signify according to their natural import, but also those things which the interpretation clause declares that they shall include. This expression is also susceptible of an other construction which may become imperative, if the context of the Act is sufficient to show that it was not merely employed for the purpose of adding to the natural significance of the words or expression defined. It may be equivalent to "mean and include" and in that case it may afford an exhaustive explanation of the meaning which for the purposes of the Act must invariably be attached to those words or expression. The expression in S. 3, Cls

MORTGAGE OF FRUIT BEARING TREES—Whether or not a mortgage of fruit bearing trees is a mortgage of immovable property is a question dependent in each case upon the intention of the contracting parties and cannot be settled by an inflexible rule. Where there is a mortgage with possession of fruit-bearing trees with the intention that the mortgagee is to remain in possession during the years of the mortgage and enjoy the fruits and should not cut down the trees so as to convert them to either timber or firewood, it must be held that the trees so mortgaged were either immovable property or at least an interest in immovable property and should be effected with the formalities prescribed by S 59 T P Act 54 All 437=140 I C 491. S 6 is applicable to case where a previous Ordinance has been "repealed" by a subsequent Ordinance or by a subsequent Act and would not necessarily apply to a case where a temporary Ordinance automatically expired after the period during which it is in operation is over. THE GOVERNMENT BUILDINGS ACT (IV OF 1899).²

[Sec. 1 Rep in pt. Act X of 1914; Am Act, XXXVIII of 1920; Declared in force in the Sonthal Parganas Reg III of 1872, Sec. 3 as amended by Reg III of 1899, Sec. 3; Declared in force in British Baluchistan Reg II of 1913, Sec. 3.]

PREFATORY NOTE.—The provisions of the various Acts in force regarding the regulation of buildings in municipalities rest in the main on the necessity for controlling buildings and the maintenance of buildings with due regard to engineering and sanitary exigencies; and the powers conferred upon Municipal Committees with the object in the several Municipal Acts are wide, and more or less absolute. It has been on several occasions represented to the Government of India that in the case of Government buildings the necessity does not exist, as the requirements in question are secured by departmental regulations and the advice of the experts who are employed by the State for the proper execution and supervision of public works. Moreover, as regards works relating to imperial defence, it is evident that, if direct control is to be effectively exercised by Municipal Committees, the power of inspection must extend to the examination, on demand, of plans and records, which may be of a strictly confidential character, and this examination, is inconsistent with the secrecy which, for obvious reasons, is essential in these matters. It will be generally admitted that the Government cannot permit its designs for the improvement of its coast batteries, magazines, or arsenals to become practically public property, merely because such designs have to be carried out within a municipal area in which the local law requires their submission to the municipal authorities and admits of extraneous, and it may be, arbitrary interference with them.

The object of this Bill is therefore to exempt from such regulations all buildings which are situate within municipalities or which are to be erected upon land which is the property or in the occupation of the Government. The Government of India have, however, no desire to ignore the internal arrangements and general administration of municipalities. On the contrary they consider it incumbent on the administration to frame its projects with full consideration for the general plans of any municipal body concerned and they consider it reasonable and right that municipal bodies should have opportunities of criticising such projects but the final judgment on objects and suggestions must rest with the Local Government which has undertaken them, and not with a Municipal Board, which is itself under the control of the Local Government. It is proposed in the Bill, therefore, to provide that reasonable notice of any work, which, if it is intended by the Government to undertake, shall be given to the municipality concerned, that the Municipal Committee shall be permitted, subject to suitable safeguards, to inspect the land and the plans; that any representation such municipal committee may think fit to make with reference thereto shall be received and considered by the Local Government; that the work shall be executed in strict accordance with the orders passed by the Local Government on such a representation, and that every order so passed shall be liable, in the last resort, to revision, by the Governor-General in Council. NOTES

The Preamble to the Government of India Act 1919 was left unrepealed by the Government of India Act 1935 (see S 321)

The Act of 1935 has not unlike the Act of 1919 a preamble indicating the intentions of Parliament in enacting this measure Indian opinion keenly desired the insertion in the Act of some provision indicating the goal of India as the attainment of Dominion Status But perhaps for reasons explained by Lord Peel in the House of Lords His Majesty's Government were against the proposal Lord Peel stated

'I believe that if following the request of many Indian leaders you had put in the sacred words Dominion Status you would have had a considerable amount of enthusiasm but apart from the fact that from the draftsman's point of view the phrase is not artistic the words while rousing feelings of satisfaction in political India might also give rise to misunderstanding Although the Indians may be emotional and may respond to good will on our part there are among them extremely acute and able lawyers If you put this phrase in the Bill those men would be constantly comparing the provisions of the Bill with the Constitutions of the self governing Dominions and would draw most unfavourable comparisons between the powers granted to India and those enjoyed by the Dominions The result—and a very dangerous result—would be that they would be led to charge us with that most terrible of all accusations breach of faith if we put the phrase into the Bill without perhaps fully appreciating all the deductions and inferences which could be drawn from it (Par Deb H L Vol 97 Col 601)

The only concession that the Government were prepared to make was to retain unrepealed the Preamble to the Act of 1919—notwithstanding that the Preamble therein referred to British India alone whereas this Act comprehends the Indian States in a Federation

The reasons which led the Government to support the saving of the preamble to the 1919 Act from the repeal of it was thus explained in Parliament

The value of this Preamble is that it does express in terms to which the Government to day still adhere the intentions or policy of Parliament with regard to the progressive realisation of responsible Government in British India as an integral part of the Empire (Parl Deb Vol 300 Col 1364)

We desire to preserve the Preamble as a record of the intentions of Parliament not the intentions of a party or of an individual or of a Minister, but the inten-

AND WHEREAS the action of Parliament in such matters must be guided by the co-operation received from those on whom new opportunities of service will be conferred, and by the extent to which it is found that confidence can be reposed in their sense of responsibility:

AND WHEREAS concurrently with the gradual development of self-governing institutions in the Provinces of India it is expedient to give to those Provinces in provincial matters the largest measure of independence of the Government of India, which is compatible with the due discharge by the latter of its own responsibilities:

Be it therefore enacted by the King's Most Excellent Majesty by and with the advice and consent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal and Commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, as follows:—

LEGISLATIVE POWER OF GOVERNOR

88 (1) If at any time when the Legislature of a Province is not in session the Governor is satisfied that circumstances exist which render it necessary for him to take immediate action he may promulgate such ordinances as the circumstances appear to him to require.

Power of Governor to promulgate ordinances during recess of Legislature

tions of Parliament and therefore of the great English people with regard to the future of India

See 88: ORDINANCES DURING RECESS.—Dealing with the Ordinances under this section it was said "We are dealing with ordinances made upon the advice of Ministers. They are ordinances made in the field of special responsibility by the Governor, which are the kind of Ordinances that would be made here by the Government in a time of emergency as to which the Government of the day has to obtain parliamentary approval within a given time. I think the real check is the check of ministerial responsibility to the Provincial Council. These ordinances are made upon the advice of Ministers who are themselves responsible to the Provincial Council" (Par Deb Vol 299, Col 1532).

Sees 88, 89: GOVERNOR'S ORDINANCE.—The Governor-General is the sole judge as regards the exercise of his powers and he is not bound to give any reasons for promulgating an ordinance such as the Criminal Law Amendment Act of 1935, which when once promulgated becomes a lawful Act 48 L W. 813=(1938) 2 M L J 863 in fact existed which rendered immediate action necessary before the promulgation of an ordinance. That is for the Governor to decide. The Court should not assume the burden of deciding for what purpose the action was necessary. Where in an ordinance the purpose is expressed to be that of enabling the Governor satisfactorily to discharge certain functions the Governor is the only judge of that 1941 Rang L R 101=193 I C 114=1941 Rang 49. An ordinance duly promulgated has the same force and effect as an Act of the Legislature 1941 Rang L. R. 101=1941 Rang 49.

ORDINANCE — PROMULGATION — DATE.—Promulgation of an ordinance without doubt connotes the fact of making the public aware of the existence of the new law. Promulgation of a new law takes place through the medium of the Official Gazette. It is wrong for the notifications which appear in the Gazette when an ordinance is first published therein to say, as they do "The Governor has promulgated the following ordinance"; they should say "The Governor hereby promulgates the following ordinances."—An ordinance therefore is promulgated on the date on which it is published in the Gazette. 193 I C 91=1941 Rang 5.

ORDINANCES — PROMULGATION — PUBLICATION — RELATION BETWEEN — Promulga-

Provided that the Governor—

(a) shall exercise his individual judgment as respects the promulgation of any ordinance under this section if a Bill containing the same provisions would under this Act have required his or the Governor-General's previous sanction to the introduction thereof into the Legislature, and

(b) shall not without instructions from the Governor General, acting in his discretion promulgate any such ordinance if a Bill containing the same provisions would under this Act have required the Governor General's previous sanction for the introduction thereof into the Legislature, or if he would have deemed it necessary to reserve a Bill containing the same provisions for the consideration of the Governor General

(2) An ordinance promulgated under this section shall have the same force and effect as an Act of the Provincial Legislature assented to by the Governor but every such ordinance—

(a) shall be laid before the Provincial Legislature and shall cease to operate at the expiration of six weeks from the reassembly of the Legislature or, if a resolution disapproving it is passed by the Legislative Assembly and agreed to by the Legislative Council if any upon the passing of the resolution or, as the case may be on the resolution being agreed to by the Council

tion and publication in the Official Gazette are not synonymous. There is a distinction between the two. Publication in the Official Gazette is not sine qua non of promulgation though it is a record that promulgation has taken place and a means of announcing the fact to the widest possible circle of individuals. Reading of an ordinance by the speaker to the House of Representatives is sufficient promulgation. 1941 Rang L R 101=193 I C 114=1941 Rang 49

ORDINANCES—PREAMBLE — DESIRABILITY
It is not legally necessary that an ordinance should have a Preamble setting out that the Governor is satisfied as required by the terms of the section and also the purpose for which the ordinance is promulgated. Legally all that is necessary is that the Governor should declare that he promulgates the ordinance but the adoption of this suggestion might make for the better understanding by the public of the reason and necessity for the issue of an ordinance. 1941 Rang L R 101=193 I C 114=1941 Rang 49

GOVERNOR'S POWERS—SCOPE OF—ORDINANCES—IMPLICATION UNDERLYING—The Governor's functions are capable of being exercised in any of three different ways. Some are exercisable in his discretion on which means that he need not ask for the aid or advice of his Ministers at all. A second group is exercisable notwithstanding the advice of Ministers in the exercise of his individual judgment and a third group is exercisable under the guidance of his Ministers. Matters which are said to fall within the individual judgment of the Governor may fall within the second and third group according to the opinion formed by the Governor as to the course which he should take. Where therefore an ordinance is issued it is expressed to be under the powers conferred by S 89 it is implied that an opinion has been formed by the Governor and an individual judgment has been exercised by him. 1941 Rang L R 101=193 I C 114=1941 Rang 49. Whether ordinance has retrospective operations see 1941 Rang L R 321=1931 Rang 151

HIGH COURT IF CAN GO INTO QUESTION AS TO AN ORDINANCE BEING WITHIN OR OUTSIDE THE POWERS OF THE GOVERNOR—High Court is not precluded from enquiring whether an ordinance promulgated by the Governor is or is not within his powers. The Court can go into the question whether any provision or an ordinance promulgated is or is not void on the ground that such provision if it had been enacted in an Act of the Legislature would not have been valid. 193 I C 91=1941 Rang 5. Ordinance—Duration—Computation of time See 1941 Rang 49=1941 Rang L R 101

The rationale and necessity for the power conferred by this section was thus explained on behalf of the Government to the committee of the House of Commons.

This Bill sets up substantially Provincial autonomy and the administration is carried on by Ministers. The Committee has already passed a clause which places on the Governor certain special responsibilities. Obviously you cannot place special responsibilities on a man unless you give him the means of fulfilling those responsibilities. So far as executive action is concerned and any executive action taken is in his name he can, of course act in his individual judgment or discretion if the Bill empowers him to do so but obviously also if you look at the special responsibilities placed upon him, occasions may arise where in order to fulfil those responsibilities, it is necessary for him to proceed by ordinance. Therefore everyone on the Committee wherever he sits and whatever his general views about democracy must agree that granted that these special responsibilities are to be placed on the Governor, it is quite clear that, in

(b) shall be subject to the provisions of this Act relating to the power of His Majesty to disallow Acts as if it were an Act of the Provincial Legislature assented to by the Governor, and

(c) may be withdrawn at any time by the Governor

(3) If and so far as an ordinance under this section makes any provision which would not be valid if enacted in an Act of the Provincial Legislature assented to by the Governor, it shall be void

89 (1) If at any time the Governor of a Province is satisfied that circumstances exist which render it necessary for him to take immediate action for the purpose of enabling him satisfactorily to discharge his functions in so far as he is by or under this Act required in the exercise thereof to act in his discretion or to exercise his individual judgment, he may promulgate such ordinances as in his opinion the circumstances of the case require

(2) An ordinance promulgated under this section shall continue in operation for such period not exceeding six months as may be specified therein but may by a subsequent ordinance be extended for a further period not exceeding six months

(3) An ordinance promulgated under this section shall have the same force and effect as an Act of the Provincial Legislature assented to by the Governor, but every such ordinance—

(a) shall be subject to the provisions of this Act relating to the power of His Majesty to disallow Acts as if it were an Act of the Provincial Legislature,

(b) may be withdrawn at any time by the Governor and

(c) if it is an ordinance extending a previous ordinance for a further period shall be communicated forthwith through the Governor General to the Secretary of State and shall be laid by him before each House of Parliament

(4) If and so far as an ordinance under this section makes any provision which would not be valid if enacted in an Act of the Provincial Legislature it shall be void

Provided that for the purposes of the provisions of this Act relating to the effect of an Act of a Provincial Legislature which is repugnant to an Act of the Federal Legislature an ordinance promulgated under this section shall be deemed to be an Act of the Provincial Legislature which has been reserved for the consideration of the Governor General and assented to by him

(5) The functions of the Governor under this section shall be exercised by him in his discretion but he shall not exercise any of his powers thereunder except with the concurrence of the Governor General in his discretion

order to fulfil them it may be necessary for him to proceed by Ordinance. Therefore it would be quite wrong to put the responsibility upon him and not to confer the Ordinance making power. The Committee having passed Clause 52 and the other Clauses giving the Governor special responsibilities that must be unanswerable (Par Deb Vol. 299 Col 1542)

Under the Government of Ind a Act 1919 S. 72 the power of promulgating Ordinances was vested only in Governor General and Provincial Governors had no such power. If any such ordinance was needed for any particular Province it had to be passed by the Governor General.

Sec. 39 "Assume to himself all or any of the Powers"—In the event of a breakdown of the constitutional machinery the Governor is not bound to take over the whole Government of the Province and administer it himself on his own undivided responsibility. The intention is to provide also for the possibility of a partial breakdown and to enable the Governor to take over part only of the machinery of Government leaving the remainder to function according to the ordinary law. Thus the Governor might if the breakdown were in the legislative machinery of the Province alone still carry on the Government with the aid of his Ministers if they were willing to support him. We are speaking of course of such a case as the refusal of the Legislature to function at all and not merely of lesser conflicts or disputes between it and the Governor. (J P C Report para 109)

Provided that, if it appears to the Governor that it is impracticable to obtain in time the concurrence of the Governor-General, he may promulgate an ordinance without the concurrence of the Governor-General, but in that case the Governor-General in his discretion may direct the Governor to withdraw the ordinance and the ordinance shall be withdrawn accordingly.

90. (1) If at any time it appears to the Governor that, for the purpose of enabling him satisfactorily to discharge his functions in so far as he is by or under this Act required in the exercise thereof to act in his discretion or to exercise his individual judgment, it is essential that provision should be made by legislation, he may by message to the Chamber or Chambers of the Legislature explain the circumstances which in his opinion render legislation essential and either—

(a) enact forthwith as a Governor's Act a Bill containing such provisions as he considers necessary; or

(b) attach to his message a draft of the Bill which he considers necessary.

(2) Where the Governor takes such action as is mentioned in paragraph (b) of the preceding sub-section, he may, at any time after the expiration of one month, enact, as a Governor's Act, the Bill proposed by him to the Chamber or Chambers either in the form of the draft communicated to them, or with such amendments as he deems necessary, but before so doing he shall consider any address which may have been presented to him within the said period by the Chamber or either of the Chambers with reference to the Bill or to amendments suggested to be made therein.

(3) A Governor's Act shall have the same force and effect, and shall be subject to disallowance in the same manner, as an Act of the Provincial Legislature assented to by the Governor and, if and so far as it makes any provision which would not be valid if enacted in an Act of that Legislature, shall be void:

Provided that, for the purposes of the provisions of this Act relating to the effect of an Act of a Provincial Legislature which is repugnant to an Act of the Federal Legislature, a Governor's Act shall be deemed to be an Act reserved for the consideration of the Governor-General and assented to by him.

(4) Every Governor's Act shall be communicated forthwith through the Governor-General to the Secretary of State and shall be laid by him before each House of Parliament.

(5) The functions of the Governor under this section shall be exercised by him in his discretion, but he shall not exercise any of his powers thereunder except with the concurrence of the Governor-General in his discretion.

PROVISIONS IN CASE OF FAILURE OF CONSTITUTIONAL MACHINERY.

93. (1) If at any time the Governor of a Province is satisfied that a situation has arisen in which the government of the Province cannot be carried on in accordance with the provisions of this Act, he may by Proclamation—

(a) declare that his functions shall, to such extent as may be specified in the Proclamation, be exercised by him in his discretion;

(b) assume to himself all or any of the powers vested in or exercisable by any Provincial body or authority; and any such Proclamation may contain such incidental and consequential provisions as may appear to him to be necessary or desirable for giving effect to the objects of the Proclamation, including provisions for suspending in whole or in part the operation of any provisions of this Act relating to any Provincial body or authority:

Power of Governor to issue Proclamations

Provided that nothing in this sub section shall authorize the Governor to assume to himself any of the powers vested in or exercisable by a High Court, or to suspend, either in whole or in part, the operation of any provision of this Act relating to High Courts.

(2) Any such Proclamation may be revoked or varied by a subsequent Proclamation

(3) A Proclamation under this section—

(a) shall be communicated forthwith to the Secretary of State and shall be laid by him before each House of Parliament,

(b) unless it is a Proclamation revoking a previous Proclamation, shall cease to operate at the expiration of six months

Provided that, if and so often as a resolution approving the continuance in force of such a Proclamation is passed by both Houses of Parliament, the Proclamation shall, unless revoked, continue in force for a further period of twelve months from the date on which under this sub section it would otherwise have ceased to operate, but no such Proclamation shall in any case remain in force for more than three years

(4) If the Governor, by a Proclamation under this section, assumes to himself any power of the Provincial Legislature to make laws, any law made by him in the exercise of that power shall subject to the terms thereof, continue to have effect until two years have elapsed from the date on which the Proclamation ceases to have effect, unless sooner repealed or re enacted by Act of the appropriate Legislature, and any reference in this Act to Provincial Acts, Provincial laws, or Acts or laws of a Provincial Legislature shall be construed as including a reference to such a law

(5) The functions of the Governor under this section shall be exercised by him in his discretion and no Proclamation shall be made by a Governor under this section without the concurrence of the Governor General in his discretion

DISTRIBUTION OF POWERS

99 (1) Subject to the provisions of this Act, the Federal Legislature may make laws for the whole or any part of British India or for any Federated State and a Provincial Legislature may make laws for the Province or for any part thereof

NOTES

Sec 99 SCOPE.—This section defines the territorial ambit of the powers conferred on the Federal and the Provincial legislatures as also the classes of persons over whom they have legislative competence. The succeeding sections of this Chapter together with the legislative lists in Schedule VII delimit their competence with reference to the subject matter of the legislation

(2) Without prejudice to the generality of the powers conferred, by the preceding sub section, no Federal law shall, on the ground that it would have extra-territorial operation, be deemed to be invalid in so far as it applies—

(a) to British subjects and servants of the Crown in any part of India, or

(b) to British subjects who are domiciled in any part of India wherever they may be, or

(c) to, or to persons on, ships or aircraft registered in British India or any Federated State wherever they may be, or

(d) in the case of a law with respect to a matter accepted in the Instrument of Accession of a Federated State as a matter with respect to which the Federal Legislature may make laws for that State, to subjects of that State wherever they may be, or

(e) in the case of a law for the regulation or discipline of any naval military, or air force raised in British India, to members of, and persons attached to, employed with or following, that force, wherever they may be.

100 (1) Notwithstanding anything in the two next succeeding sub sections, the Federal Legislature has, and a Provincial Legislature has not, power to make laws with respect to any of the matters enumerated in List I in the Seventh Schedule to this Act (hereinafter called the "Federal Legislative List").

NOTES

ed to a legislature by the Imperial Parliament, its powers to make laws are as supreme and plenary as those of Parliament itself. It is clearly competent for the Provincial Legislature to make laws affecting His Majesty's prerogative rights. The legislative authority conferred by Ss 99 and 100 of the Government of India Act of 1935 is subject only to "the provisions of this Act" and there is no provision in the Act which excepts generally the prerogative of the Crown. It is therefore within the competence of the legislatures of India to make laws derogating from the prerogative rights of the Crown except of course in so far as such prerogatives may be comprised in matters specifically excepted. The prerogative has no concern with the curtailment or modification of the rights of parties by a local law, such as Madras Act IV of 1938. 54 L W 107=1941 M W N 741=1941 Mad 817=(1941) 2 M L J 125=1 L R (1942) Mad 60

Per Gwyer, C.J. and Varadachariar, J.—It must inevitably happen from time to time that legislation though purporting to deal with a subject in one list, touches also on a subject in another list, and the different provisions of the enactment may be so closely intertwined that blind adherence to a strictly verbal interpretation would result in a large number of statutes being declared invalid because the legislature enacting them may appear to have legislated in a forbidden sphere. Hence the rule has been evolved whereby the impugned statute is examined to ascertain its "path and substance" or its "true nature and character," for the purpose of determining whether it is legislation with respect to matter in this list or in that. This rule of interpretation is equally applicable to the Indian Constitution Act, and may be accepted as a guide for the interpretation of the Government of India Act. 53 L W 108=45 C W N (F R) 1=1941 F C 47=(1941) 1 M L J (Supp) 1. Secs 100 and 107 SCOPE AND EFFECT OF.—Though in one aspect and for one purpose a subject may be within the powers of the Federal Parliament, in another aspect and for another purpose it may fall within the powers of a Provincial Legislature. The Madras Agriculturists' Relief Act is one which relates to "agriculture" a subject reserved for the Provincial Legislature, item 20 of List II of Schedule VII of the Government of India Act. The Act relates to money lending to agriculturists, and "money lending" also is a subject reserved for Provincial Legislature, item 27 of List II of Sch VII. The only effect of the Act, so far as Negotiable Instruments are concerned is to reduce liability where the maker or endorser is an agriculturist. The Act being in substance within the powers of the Madras Legislature, the fact that in particular cases it may operate to reduce liability on contracts evidenced

(2) Notwithstanding anything in the next succeeding sub section, the Federal Legislature, and, subject to the preceding sub section, a Provincial Legislature also, have power to make laws with respect to any of the matters enumerated in List III in the said Schedule (hereinafter called the "Concurrent Legislative List")

(3) Subject to the two preceding sub sections, the Provincial Legislature has, and the Federal Legislature has not, power to make laws for a Province or any part thereof with respect to any of the matters enumerated in List II in the said Schedule (hereinafter called the "Provincial Legislative List")

by negotiable instruments cannot affect its validity. The Madras Agriculturists' Relief Act is therefore ultra vires the powers of the Provincial Legislature, and not ultra vires on the ground that its provisions are repugnant to the provisions of the Negotiable Instruments Act, the Usurious Loans Act and the Hindu Law as to debts. I L R (1939) Mad 151=2 F L J 39=49 L W 257=1939 Mad 361=(1931) 1 M L J 272 (F B). If a tax is covered by the Federal List (List I of Sch VII, and not covered by the Provincial List (List II of the said Schedule), then the Provincial Legislature cannot impose such tax and it would be invalid. If a tax is covered by the Provincial List and not covered by the Federal List, then the validity of tax cannot be questioned. But if a tax falls within both the Lists, then such a tax will be ultra vires the Provincial Legislature by reason of the non-obstante clause in S 100 (1) of the Act. But it is a fundamental assumption that the legislative power of the centre and the Provinces could not have been intended to be in conflict with one another, and the Court must therefore read them together and interpret or modify the language in which one is expressed by the language of the other and arrive at a reasonable and practical construction of the language of the section so as to reconcile the respective powers they contain and give effect to all of them. It is only if such a reconciliation should prove impossible and only then will the non-obstante clause in S 100 (1) operate and the Federal power prevail, for the clause ought to be regarded as a last resort. 49 L W 36=1939 F O 1=(1939) M L J Supp 1. Under Cl 31 of the Provincial Legislative List in the seventh schedule the Provincial Legislature had full power to legislate with regard to the production, manufacture, possession, transport and sale of intoxicating liquors while Cl 19 of the Federal List gave the Central Legislature power to legislate with regard to import and export across frontiers. S 4 (1) (a) of the Prohibition Act prohibited inter alia the possession of intoxicating liquors. Since in the present case, which was merely concerned with the possession of arrack produced in the Madras Presidency there was no question of any import or export, the conviction was lawful as the Provincial Legislature had power to prohibit the possession of arrack. The Provincial Legislature has power so to limit possession, provided that in so doing it does not encroach upon the legislative powers of the Central Government. The Central Legislature is the authority to legislate in respect of import and export of intoxicants across the sea frontier of Bombay, under item 19 of List I of the 7th Schedule. The power of the Provincial Government to legislate as to possession is thus a qualified and not an absolute power, it is subject to the rights of the Central Government. The Madras General Sales Tax Act is not ultra vires in so far as it purports to levy a tax on first sales that is, sales by the manufacturer or producer. Under the Government of India Act, the Federal Legislature has an exclusive power (List I, entry No 45) to impose duties of excise and the Provincial Legislature an exclusive power (List II, entry No 48) to impose taxes on the sale of goods and this power extends to sales of every kind including first sales. The expression 'duty of excise' is wide enough to include a tax on sales, but where power is expressly given to another authority to levy a tax on sales, "duty of excise" must be given a more restricted meaning than it might otherwise bear. A tax levied on the first sale of goods must in the nature of things be a tax on the sale by the manufacturer or producer, but it is levied upon him qua seller and not qua manufacturer or producer. If a taxpayer who pays a sales tax is also a manufacturer or producer of commodities subject to a central duty of excise he may have to pay two taxes, but the two taxes are economically separate and distinct imposts. It is natural when considering the ambit of an express power in relation to an unspecified residuary power to give a broad interpretation to the former at the expense of the latter but where as in the Government of India Act, there are two complementary powers each expressed in precise and definite terms there can be no reason for giving a broader interpretation to one power rather than to the other. The American and Australian decisions should not therefore be blindly adopted in India. 5 Fed L J 61 A I R 1942 (F C) 38=46 G W N (F B) 38 [I L R (1941) M 874=1941 Mad 913=(1941) 2 M L J 607 Reversed]. Money lending is only a part of the business of a bank and therefore it cannot be said that in enacting the Bihar Money Lenders Act the Legislature trespassed upon item 38 of List I of Schedule VII, to the Government of India Act. S 13 of the Bihar Money

Lenders Act does not legislate directly or indirectly with regard to the conduct of banking business and is not inapplicable to cases where the creditor is a bank. The mere fact that a decree under execution might in the ordinary course be obtained by a Bank can not make the section an enactment relating to the conduct of banking business. 20 Pat 631=22 Pat L T 522=1941 Pat 562 See also 19 Pat 974=21 Pat L T 740=1941 Pat 99 S 23 A (b) of the Bihar Tenancy Act as amended in 1938 deals with a provincial subject and cannot be held to be ultra vires or inoperative by reason of any actual or supposed repugnancy to an All India Act vis, S 37 of the Contract Act 199 I C 182=1942 P W N 66=23 P L T 143. Powers of local legislature to make laws—Limits—Old Act—It is wrong to think that sub S (3) of S 80 A of the Government of India Act (1919) means that if the local legislature of a province has obtained the previous sanction of the Governor General it can make laws of the kind mentioned in cls (a) to (s) of the subsection so as to affect rights and properties not only within the boundaries of the province, but also outside those boundaries. The effect of sub S (3) is that without the previous sanction of the Governor General, or at any rate his subsequent assent as mentioned in the proviso to the subsection the local legislature of a province cannot validly make any such laws even for its own territories, and the previous sanction, or the subsequent assent, of the Governor General in Council only makes such laws valid and effective within the territories of the province. Secs 101.—The provisions of S 100 relate to the exercise of legislative powers in and for British India. In the case of the Indian States, however, dealt with by this section the powers of the Federal legislature

Legislature to make laws for a Federated State otherwise than in accordance with the Instrument of Accession of that State and any limitation contained therein.

102 (1) Notwithstanding anything in the preceding sections of this chapter, Federal Legislature shall, if the Governor-General has in his discretion declared by Proclamation (in this Act referred to as a "Proclamation of Emergency") that a grave emergency exists whereby the security of India is threatened, whether by war or internal disturbance, have power to make laws for a Province or any part thereof with respect to any of the matters enumerated in the Provincial Legislative List:

Provided that no Bill or amendment for the purposes aforesaid shall be introduced or moved without the previous sanction of the Governor-General in his discretion, and the Governor-General shall not give his sanction unless it appears to him that the provision proposed to be made is a proper provision in view of the nature of the emergency.

(2) Nothing in this section shall restrict the power of a Provincial Legislature to make any law which under this Act it has power to make, but if any provision of a Provincial law is repugnant to any provision of a Federal law which the Federal Legislature has under this section power to make, the Federal law, whether passed before or after the Provincial law, shall prevail, and the Provincial law shall to the extent of the repugnancy, but so long only as the Federal law continues to have effect, be void.

(3) A Proclamation of Emergency—

Explaining the basis of the section, Sir Samuel Hoare said: "The whole essence of federation is that the units surrender definite powers, but beyond that field the Federal legislature has no power over the units at all. That is exactly the position. The Federal legislature has power over the units to the extent of the federal field, and in the case of Indian Princes to the extent that they have surrendered their powers in the Instrument of Accession. That is altogether in keeping with the letter and spirit of every federal legislature in the world. It would be contrary to every theory of federation if the Federal Government had more extended powers". (Parl. Deb., Vol. 299, Col. 1932).

Sec. 103.—The section is necessitated by the fact that under S. 99, the legislative powers of a province are confined to the limits of that province, and that if a body having jurisdiction within more than one province, e.g., like a Joint Public Service Commission for 2 or more provinces, was desired to be set up, there would be no power in the provinces to do so. With the disappearance of a central legislature with power to invade the provincial field at all points, there had necessarily to be devised some machinery for co-ordination of policy between the provinces in matters of common concern to them. As the Statutory Committee pointed out, there is urgent need for the establishment of institutions for research in the fields of Forestry, Agriculture, health, problems, all subjects in the Provincial list. This recommendation was endorsed by the Joint Parliamentary Committee and accordingly provision has been made for the creation of Interprovincial councils by Order in Council. This section would have to be utilised for providing the necessary legislation investing these councils with functions and powers. The presence of this section obviates the limitation set out in the judgment of Lord Atkinson in City of Montreal v. Montreal Street Railway Co., (1912) A.C. 333 where it is pointed out that inconvenience of provincial administration in a matter concerning more than one province does not clothe the Dominion Parliament with legislative power in that field.

Sec 104 RESIDUARY POWER.—Explaining the principle adopted in framing the legislative lists and in enacting the machinery devised by this section in regard to the location of the residuary power Sir S Hoare said: "We found that Indian opinion was very definitely divided between, speaking generally, the Hindus who wish to keep the predominant powers in the Centre, and the Moslems who wish to keep the predominant power in the Provinces. The extent of that feeling made each of these communities look with the greatest suspicion at the residuary field. The Hindus demanding that the residuary field should remain with the Centre and the Muslims equally strongly demanding that the residuary field should remain with the Provinces."

The feeling was very deep and very bitter on this issue. We tried year after year not only in the Joint Select Committee but also in the various Round Table Conferences to bridge the difference but the only bridge that we could find between these two diametrically opposite points of view was to have three lists, namely the Federal List, the Provincial List and the concurrent List, each as exhaustive as we could make it, so exhaustive as to leave little or nothing for the residuary field. I believe that we have succeeded in that attempt and that all that is likely to go into the residuary field are perhaps some quite unknown spheres of activity that neither my Hon. Friend nor I can contemplate at this moment. We find that we have really exhausted the ordinary activities of Government in the three other fields. I agree with my Hon. Friend that it means complications. I believe that it also means the possibility of increased litigation.

The decision of the Governor-General that a subject is not covered by the enumerated matters in the three lists would not seem to be final and the question could be challenged in the Courts. But having regard to the importance of the subject, it is not expected that he would decide such matters without obtaining the advisory opinion of the Federal Court under S. 213. But his decision allocating the subject—if in fact it is a residuary—to the Provincial or Federal Legislature is not open to question in the Courts. The section states that the Governor-General might assign the subject 'either to the Federal or the Provincial Legislature' which seems to raise a doubt as to whether he can assign such a residuary subject to the concurrent list. It is however submitted that he can assign it to any of the three lists.

relations between the Federal legislature and the Provincial legislature where the laws passed by the two legislatures are among the subjects in the concurrent legislative list and are repugnant to each other. It has no application to repugnancy due to overlapping found between the Provincial List on the one hand and the Federal and concurrent lists on the other. I L R (1940) All 455=3 Fed L J (H C) 83=1940 A L J 274=1940 All 272 (F B). S 107 relates only to the concurrent list and has no application to subjects reserved exclusively to List I. The section, moreover, deals with repugnancy but not ultra vires. No assent of the Governor General can validate a law which is void apart from any question of repugnancy and which it was never within the competence of the Provincial legislature to enact, a law which is therefore void ab initio. S 107 (2) provides means for overcoming a repugnancy, it provides no means of validating a law which is completely ultra vires—ultra vires ab initio and which therefore has no intrinsic force in it which can be validated. 10 Pat 974=21 Pat L T 740=1940 P W N 719=1941 Pat 99. Repugnancy—Test.—If the dominant law has expressly or impliedly evinced its intention to cover the whole field, then a subordinate law in the same field is repugnant and therefore inoperative. Whether and to what extent in a given case, the dominant law evinces such an intention must necessarily depend on the language of the particular law. 69 C L J 573=43 C W N 913=1939 Cal 628. See also 19 Pat L T 760, 1938 P W N 913 (F B), 71 C L J 369. "Repugnant" means "inconsistent with" or "contrary to". Such contrariety may be in quality, in matter or in respect of the form prescribed. Foster's case (11 Coke Rep 56 B). According to Higgins, J, repugnance must involve either directly or indirectly a contradictory proposition, probably contradictory duties or contradictory rights. (A G for Queensland v A G for Commonwealth, 20 Com L R 148 at p 178). In other words there must be a direct collision between the provisions in the two enactments before they can be pronounced to be repugnant to each other. He further elucidated his proposition in these words in his dissenting judgment in Clyde Engineering Co v Coburn (37 Com L R 466). "Etymologically things are inconsistent when they cannot stand together at the same time, and one law is inconsistent with another law when the command or power or provision in the one law conflicts directly with the command or power or provision in the other. Where two legislatures operate over the same territory and come into collision, it is necessary that one should prevail, but the necessity is confined to actual collision as when one legislature says "do" and the other says "don't". Repugnancy of provincial law to existing Indian law—Principles of construction. Per Sulaiman, J.—When the question is whether a provincial legislation is repugnant to an existing Indian law, the onus of showing its repugnancy and the extent to which it is repugnant should be on the party attacking its validity. There ought to be a presumption in favour of its validity, and every effort should be made to reconcile them and construe both so as to avoid their being repugnant to each other, and one should be taken to see whether the two do not really operate in different fields without encroachment. Further repugnancy must exist in fact, and not depend merely on a possibility. If the invalid part of an Act is really separate in its operation from the other parts, and the rest is so not inseparably connected with it, then only such part is invalid, unless, of course, the whole object of the Act would be frustrated by the partial exclusion. If the subject which is beyond the legislative power is perfectly distinct from that which is within such power, the Act can be ultra vires in the former while intra vires in the latter. A law which is ultra vires in part only may thereby become ultra vires in whole if the object of the Act cannot at all be attained by excluding the bad part. If the offending provisions are so interwoven into the scheme of the Act that they are not severable, then the whole Act is invalid. 2 F L J 183=43 C W N (F C R) 193=1939 F C 74= (1939) 2 M L J (Sopp) 45.

The provisions are merely a reproduction of S 30 and there is no difference except (1) The source of the authority is traced to the Governments in India and (2) the form in which contracts etc would hereafter run

GOVERNMENT CONTRACTS—Though it may be very desirable to have a formal deed with regard to all the agreements made by Government it cannot be held as a matter of law that an agreement evidenced by tenders and acceptance of tenders or an agreement evidenced by correspondence or other documents of informal nature though fully established by evidence must fail and be said to offend the terms of S 30 of the Government of India Act 1918. The provisions of the Act 1915 are mandatory and must be strictly complied with in order to constitute a valid contract which can be enforced against the Secretary of State. The contract must under the law and the rules in force be by a deed executed on behalf of the Secretary of State and in his name by the proper authority 39 Bom L R 807=1937 Bom 449. There is no justification for holding that a contract in order that it may comply with S 30 of the Government of India Act 1915 must be by deed i.e., under seal. behalf of His Majesty for those purposes respectively, and to the making of contracts.

does not require a formal document in the nature of an indenture or deed. The contract under S 30 must in order to be binding, be made on behalf and in the name of the Secretary of State for India in Council by the local Government and executed by the proper officer authorised by the Governor-General in Council. A contract in the form of letters, complying with the provisions of S 30 and signed by the proper officer, would be a contract complying with the terms of S 30. But it must be plain that the correspondence is carried on on behalf of and in the name of the Secretary of State, and that the contract as finally concluded by correspondence is executed by a person authorised by resolution in that behalf. Where the correspondence does not show that, but only amounts to the fact that the Collector is prepared to recommend to Government to sanction a proposal, which if sanctioned would be made on behalf of and in the name of the Secretary of State in Council, there is no binding agreement under S. 30 which can be specifically enforced. 40 Bom L R 19=174 I C 316=1938 Bom 168. Under S 30 (2) of the Government of India Act, 1919, contracts of mining leases have to be executed by the person and in the manner prescribed by the Government of India, and in order to be valid, a mining lease has to be executed by the Collector under the rules prescribed by the Governor-General in Council; until a formal lease has been executed there can be no enforceable contract against the Secretary of State for India in Council 48 L W 194=1938 Mad. 749=(1938) 2 M L J. 141.

Sec 176.—The Federation and the Provinces are endowed with juristic personality, with a right to sue and be sued. It must however be noted that the creation of these separate entities is only for the purpose of legal proceedings: neither the imparting of a juristic personality, nor the Crown holding property "in right of the Province" and "in right of the Federation" affords any scope for the doctrine of the multiple personality of the Crown. The Crown is one and indivisible throughout the Empire, and in the words of Dr. Keith, "there is no essential deviation from this unity in the fact that the Crown appears in various aspects and that in these aspects there may be collision of interest and of rights." A Province may sue another Province, or a Province, the Federation and "to this extent there is distinction of aspects within the Crown." The King in each part of his dominions has a distinct personality for certain purposes, but the unity of personality can be given effect to whenever the aspect of personality is unimportant. (Cf. Williams v. Hovarth, 1905 A C 551).

CROWN BOUND BY LEGISLATION.—The Crown in right of the Federation is bound by a valid Provincial enactment assented to by the Governor as representing His Majesty enacted by virtue of powers conferred on that Legislature by this Act, sue or be sued in relation to their respective affairs in the like cases as the Secretary of State in Council might have sued or been sued if this Act had not been passed

(2) Rules of Court may provide that, where the Federation the Federal Railway Authority, or a province sue or are sued in the United Kingdom service of all proceedings may be effected upon the High Commissioner for India or such other representative in the United Kingdom of the Federation, Authority or Province as may be specified in the rules

179 (1) Any proceedings which, if this Act had not been passed might have been brought against the Secretary of State in Council may, in the case of any liability arising before the commencement of Part III of this Act or arising under any contract or statute made or passed before that date, be brought ty If the Crown is bound at all it is bound in all its aspects and the question whether the Crown is bound is one of construction not of law

Suits —Suits between Provinces and between the Province and the Federation are only a method of ascertaining the true meaning of the Constitution and does not affect the indivisibility of the Crown. This section reproduces with one material alteration the provisions of S. 32 of the Government of India Act 1915 which conferred the same right of suit against the Secretary of State as existed against the East India Company if the Government of India Act 1858 had not been passed. This provision was construed as affirmatively conferring a right of suit in all cases where the East India Company if it existed could have been sued and negatively as precluding an action in all cases where such a suit did not lie against the Company.

SUIT AGAINST SECRETARY OF STATE—MAIN TAINABILITY—TEST —Per Braund J—So far as suits against the Secretary of State in Council are concerned in India it is a complete fallacy to attempt to construe them from the point of view of the English Common law which does not recognize actions against the Crown on the principle either that the Crown can do no wrong or that the King cannot be sued in his own Court. The principle applicable in India is wholly different for not only has the Crown submitted itself by statute (through its character as the successor of the East India Company) to certain remedies but it has by S. 65 Government of India Act 1858 constituted a corporate defendant in the form of the Secretary of State in Council as its representative for the purpose of being sued in respect of those remedies. In the result therefore the East India Company, and through the Company the Secretary of State in Council is by virtue of S. 65 Government of India Act 1858 and of S. 32 of the Act of 1919 in a wholly different position from the Crown as it stands under the English Common law. It is the character of the suit and not whether it would have succeeded that is the test. If it is of that 'character' that it would have lain against the East India Company then by statute it lies against the Secretary of State for India in Council. 1937 Rang L R 35=1937 Rang 89 (S B). The Secretary of State is not liable for acts of the Courts or the consequences of those acts. Sec 179 —This section is an application to the existing contracts of the Secretary of State in Council of the familiar principle in the Law of Contracts that the remedy of a party against the original promisor is not prejudiced or lost by reason of an assignment by the latter to which the other is not a consenting party. The option is therefore given to persons claiming by virtue of contracts etc. prior to the commencement of Part III to sue either the Secretary of State the original contracting party, or the Federation or the Province according as the authority to whom the contract would relate under the provisions of this Act. In a suit instituted against the Secretary of State the description of the defendant as 'Government Punjab Province through Deputy Commissioner' does not in any manner affect the institution of the suit. Under the present Government of India Act all that is necessary to be mentioned is the Province. The addition of the words 'through Deputy Commissioner' does not cause any prejudice to the defendant. 192 I C 729=42 P L R 550=1940 Lah 451. Where in a suit against the Secretary of State, the latter is wrongly described as 'Secretary of State for India in Council' this is a mere misdescription which can be amended at any time by omitting the words 'for India in Council'. 1939 Lah 583. No doubt under S. 179 (1) of the Government of India Act an appeal should be lodged against the Secretary of State and not against the Secretary of State for India in Council. But against the Federation or a Province according to the subject matter of the proceedings or at the option of the person by whom the proceedings are brought against the Secretary of State and any sum ordered to be paid by way of debt damages or costs in any such proceedings and any costs or expenses incurred in or in connection with the defence thereof, shall be paid out of the revenues of the Federation or the Province as the case may be or if the proceedings are brought against the Secretary of State out of such revenues as the Secretary of State may direct.

The provisions of this sub section shall apply with respect to proceedings arising under any contract declared by the terms thereof to be supplemental to any such contract as is mentioned in these provisions as they apply in relation to the contracts so mentioned.

(2) If at the commencement of Part III of this Act any legal proceedings are pending in the United Kingdom or in India to which the Secretary of State in Council is a party the Secretary of State shall be deemed to be substituted in those proceedings for the Secretary of State in Council and the provisions of sub section (1) of this section shall apply in relation to sums ordered to be paid and costs or expenses incurred by the Secretary of State or the Secretary of State in Council in or in connection with any such proceedings as they apply in relation to sums ordered to be paid in and costs or expenses incurred in or in connection with the defence of proceedings brought against the Secretary of State under the said sub section (1).

(3) Any contract made in respect of the affairs of the Federation or a Province by or on behalf of the Secretary of State after the commencement of Part III of this Act may provide that any proceedings under that contract shall be brought in the United Kingdom by or against the Secretary of State and any such proceedings may be brought accordingly and any sum ordered to be paid by the Secretary of State by way of debt damages or costs in any such proceedings and any costs or expenses incurred by the Secretary of State in or in connection therewith shall be paid out of the revenues of the Federation or the Province as the case may be.

(4) Nothing in this section shall be construed as imposing any liability upon the Exchequer of the United Kingdom in respect of any debt damages costs or expenses in or in connection with any proceedings brought or continued by or against the Secretary of State by virtue of this section or as derogating from the provisions of sub section (1) of the last preceding section.

(5) This section does not apply in relation to contracts or liabilities solely in connection with the affairs of Burma or Aden other than liabilities which are by this Act made liabilities of the Federation or to contracts or liabilities for purposes which will after the commencement of Part III of this Act be purposes of His Majesty's Representative for the exercise of the functions of the Crown in its relations with Indian States.

NOTES

Sec 200 SECTION EXPLAINED.—The establishment of a Federal Court is an essential element in a Federal Constitution. It is at once the interpreter and guardian of the Constitution and a tribunal for the determination of disputes between the constituent units of the Federation. (As to the jurisdiction of the Federal Court and the High Courts under the new Act see articles in the Madras Law Journal Vol 69 December 1935 Calcutta Weekly Notes December 1935 and January 1936 Parts Contemporary Law Review November 1935)

EXTRACTS FROM THE DEBATES IN PARLIAMENT (SOLICITOR GENERAL Par Deb Vol 300 No 70 134 135).—It would be impossible to overstate the importance of the Federal Court in the development of the constitution. But when we are considering appointments to a Court the first and chief thing is not perhaps so much the minimum qualifications as the method of appointment. That is why it is proposed that the members of the Federal Court including the Chief Justice shall be appointed by His Majesty which of course means on the advice of the Secretary of State and the Ministry in this country who will be held responsible to this House for any advice they give. That in our view is really the important thing. Whatever qualifications you put in unless the appointing authority takes the trouble to appoint the best men then no minimum qualifications will avail at all. At the same time we are impressed by what has been said as to the fact that this Federal Court will be dealing almost exclusively with what may be called pure points of law, of great difficulty * *

(4) Every person appointed to be a judge of the Federal Court shall, before he enters upon his office, make and subscribe before the Governor General or some person appointed by him in writing according to the form set out in that behalf in the Fourth Schedule to this Act

201 The judges of the Federal Court shall be entitled to such salaries and allowances, including allowances for expenses in respect of equipment and travelling upon appointment and to such rights in respect of leave and pensions, as may from time to time be fixed by His Majesty in Council

Provided that neither the salary of a judge nor his rights in respect of leave of absence or pension shall be varied to his disadvantage after his appointment

202 If the office of Chief Justice of India becomes vacant, or if the Chief Justice is, by reason of absence or for any other reason unable to perform the duties of his office, those duties shall until some person appointed by His Majesty to the vacant office has entered on the duties thereof, or until the Chief Justice has resumed his duties, as the case may be performed by such one of the other Judges of the Court as the Governor General may in his discretion appoint for the purpose [See also 3 and 4 Geo 6 Ch 5 Sec 5 infra]

203 The Federal Court shall be a Court of record and shall sit in Delhi and at such other place or places if any as the Chief Justice of India may, with the approval of the Governor General, from time to time appoint

204 (1) Subject to the provisions of this Act, the Federal Court shall to the exclusion of any other Court, have an original jurisdiction in any dispute between any two or more of the following parties, that is to say, the Federation any of the Provinces or any of the Federated States if and in so far as the dispute involves any question (whether of law or fact) on which the existence or extent of a legal right depends

Provided that the said jurisdiction shall not extend to—

(a) a dispute to which a State is a party unless the dispute—

(i) concerns the interpretation of this Act or of an Order in Council made thereunder, or the extent of the legislative or executive authority vested in the Federation by virtue of the Instrument of Accession of that State or

(ii) arises under an agreement made under Part VI of this Act in relation to the administration in that State of a law of the Federal Legislature or otherwise concern some matter with respect to which the Federal Legislature has power to make laws for that State or

(iii) arises under an agreement made after the establishment of the Federation with the approval of His Majesty's Representative for the exercise of the functions of the Crown in its relations with Indian States, between that

EXTRACTS FROM THE PARLIAMENTARY DEBATES (SPEECH OF THE SOLICITOR GENERAL)—In drafting this clause we have followed the recommendation of the Joint Select Committee. We have passed clauses which specifically deal with the matter of suits being brought against the Provinces or the Federation. But there are many cases to day in India—and there will continue to be such cases when this becomes law—in which private individuals have rights against and can sue the Federation. It would be most oppressive and inconvenient if any litigant who had a claim against the Federation—and it might be quite a small claim—had to go up from the far end of India to the central place where

State and the Federation or a Province, being an agreement which expressly provides that the said jurisdiction shall extend to such a dispute, the Federal Court will sit to prosecute his claim. It would be regarded as the greatest possible injustice in India and indeed I think it would have manifold great inconveniences. It would seem quite unnecessary in what I may call ordinary cases. But you may get cases where there is some question as to whether legislation is or is not ultra vires. We believe that the right and best procedure in that case is the procedure under the Bill. Let it go first to the local Court. Let it be sifted and dealt with there, and let it go from there to the Federal Court which is after all the final Court of appeal in some cases * * * As regards constitutional questions the case will be dealt with in the ordinary way first by the local Court and if there is any doubt about it and it seems a proper case for appeal it will be taken on appeal to the Federal Court which will have the advantage of having in this difficult matter the judgment of the first Court before it. For these reasons we believe that the scheme of the Bill under which original and exclusive jurisdiction is confined to disputes between units of the new constitution is better than the scheme proposed by my Hon. and learned friend (Parl Deb Vol 300 Part 70 1st April 1935 cols 140 142.)

Per Sulaiman J—The term legal right used in S 204 obviously means right recognised by law and capable of being enforced by the power of a State but not necessarily in a Court of law. It is a right of a party recognized and protected by a rule of law the violation of which would be a legal wrong done to his interest and respect for which is a legal duty even though no action may actually lie. The mere fact that under the previous Act the Provincial Governments were subordinate administrations under the control of the Central Government and could only have made a representation to the Governor General in Council or the Secretary of State would not be sufficient in itself for holding that the former could not possibly possess any legal rights at all against the Central Government even in respect of rights conferred upon them by the provisions of the Act or the rules made thereunder. If a legal right existed under the old Act S 204 of the new Act would not be inapplicable merely because the right related to an earlier period. 50 L W 209 = 2 Fed L J 123 = 1939 F C 58 = (1939) 2 M L J (Supp.) 1. The United Provinces instituted in the Federal Court a suit against the Central Government represented by the Governor General in Council for a declaration that S 106 (c) of the Cantonments Act (II of 1924) was ultra vires the then Indian Legislature that all fines imposed and realised by Criminal Courts for offences committed within the cantonment areas should be credited to the provincial revenues and that the plaintiffs were entitled to recover and adjust all such sums wrongly credited to the cantonment funds since 1924. Held that the dispute with regard to the validity of S 106 (c) of the Cantonments Act involved a question on which the existence of a legal right depended within the meaning of S 204 (1) of the Government of India Act 1935 notwithstanding the fact that before the Act of 1935 the provinces could not have sued the Central Government in any Court of law and the Federal Court had therefore jurisdiction to entertain the suit (1939) 2 M L J (Supp.) 1.

Sec 205. SUBSTANTIAL QUESTION OF LAW.—[See notes under Civil Procedure Code S 110 supra.] S 205 deals with the appellate jurisdiction of the Federal Court in appeals from High Courts in British India. It is to be observed that an appeal will lie from any judgment decree or final order of a High Court if the High Court certifies that the case involves a substantial question of law as to the interpretation of this Act or any Order in Council made thereunder. [C (1)] Appeals to the Privy Council are provided for by the Code of Civil Procedure Ss 109 117.

EXTRACTS FROM PARLIAMENTARY DEBATES (THE SOLICITOR GENERAL).—This Clause deals with the appellate jurisdiction of the Federal Court and provides that if in a case in the High Court it appears that a substantial question of law involving an interpretation either of this Act or any Order in Council made under it arises there shall be a right of appeal to the Federal Court if the High Court certifies that such a question of law arises. The second part of the Clause says that a person can appeal on that ground once he has got his certificate. There may be other grounds in the case and if they are proper grounds for appeal leave may be given * * * The main purpose of the Clause is to ensure that appeals which involve questions of the interpretation of the Constitution shall go to a higher Court. Nothing in the Clause affects the right of appeal to the Privy Council in cases outside the clause. If cases fall within the clause which involve matters of interpretation of the constitution parties will have to go to the Federal Court. There is a further 205 (1) An appeal shall lie to the Federal Court from any judgment, decree or final order of a High Court in British India if the High Court certifies that the case involves a substantial question of law as to the interpretation of this Act or any Order in Council made thereunder, and it shall be the duty of every High Court in British India to consider in every case whether or not any such question is involved and of its own motion to give or to withhold a certificate accordingly.

Similarly, decree must involve a determination of the rights of the parties. The order of the High Court dismissing the appeal from the lower Court's order refusing to fix the valuation or to specify a portion of the mortgaged property in the proclamation of sale is neither a judgment, decree nor a final order within the meaning of S 205 (1) of the Act. JURISDICTION OF FEDERAL COURT—CERTIFICATE OF HIGH COURT—IF CONDITION PRECEDENT—The certificate of the High Court that the case involves a substantial question of law as to the interpretation of the Act or any Order in Council made thereunder is a condition precedent to the exercise of jurisdiction by the Federal Court although if the certificate has once been given the case is at large and the applicant is not necessarily restricted in arguing his appeal to what may be called the constitutional issue. But until the certificate has been granted the Federal Court cannot entertain the case at all. 1938 O W N 1251=1938 F C 1

CERTIFICATION—DUTY OF HIGH COURT—NATURE OF—It is a well settled general rule that an absolute enactment must be obeyed or fulfilled exactly, but it is sufficient if a directory enactment be obeyed or fulfilled substantially. It is sufficient if the plain object of the directory provision is carried out. The duty imposed by S 205 on the High Court to consider in every case decided by it and to certify or withhold certification that the case involves a substantial question of law as to the interpretation of the Act or any Order in Council passed under it is only directory as distinguished from being absolute or mandatory and arises only in a case where there is reasonable ground for thinking that the question of law as to interpretation mentioned in S 205 may be involved. 1 L R (1940) Lah 68=67 I A 464=(1941) 1 M L J 130=52 L W 926=1940 P C 230 (P C)

EFFECT OF THE AVERAGE OF CERTIFICATE—S 205 imposes on the High Court the duty of considering and determining in every case as part of its judgment decree or final order the giving or withholding of the certificate. On such determination the jurisdiction to entertain an appeal from such judgment decree or final order depends and manifestly such determination whether it involves the granting or withholding of a certificate should be recorded not only for the information of the parties but also for the certification of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council and the Federal Court as to their jurisdiction to entertain an appeal. 67 I A 64=1 L R (1940) 1 Cal 26=1940 A I J 60=51 L W 93=44 C W N 317=42 Bom L R 315=1940 P C 16=(1940) 1 M L J 64 (P C). When the question is one of a discretion of the High Court the Federal Court will not in appeal interfere with the way in which the discretion was exercised or not exercise unless it appears that the High Court did not apply its mind at all to the question, or acted capriciously or in disregard of any legal principle or was influenced by some extraneous considerations wrong in law, and if there is no legal objection to the way in which discretion has or has not been exercised by the High Court the Federal Court would not in appeal substitute its own discretion to that of the High Court. 3 F L J 46=44 C W N (F R) 21=72 C L J 165=1940 F C 20=(1940) 1 M L J (Supp) 14. No appeal lies to the Federal Court in the absence of the certificate prescribed in S 205 of the Government of India Act and the refusal of a High Court to grant a certificate cannot be questioned by the Federal Court nor can the reasons which prompted the refusal be investigated by it. Even when the refusal of the certificate is alleged to be perverse and malicious and inspired by wicked or improper motives and assuming that the High Court has by refusing to grant a certificate deliberately deprived the Federal Court of a jurisdiction which Parliament has entrusted to it and is therefore guilty of a contempt of the Federal Court the Federal Court has no jurisdiction to interfere. The jurisdiction of the Federal Court is limited by statute and cannot be extended by a High Court acting even perversely or maliciously in withholding the certificate. The Court cannot do indirectly what it cannot do directly. The Federal Court cannot assent to the proposition that proceedings by way of contempt can ever be the appropriate remedy against a High Court even if it has acted perversely or maliciously. 55 L W 3=4 F L J 33=(1942) 1 M L J 74 (F C). inherent jurisdiction to grant special leave to appeal. The Federal Court being a statutory Court its jurisdiction must be collected from the terms of the statute which created it and there is nothing in the statute which gives the Court power to entertain an application for special leave to appeal. 49 L W 570=20 Pat L T 263=1939 P W N 203=2 Fed L J 121=1939 F C 42. Though every Court of superior jurisdiction no doubt possesses inherent powers for certain purposes there is no authority for the proposition that a Court by the exercise of any inherent powers can extend its appellate jurisdiction or increase its revisional authority over other Courts. The concluding words of S 205 (1) which impose a duty on every High Court to consider in each case whether or not a substantial question of law as to the interpretation of the Act or of any Order in Council made thereunder is involved and of its own motion to give or to withhold a certificate accordingly may reasonably be construed as giving the High Court the last word in the matter so far as this Section is concerned and as there is no statutory powers of revision or superintendence possessed by the Federal Court like those possessed by the High Court under S 224 Government of India Act or S 115 C P Code the Federal Court cannot entertain in exercise of its inherent power an application for revision of an order of a High Court refusing to grant a certificate under S 205 (1). 1938 O W N 1251=1938 F C 1. A litigant who apart from S 205 would have a right of appeal to the Privy Council is not deprived of that right by the refusal of the High Court to grant a certificate. S 205 (2) only applies where a certificate is given and has no application to a case where it has been refused. 1938 O W N 1251=1938 F C 1. The object of S 205 is to ensure that in every proceeding where a judgment decree or final order is made by any High Court in British India which involves a substantial question of law as to the interpretation of the Act or any Order in Council made thereunder the appeal if any that is the direct appeal shall lie to the Federal Court. The word direct is used because S 208 makes provision for an appeal in such a case on certain conditions from a decision of the Federal Court to His Majesty in Council. S 205 does not provide for a case where no certificate is given, however plain it may be that it ought to have been given. There is no provision express or implied taking away from His Majesty in Council the right to entertain a direct appeal in such case and a fortiori there is nothing taking away the right of direct appeal to His Majesty in Council in a case where no substantial question of law specified in S 205 could by any reasonable possibility arise. There is no condition precedent imposed on an appeal to His Majesty in Council in the absence of a certificate. The failure of the High Court to certify or withhold certification may be 'blamable' but third parties have nothing to do with that. Where in the absence of a certificate it appears to the Board on an appeal that there is ground for thinking that there is a matter for the consideration of the High Court and that they ought to have given or to have withheld a certificate the Board ought to decline to hear the appeal until the High Court have had an opportunity of doing one or the other. 67 L A 464=52 L W 926=(1941) 1 M L J 130=1940 P C 230 (P C).

Civil cases as may be specified therein, an appeal shall lie to the Federal Court from a judgment decree, or final order of a High Court in British India without any certificate. No appeal however, is to lie under any such Act unless—(a) the amount or value of the subject matter of the dispute in the Court of first instance and still in dispute on appeal was and is not less than fifty thousand rupees or such other sum not less than fifteen thousand rupees as may be specified by the Act or the judgment decree or final order involves directly or indirectly some claim or question respecting property of the like amount or value or (b) the Federal Court gives special leave to appeal. If the Federal Legislature thus enlarges the appellate jurisdiction of the Federal Court consequential provision may also be made for the abolition in whole or in part of direct appellate jurisdiction of the Federal Court to the Privy Council either with or without special leave. The provision for the enlargement of the appellate jurisdiction of the Federal Court takes the place of the proposal contained in the White Paper for the establishment of a separate Supreme Court to hear appeals from the Provincial High Courts. The Joint Select Committee were not for the adoption of this proposal. They said: A Supreme Court of this kind would be independent of and in no sense subordinate to the Federal Court, but it would be impossible to avoid a certain overlapping of jurisdiction owing to the difficulty of determining in particular cases whether or not a constitutional issue was raised by a case under appeal. This might involve the two Courts in undignified and very undesirable disputes. In the event of the appellate jurisdiction of the Federal Court being enlarged the Joint Select Committee assumed that the Court would sit in two Chambers the first dealing with federal cases and the second with appeals from the High Courts. S 214 accordingly enacts that if the Federal Legislature makes provision for enlarging the appellate jurisdiction of the Court, the rules shall provide for the constitution of a special division of the Court for the purpose of deciding all cases which would have been within the jurisdiction of the Court even if its jurisdiction had not been so enlarged. (S 214 infra)

EXTRACTS FROM THE PARLIAMENTARY DEBATES (THE SOLICITOR GENERAL) — The right of appeal from one Court to another is not a privilege which the rich always particularly value. The amounts which are only rough and ready are a measure of the importance of the case. The figures are arbitrary, but the idea of an amount as a criterion for the right of appeal already exists in respect of appeals in India and we think that these figures are the proper figures to put in the Clause. * * If a case involves a large sum of money it is obviously a case of importance to litigants. It is also true to say that cases which involve only small sums of money are much better settled in one Court without two or more rights of appeal. That is in the interest of all. It is better to have justice promptly administered in one Court rather than to be dragged from one Court to another. I do not think anybody need be shocked at the fact that a sum of money is in issue as a convenient, rough and ready test. If there is any case involving special circumstances it would be one in which the Courts in the exercise of their discretion would allow an appeal under paragraph (b). With regard to sub S (2) the Federal Legislature can give a right of appeal in certain classes of cases from the High Court to the Federal Court. Obviously, if you do that you cannot have a double right of appeal. One party cannot be going to the Federal Court and also to the Privy Council in the same class of case. The right of appeal to the Privy Council is safe guarded to this extent that an appeal may be brought to His Majesty in Council from a decision of the Federal Court by leave of the Federal Court or of His Majesty in Council. (S 208) At present in certain classes of cases there is an appeal as of right from the High

Sec 207—Under this section an appeal will lie to the Federal Court from a High Court in a Federated State by way of special case to be stated for the opinion of the Federal Court on the ground that a question of law has been wrongly decided. Such question must be one which—

Sec 208—S 110 preserves the prerogative right of the Crown to grant special leave to appeal from any Court. But the Select Committee said: We may perhaps point out that the jurisdiction of the Privy Council in relation to the States will be based upon the voluntary act of the Rulers themselves and their instrument of accession. Their Lordships do not generally advise Her Majesty to exercise her prerogative by admitting an appeal to Her Majesty in Council from the Supreme Court of the Dominions save where the case is of gravity involving matter of public interest or some important question of law or affecting property of considerable amount or where the case is otherwise of some public importance or of a very substantial character. Leave to appeal was refused in a case where the decision of the Court dealt only with the scaling down of decrees obtained before the Madras Agricultural Relief Act came into force on the ground that the number of such decrees must necessarily be small and that there could be no addition to their number. 73 C L J 429=34 L W 61=45 C W N (F R) 96=4 F L J 16=1941 F C 69= (1941) 2 M L J 33. When dealing with an application for leave to appeal to the Privy Council, the Federal Court must be satisfied that the matter is one of importance and that there is really a substantial question to be determined. The Federal Court held that it was unable to hold that there was room for such serious doubt on the point as to whether S 292 of the Constitution Act deprived the Legislatures in India of the power to legislate with retrospective effect as to justify it in holding that that was a substantial question on which

Sec. 212: SECTION EXPLAINED.—"What this section says first is "that the law declared by the Federal Court and by any judgment of the Privy Council shall so far as applicable be recognised as binding on and shall be followed by all Courts in British India." That is an obvious and necessary provision, because these are superior Courts and their decisions must be followed and recognised by lower Courts. So far as the Indian States are concerned it provides that any decision of the Federal Court and the Privy Council, "so far as respects the application and interpretation of this Act or any Order in Council thereunder or any matter with respect to which the Federal Legislature has power to make laws in relation to the State,"—In those cases the decision shall be recognised as binding and followed by the Courts of the Federated State. (Parl. Deb., Vol. 300, No. 71, 2nd April, 1935, Col. 209, Speech of the Solicitor-General.)

Sec. 213: SECTION EXPLAINED.—"This section deals simply with the power of the Governor-General to refer any question of law, on which he thinks it desirable to obtain the opinion of the Federal Court, to that Court for a decision. There is an analogous power in a well known section of the Privy Council Act." (Parl. Deb., Vol. 300, No. 71, 2nd April, 1935, Cols 213-214, Speech of the Attorney-General. See S. 4 of the Judicial Committee Act, 1833.) In certain circumstances "may" and "shall" are interchangeable expressions. "May" in this position means "shall" having regard to the consideration that you cannot compel a Court to answer a question, although, no doubt, they will regard it as their duty to answer it having regard to the powers that are conferred on them. (Ibid.) This advisory jurisdiction of the Federal Court is analogous to that possessed by the Privy Council under S. 4 of the Judicial Committee Act, 1833, which provides that His Majesty may refer to the Committee for their opinion any matters whatsoever as His Majesty may think fit, and that the Committee shall thereupon hear and consider the same, and shall advise His Majesty thereon. Procedure under the Judicial Committee Act, 1833, differs from that under S. 213 of this Act in one respect—dissenting judgments are not delivered in the Privy Council. In allowing expression of dissent the Federal Court follows the practice of the International Court at the Hague. Sec 209 REMISSION OF CASE TO HIGH COURT—POWERS OF FEDERAL COURT.—The Federal Court in the exercise of its appellate jurisdiction can remit under Ss 205 and 209 (1) a case to the High Court with a declaration that there shall be substituted for the judgment decree or order of the High Court a judgment decree or order which recognizes the state of the law which comes into force while the appeal to Federal Court is pending without discussing the law as it existed at the time when the High Court had seisin of the case. 2 F L J 183=43 C W N (F C R) 193=1939 F C 74=(1939) 2 M L J (Supp) 45.

Secs 210 and 212.—Where the Federal Court allows an appeal it is to remit the case to the Court from which the appeal was brought with a declaration as to the judgment decree or order which is to be substituted for the judgment decree or order appealed against. The Court from which the appeal was brought is to give effect to the decision of the Federal Court. Under S 210 all authorities civil and judicial throughout the Federation are to act in aid of the Federal Court. [C] (1) S 212 provides that the law declared by the Federal Court and by any judgment of the Privy Council shall so far as applicable be recognised as binding on all Courts in British India. It is also to be binding in any Federated State so far as respects the application and interpretation of this Act or any other Order in Council thereunder or any other matter with respect to which the Federal Legislature has power to make laws in relation to the State.

Sec 210 (2) SCOPE AND EFFECT OF JURISDICTION OF FEDERAL COURT IN CONTEMPT.—S 210 (2) confers powers not jurisdiction and unless in any given case the Court has jurisdiction it has no powers to exercise. The Federal Court as Court of record has all the powers belonging to such a Court including the power to punish

216 (1) The administrative expenses of the Federal Court, including all salaries allowances and pensions payable to or in respect of the officers and servants of the Court shall be charged upon the revenues of the Federation, and any fees or other moneys taken by the Court shall form part of those revenues

(2) The Governor General shall exercise his individual judgment as to the amount to be included in respect of the administrative expenses of the Federal Court in any estimates of expenditure laid by him before the Chambers of the Federal Legislature

217 References in any provision of this Part of this Act to a High Court in a Federated State shall be construed as references to any Court which His Majesty may after consultation with the Ruler of the State declare to be a High Court for the purposes of that provision

218 Nothing in this chapter shall be construed as conferring, or empowering the Federal Legislature to confer, any right of appeal to the Federal Court in any case in which a High Court in British India is exercising jurisdiction on appeal from a Court outside British India or as affecting any right of appeal in any such case to His Majesty in Council with or without leave

CHAPTER II

THE HIGH COURTS IN BRITISH INDIA

219 (1) The following Courts shall in relation to British India be deemed to be High Courts for the purposes of this Act that is to say the High Courts in Calcutta Madras Bombay, Allahabad Lahore and Patna the Chief Court in Oudh the Judicial Commissioner's Courts in the Central Provinces and Berar, in the North West Frontier Province and in Sind any other Court in British India constituted or reconstituted under this chapter as a High Court and any other comparable Court in British India which His Majesty in Council may declare to be a High Court for the purposes of this Act

Provided that if provision has been made before the commencement of Part III of this Act for the establishment of a High Court to replace any Court or Courts mentioned in this sub-section then as from the establishment of the new Court this section shall have effect as if the new Court were mentioned therein in lieu of the Court or Courts so replaced

(2) The provisions of this chapter shall apply to every High Court in British India [See Amendment by 3 and 4 Geo 6 Ch 5 S 6 infra]

(5) All proceedings in the Federal Court shall be in the English language

215 The Federal Legislature may make provision by Act for conferring upon the Federal Court such supplemental powers not inconsistent with any of the provisions of this Act as may appear to be necessary or desirable for the purpose of enabling the Court more effectively to exercise the jurisdiction conferred upon it by or under this Act

Sec 213 REFERENCE UNDER—ONUS—CASE ANSWER AND REJOINDER—PROCEDURE—Where a special reference under S 213 relates to an Act of a Provincial Legislature and the Advocate General of India challenges its validity on behalf of the Governor General of India the onus is on him in the first instance to state the facts and arguments and authorities showing that the Act or any provisions thereof is or are ultra vires of the Provincial Legislature concerned. It would then be for the Advocate General of that Province to file his case stating any further facts which may be considered necessary and meeting the arguments of the Advocate General of India and citing the authorities upon which he proposes to rely at the hearing. The position would be reversed if a Province were challenging the validity of an Act of the Central Legislature. The question whether there should be any rejoinder by the party challenging the validity of the Act must be considered after the opposite party has filed his case. 1938 P W N 609=1 Fed L J R 1

See 215 SECTION EXPLAINED—This is a clause put in purely out of precaution in case it should turn out that in some very important and vital matter some supplemental power is necessary for the purpose of enabling the Court more effectively to exercise its jurisdiction. Where you are dealing with such important matters as this it is thought wise to put in an enabling clause to enable the Legislature should the need arise to fill up the gap. The Committee will see that the powers under the Clause are definitely limited and restricted. The powers are to be such as may appear necessary to enable the Court to exercise the jurisdiction conferred upon it by or under pective Provincial Governments and the new Act makes provision accordingly

Proviso—The Proviso is intended "to meet the possibility of what is now the Judicial Commissioner's Court in the Central Provinces and Berar being as may well happen converted into a High Court before this Bill becomes an Act. At present it is referred to as what is now namely, the Judicial Commissioner's Court in the Central Provinces and Berar. It may well be that before the Bill becomes an Act it will have been turned into a High Court and the amendment merely makes provision in case this happens before that date" (Parl. Deb., Vol. 300 No. 71, 2nd April, 1935 Col. 244.)

[N B—Now the High Court of Nagpur has been constituted by Letters Patent—See Nagpur Letters Patent, infra.]

Sec. 220—The former statutory requirement that not less than one third of the Judges of every High Court must have been called to the English, Scottish or Irish Bar, and that not less than one third must be members of the Indian Civil Service is abrogated. "We are informed", said the Joint Select Committee in their Report, "that the rigidity of this rule has sometimes caused difficulty in the selection of Judges." They also said that the Civil Service Judges are an important and valuable element in the judiciary, and that their presence adds greatly to the strength of the High Courts. Before the Act the Civil Service Judges were not eligible for permanent appointment as Chief Justice of a High Court. His Majesty's freedom of choice is no longer fettered in this respect under the present Act. The Joint Select Committee said, "We need hardly add that our acceptance of the proposal to abrogate the statutory proportion so far as barristers are concerned implies no doubt as to the necessity of continuing in the interests of the maintenance of British legal traditions to recruit a reasonable proportion of barristers or advocates from the United Kingdom as Judges of the High Courts." In India there is not the distinction in the lower ranks between the Executive and the subordinate judiciary and it is quite inevitable whether you federalise the High Courts or keep them provincial as they are now, that the subordinate judiciary will have to be provincial. I suggest that there is every objection against taking the higher ranks of the judiciary and making them federal while maintaining the lower ranks under provincial administration. All sorts of administrative difficulties will at once occur, and apart from those it seems to me that there will be a grave danger of the Provinces regarding the High Court as isolated and insulated from the Province itself, as something imposed by the Federation from outside with the result that there will much more likelihood of friction between the Local Government on the one hand and the High Court on the other, and within the Province, between the subordinate judiciary, which is to remain part of the administration, and the federalised High Court. The Joint Select Committee therefore recommended that these Courts should remain part of the Provincial Administration, accompanied by the safeguards that they are to be Crown appoint-new appointment is made. It would be preposterous to hold that during the interval between the death and new appointment there is no properly constituted High Court. The vacancy in the Office implies that the office exists which is distinct from the case of an abolition of the office. Where the Chief Justice of the High Court dies during the vacation of the High Court the Office of Chief Justice does not die with him. It still continues though it remains vacant till filled up. The constitution of the Court remains unbroken and unchanged. So far as the jurisdiction of a vacation Bench of the High Court to hear and decide cases is concerned that cannot be questioned because the Vacation Bench is not required to do any of the duties of the Chief Justice. The only effect of the vacancy in the office of Chief Justice is that so long as the vacancy continues there would be no one to perform his duties until the Governor-General appoints some one of the other Judges to do the same under S. 222 (1) of the Government of India Act. The death of the Chief Justice and the consequent vacancy in his office does not affect the jurisdiction of the Vacation Bench in the least or render it incompetent to pass orders in any case within its jurisdiction as provided by the law and the Rules of the High Court. 17 Pat. 574=19 Pat. Sec. 223* EXTRACTS FROM PARLIAMENTARY DEBATES (ATTORNEY GENERAL) — The scheme of the Act provides that the Provincial Legislatures shall have competence to legislate in respect of the jurisdiction of the High Court in any matters in connection with which they may pass legislation. It will be seen at once how important it is that if the Provincial Legislature is to have power to legislate upon any particular matter it shall also have the power to legislate in respect of the necessary jurisdiction of the High Court as being connected with that matter. My Noble Friend has suggested some ways in which legislation might be passed by the Provincial Legislature derogating from the jurisdiction of the High Court. I am informed that judging from present day and past experience the tendency has been and would be in the future in exactly the opposite direction. The inclinations of the Legislatures has been to increase the jurisdiction of the High Court and not to diminish it or derogate from it. The reason that I would mention as the one which makes it impossible to accept the amendment of my honourable and learned Friend is that his amendment makes it impossible for the Provincial Legislature to derogate from the jurisdiction of the High Court. That would really mean that the Federal Legislature would have to come in and legislate in respect of jurisdiction to deal with that which had been made the subject of legislation in the Provincial Legislature and you would get an inextricable tangle between the two or you might easily get such a tangle. In spite of what I have 224 (1) Every High Court shall have superintendence over all Courts in India for the time being subject to its appellate jurisdiction and may do any of the following things, that is to say,—

Administrative functions of High Courts

(a) call for returns,

(b) make and issue general rules and prescribe forms for regulating the practice and proceedings of such Courts,

(c) prescribe forms in which books, entries and accounts shall be kept by the officers of any such Courts, and

(d) settle tables of fees to be allowed to the sheriff, attorneys and all clerks and officers of Courts

Provided that such rules forms and tables shall not be inconsistent with the provision of any law for the time being in force, and shall require the previous approval of the Governor

(2) Nothing in this section shall be construed as giving to a High Court any jurisdiction to question any judgment of any inferior Court which is not otherwise subject to appeal or revision

said as to the probable tendencies being in the direction of increasing the jurisdiction of the High Court rather than diminishing it provision has been made in the Instrument of Instructions by which any legislation on derogation from the powers of the High Court so as to endanger the position which the Court is by such Act designed to fill is to be sent by the Governor for the consideration of the Governor General. That would give the most ample safeguards against the possibilities suggested by my noble Friend. I hope that my honourable Friends will feel that the safeguard which will be inserted in the instrument of Instruction will prevent them from feeling any fears as to the jurisdiction of the High Court being tampered with by the Provincial Legislature. (Parl Deb Vol 300 No 71 2nd April 1935 Col 294.)

Sec 224.—This section reproduces the terms of S 107 of the old Act with two variations one of which alone is of substance

(1) The provision as to transfer of cases to itself under cl. (d) has been omitted for the reason stated by the Attorney General—

The Codes of Criminal and Civil Procedure already provide for this power in connection with the ordinary jurisdiction of the Courts that is to say the power to direct the transfer of a suit or appeal from one Court to another of equal or superior jurisdiction. It seems most undesirable to take one of the powers conferred upon the Courts by the Code and introduce it into a section which deals only with administrative matters. (Parl Deb, Vol 302 Col 994.) The provision also which prescribes the previous approval of the Governor to the validity of the rule made by the High Court under this section make a departure from the previous law in the case of the High Court of Calcutta for which the previous approval of the Governor General in Council was formerly prescribed thus rendering all the High Courts uniform in respect of this matter.

Cl (2).—This deprives the High Courts of the revisional powers which they have been exercising over Courts subject to their appellate jurisdiction ever since the constitution of the High Courts in 1861 originally under S 15 of the High Courts Act of 1861 and later under S 107 of the Government of India Act 1915. The revisional powers of the High Courts would therefore hereafter be confined to those cases where the Indian enactments confer such a power. The term inferior Court is not defined by the Act and in the context it can presumably mean Courts inferior to the High Court which are subject to the appellate jurisdiction of the High Court within the opening words of this section. It is submitted that the subsection does not affect the powers of the High Court to issue writs of certiorari and prohibition in respect of the proceedings and determination of tribunals which are not inferior Courts' e.g. in those cases where jurisdiction is conferred on persona designata to determine judicially the rights of parties or in cases of quasi-judicial tribunals. (See also Notes under S 220 supra Parl Deb and Joint Par Com Report.)

Provided that such rules, forms and tables shall not be inconsistent with the provision of any law for the time being in force, and shall require the previous approval of the Governor

(2) Nothing in this section shall be construed as giving to a High Court any jurisdiction to question any judgment of any inferior Court which is not otherwise subject to appeal or revision

said as to the probable tendencies being in the direction of increasing the jurisdiction of the High Court rather than diminishing it, provision has been made in the Instrument of Instructions by which any delegation derogative from the powers of the High Court so as to endanger the position which the Court is by such Act designed to fill is to be sent by the Governor for the consideration of the Governor General. That would give the most ample safeguards against the possibilities suggested by my noble Friend. I hope that my honourable Friends will feel that the safeguard which will be inserted in the instrument of Instruction will prevent them from feeling any fears as to the jurisdiction of the High Court being tampered with by the Provincial legislature. (Parl Deb Vol 300 No 71 2nd April 1935 Col 294.)

Secs 223 and 224.—The High Court has no jurisdiction under the Government of India Act, 1935 to interfere with an order passed by a Deputy Collector in execution proceedings under the Bengal Rent Act I L R (1941) 2 Cal 366=4 F L J (H C) 405

Sec 224.—This section reproduces the terms of S 107 of the old Act with two variations—one of which alone is of substance

(1) The provision as to transfer of cases to itself under cl. (b) has been omitted for the reason stated by the Attorney General—“The Codes of Criminal and Civil Procedure already provide for this power in connection with the ordinary jurisdiction of the Courts that is to say, the power to direct the transfer of a suit or appeal from one Court to another of equal or superior jurisdiction. It seems most undesirable to take one of the powers conferred upon the Courts by the Code, and introduce it into a section which deals only with administrative matters” (Parl Deb, Vol 302 Col 994.) The provision

also which prescribes the previous approval of the Governor to the validity of the rule made by the High Court under this section make a departure from the previous law in the case of the High Court of Calcutta for which the previous approval of the Governor General in Council was formerly prescribed thus rendering all the High Courts uniform in respect of this matter

Cl. (2).—This deprives the High Courts of the revisional powers which they have been exercising over Courts subject to their appellate jurisdiction ever since the constitution of the High Courts in 1861 originally under S 15 of the High Courts Act of 1861 and later under S 107 of the Government of India Act 1915. The revisional powers of the High Courts would therefore hereafter be confined to those cases where the Indian enactments confer such a power. The term inferior Court is not defined by the Act and in the context it can presumably mean Courts inferior to the High Court which are subject to the appellate jurisdiction of the High Court within the opening words of this section. It is submitted that the subsection does not affect the powers of the High Court to issue writs of certiorari and prohibition in respect of the proceedings and determination of tribunals which are not ‘inferior Courts’, e.g. in those cases where jurisdiction is conferred on persona designata to determine judicially the rights of parties, or in cases of quasi-judicial tribunals. (See also Notes under S 220 supra Parl Deb and Joint Par Com Report.)

In fact S 223 preserves those powers. All that S 224 (2) means is that the High Courts cannot so interpret sub S (1) of that section as to usurp the powers which they did not possess before S 224 deals with the administrative functions of the High Court and it does not affect the powers conferred upon the High Courts by the Letters Patent and the Charter Act powers co extensive with those of the Court of the Kings Bench in England including the power to issue writs of certiorari in respect of proceedings of Subordinate Courts tribunals or officers acting judicially 41 Bom L R 98=1939 Bom 471 The word 'judgment' as used in S 224 of the Government of India Act is used in the English sense and embraces an order in the same way as the word 'judgments' used in the Letters Patent include not only judgments as understood by the C P Code in India but also all final orders 1940 N L J 93

The question whether the Urban Immovable Property Tax imposed by the Bombay Finance Act of 1932 as amended in 1939 Part VI can be raised by the municipal authorities in the manner provided is a matter concerning the revenue and therefore the jurisdiction of the High Court to determine the question is barred by S 226 I L R (1940) Bom 58 = 3 F L J (H C) 25 = 42 Bom I R 10 = 1940 Bom 65 (F B). Under S 226 (1) the High Court has no original jurisdiction to entertain a suit challenging the legality of an order for confiscation of smuggled goods passed under the Sea Customs Act as the seizure and confiscation of the goods is an act ordered or done in the collection of revenue. No irregularity of procedure and no error in the conclusions arrived at can per se exclude the application of this section when there is no allegation that the Officer of Customs directed the confiscation of the goods malā fide or in the exercise of powers conferred on him by Sea Customs Act in circumstances to which he knew the provisions of the Act were not applicable. 3 Fed L J (H C) 50 = I L R (1939) 1 Cal 257 = 43 C W N 445 = 1939 Cal 763. The expression "the revenue" in S 106 (2) of the Government of India Act does apply to the stamp duty payable under the Indian Stamp Act and such stamp duty does fall within the terms of the section. Where the contention is that the stamp authorities are not entitled to charge any particular stamp duty it must be a 'matter concerning the revenue' within the meaning of S 106 (2) and any act ordered to be done in the collection of the revenue would likewise be a matter concerning the revenue. An act done by the revenue authorities for the purpose of collecting the revenue which they consider to be properly leviable in accordance with law is an act done in accordance with law and can never give rise to any cause of action against the officers of the Secretary of State. The High Court has no jurisdiction to entertain a suit in such a matter by reason of the bar imposed by S 106 (2), and the public have no remedy against what may turn out to be a wrong and arbitrary decision of the stamp authorities with regard to the payment of duty chargeable in respect of any particular document, save and except the somewhat doubtful remedy provided by S 56 of the Stamp Act I L R (1939) Bom 371 = 2 Fed L J (P II) 60 = 41 Bom L R 297 = 1939 Bom 215. CHAPTER II

CIVIL SERVICES

General Provisions

Tenure of office of persons employed in civil capacities in India.

240 (1) Except as expressly provided by this Act, every person who is a member of a civil service of the Crown in India, or holds any civil post under the Crown in India, holds office during His Majesty's pleasure.

NOTES.

Sec 240: TENURE OF OFFICE OF CIVIL SERVANTS.—This section reproduces in substance the provisions of S 96-B of the Government of India Act, 1919. The slight variations in the language of the opening words of this section compared with the old section serve to emphasise that the tenure of all civil services is at pleasure, if ever it was open to doubt. The use of the words "subject to the provisions of this Act and the rules made thereunder" before specifying the tenure gave rise to the argument in Venkata Rao v Secretary of State, (1937) 1 M.L.J. 529=64 I.A. 55, that the Statute gave servants of the Crown a right enforceable by action to hold office in accordance with the rules and that they could only be dismissed as provided by the rules and in accordance with the procedure prescribed thereby. Their Lordships of the Judicial Committee negatived this contention observing: "S 96-B in express terms states that office is held at pleasure. There is therefore no need for the implication of this term and no room for its exclusion. The argument for a limited and special kind of employment during pleasure but with an added contractual term that the rules are to be observed is at once too artificial and too far reaching to commend itself for acceptance" (See Venkata Rao v Secretary of State, (1937) 1 M.L.J. 529 (535)=64 I.A. 55). The omission of those words from the section makes it clear that the tenure is an unqualified one at pleasure. The exceptions provided for in the opening words relate to the office of Judges of the High Courts and the Federal Court, and of the Auditor-General of India and the Auditor-General of Home Accounts whose tenure of office is during good behaviour and who are removable only on the ground of misbehaviour or infirmity of mind or body at the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council on reference being made to them by His Majesty report that the official ought in any such ground to be removed. It is a fundamental principle, based on public policy, that the Crown should have the unfettered discretion to remove a public servant at pleasure, and even a contract to engage him for a fixed term, if there be no statute law authorising it, would not be available to him, such a contract being void as against public policy. This power to dismiss at will can only be controlled by a statute but cannot be abridged or controlled by rules or regulations of service, even if those rules or regulations are framed under powers given by a statute. Consequently, the dismissal or discharge of a civil servant in violation of the Fundamental Rules would not entitle him to an appeal to the Civil Court but would leave him to appeal only to the administrative authorities. 42 C.W.N. 1186 = 68 C.L.J. 320 = 1938 Cal. 759. See also 46 L.W. 242 = 1937 Mad. 777. A servant of the Crown in India holds his appointment at the pleasure of the Crown and is liable to dismissal at the will and pleasure of the Crown, notwithstanding a contract to the contrary, unless the Crown has deprived itself of its prerogative in some way expressly recognised by law, nor can an action for wrongful dismissal be entertained even though a special contract be proved. A refusal to employ a person to whom employment has been offered does not stand on a different footing, because the power to dismiss an employee at pleasure involves the power to refuse to employ a person accepting an offer of employment. 39 Bom. L. R. 807 = 1937 Bom. 449. The words 'subject to the rules' appearing in S. 96-B, of Government of India Act, are not superfluous and ineffective. The section contains a statutory and solemn assurance that the tenure of office held by servants of the Crown though at pleasure, will not be subject to capricious or arbitrary action but will be regulated by rule. The provisions for appeal in the rules are made pursuant to the principle so laid down. Redress therefore in such cases is not obtainable from the Courts by action. It is so even where there has been serious and complete failure to adhere to important and fundamental rules, as for instance in the case of a person who has been dismissed from service without any investigation into the charge. The remedy of the person aggrieved does not lie by a suit in Court but by way of appeal of official kind. 64 I.A. 55 = 1. L. R. (1937) Mad. 532 = 1937 P. C. 31 = (1937) 1 M. L. J. 529 (P. C.). Although by virtue of S. 96-B, a statutory right is created between the Crown and the servant, it is not to be implied that any provisions in Statute 23 of 1871, repugnant to the terms of the Statute creating such right are repealed or rendered inapplicable to such a case. Statute of 1919 does not confer right of action to enforce the rules made thereunder. 1. L. R. (1937) Mad 517 = 64 I. A. 40 = 41 C. W. N. 545 = 1937 P. C. 27 = (1937) 1 M. L. J. 515 (P. C.). In a case in which after Government officials, duly competent and duly authorised in that behalf, have arrived honestly at one decision, their successors in office after the decision has been acted upon and is in effective operation, cannot purport to enter upon a reconsideration of the matter and to arrive at another and totally different decision. Where a Sub-Inspector of Police was granted an invalid pension by a competent authority and thus duly ceased to be in service, and the officer succeeding the authority, which had granted the pension, reconsidered the matter and ordered his removal from the service. Held, that the servant had every right to complain of the stoppage of pension as a breach of rules relating to pensions. 64 I.A. 40 = 1. L. R. (1937) Mad 517 = 1937 P. C. 27 = (1937) 1 M. L. J. 515 (P. C.). R. 55 of the Civil Services (Classification, Control and Appeal) Rules, which provides for the case of a departmental inquiry into charges against a Government servant who is subject to the rule, contains a safeguard to the effect that none of the graver penalties—dismissal, removal or reduction—which the authority concerned is empowered to inflict can be imposed upon the person charged unless he has been given an adequate opportunity of defending himself. But the rule does not state that the authority concerned shall itself hold the inquiry. The authority is competent under the rule to depute some subordinate officer to hold the inquiry. The purpose of the rule is to enable a Government servant to defend himself when his conduct is the subject of a charge which is to be departmentally investigated. And so long as the conditions of the rule are followed, there is nothing prejudicial to the Government servant in the circumstance that the inquiry is held not by the authority itself which imposes the punishment but by some subordinate officer deputed by that authority for the purpose. 1937 M W N 821 = 46 L W. 531 = 1937 Mad. 735 = (1937) 2 M. L. J. 189. See also 1937 Oudh 209. The stipulation or proviso as to dismissal in S. 96-B is itself of statutory force and stands on a footing quite other than any matters of rule which are of infinite variety and can be changed from time to time. This statutory safeguard should be observed with the utmost care and a deprivation of pension based upon a dismissal purporting to be made by an official, who is prohibited by statute from making it, rests upon an illegal and improper foundation. 64 I. See also 4 F.L.J. (H.C.) 400. A servant of the Crown who is dismissed from service has no cause of action against the Crown, although the dismissal is by an authority subordinate to the one who appointed him and is, therefore, made in contravention of the very terms of the Government of India Act. A mere declaration by the Civil Court that the dismissal is illegal and that the servant is fit to be reinstated to his post will not serve any useful purpose. Because he was illegally dismissed, it does not necessarily follow that he was a good officer or that he might not have been legally dismissed and justifiably dismissed on proper grounds and after a proper enquiry. 44 C.W.N. 79=71 C.L.J. 95. But see (1942) 1 M.L.J. 77. It cannot be said that since S. 240 of the Act of 1935 had re-enacted with amendments S. 96-B of the earlier Act (on which the appellant's cause of action was based) the Act of 1935 must pro tanto be regarded as retrospective, so that a Court which had founded its judgment on the provisions of S. 96-B must in law be deemed to have been interpreting the provisions of S. 240 of the Act of 1935. 1938 O.W.N. 1251=1938 F.C. 1.

SECS. 240 (2) AND 243: DISMISSAL OF SUB-INSPECTOR OF POLICE BY AUTHORITY SUBORDINATE TO THAT WHICH APPOINTED HIM—SUIT TO DECLARE DISMISSAL VOID.—A Sub-

Inspector of Police appointed by I. G. of Police was dismissed by the Deputy I. G. of Police. After an unsuccessful appeal against such dismissal to the I. G. and the Provincial Government the dismissed officer filed a suit to declare his dismissal void on the ground among others that his dismissal by authority subordinate to that which appointed him was opposed to S. 240 (2) of the Government of India Act. On a preliminary issue it was held that the plaintiff had no remedy by civil action and it was upheld by the appellate Court. On appeal to the Federal Court, it was held that sub-S. (2) of S. 240 contained a statutory prohibition to the effect that no office-holder shall be dismissed from service by any authority subordinate to that by which he was appointed, and that the section had been enacted in unqualified terms and the protection thus afforded could not be qualified or taken away by statutory rules. Held, further, that the plaintiff was entitled to invoke the aid. S. 240 (2) and that S. 243 had not the effect of depriving him of the benefit of sub-S. (2) of S. 240. It was also held that the dismissal by the I. G. of the appeal against the order of dismissal by the Deputy I. G. was not equivalent to a dismissal from office by the I. G. Under the circumstances their Lordships thought it best to say, that the plaintiff was at least entitled to a declaration that the order of dismissal passed against him was void and inoperative and that the Courts below were not justified in dismissing the suit as wholly unsustainable (1942) 1 M.L.J. 77. But see 44 C.W.N. 79=71 C.L.J. 895, supra.

(2) Any pension which under the rules in force immediately before the commencement of Part III of this Act was payable to or in respect of any person who having been a judge of a High Court within the meaning of this Act or of the High Court at Rangoon retired before the commencement of the said Part III shall notwithstanding anything in this Act or the Government of Burma Act 1935 continue to be payable in accordance with those rules and shall be charged on the revenues of the Federation

(3) Any liability of the Federation or of any Province to or in respect of any person who is at the commencement of Part III of this Act a judge of a High Court within the meaning of this Act or to or in respect of any such person as is mentioned in sub section (2) of this section being a liability to pay a pension granted to or in respect of any such person or any other liability of such a nature as to have been enforceable in legal proceedings against the Secretary of State in Council if this Act had not been passed shall notwithstanding anything in this Act or the Government of Burma Act 1935 be deemed for the purposes of the provisions of Part VII of this Act relating to legal proceedings to be a liability arising under a statute passed before the commencement of Part III of this Act

254 (1) Appointments of persons to be and the posting and promotion of district judges etc of district judges in any Province shall be made by the Governor of the Province exercising his individual judgment and the High Court shall be consulted before a recommendation as to the making of any such appointment is submitted to the Governor

(2) A person not already in the service of His Majesty shall only be eligible to be appointed a district judge if he has been for not less than five years a barrister a member of the Faculty of Advocates in Scotland or a pleader and is recommended by the High Court for appointment

(3) In this and the next succeeding section the expression district judge includes additional district judge joint district judge assistant district judge chief judge of a small cause court chief presidency magistrate sessions judge additional sessions judge and assistant sessions judge

255 (1) The Governor of each Province shall after consultation with the Subordinate civil judicial Provincial Public Service Commission and with the High Court make rules defining the standard of qualifications to be attained by persons desirous of entering the subordinate civil judicial service of a Province

256 No recommendation shall be made for the grant of magisterial powers or of enhanced magisterial powers to or the withdrawal of any magisterial powers from any person save after consultation with the district magistrate in which he is of the district in which he is working or with the Chief Presidency Magistrate, as the case may be

Sec 27 INDEMNITY FOR THE PAST
—This section carries out the recommendations of the Joint Parliamentary Committee in Para 283 of their Report. They state "The White Paper proposes that there shall be a full indemnity against civil and criminal proceedings in respect of all acts before the commencement of the Constitution Act done in good faith and done or purported to be done in the execution of duty. In view of threats which have been made in certain quarters especially against the Police we think that it is justifiable to give this measure of protection to men who have done no more than their duty in very difficult and trying circumstances. Explaining the section, it was stated in Parliament 'The section deals with past acts. It does not take the exact form of an indemnity but it is an indemnity of a kind. As far as the future is concerned obviously it would not be right to give what would appear to be in any sense an indemnity in advance. There are no doubt special circumstances which make it desirable to have something in the nature of an indemnity. In regard to the future as I have indicated obviously it would be very undesirable and indeed wrong to appear to be casting a cloak in advance irrespective of the type of charge that might be made (Par Deb Vol Col 877) In regard to the future the protection is afforded by the next section S 271

SECS 270 AND 271 PROTECTION AFFORDED TO PUBLIC SERVANT—NATURE AND EXTENT OF—S 270 (1) applies but only to criminal proceedings but also to the institution of civil proceedings. In the institution of criminal proceedings the protection of public interests is the main concern and it may well be left to the Local Government to determine the question of the expediency of a prosecution from that point of view. But when a citizen seeks a civil remedy against a public servant the Legislature must be presumed to have been very cautious in depriving the aggrieved citizens of redress in a Court of law and any restrictions on such a remedy imposed in the interest of the public servant should not be lightly extended so as to unduly restrict the remedy of the citizen. 50 L W 93=43 C W N (F C R) 50=2 Fed L J 153=1939 F C 43=(1939) 2 M L J (Supp) 23 S 270 is very wide in its terms and prohibits the institution of proceedings in respect of the acts described therein against all servants of the Crown employed in connexion with the affairs of the province whether they are gazetted officers or not. 184 I C 680=1939 Lah 479 It is quite obvious from a perusal of the various sections of Part V of the Government of India Act that crown services include the subordinate as well as the superior civil services and there is no warrant for holding that the chapter in general and S 270 in particular apply only to the case of the superior civil services. A member of the Bombay Subordinate Medical service is a servant of the crown and doing duty as such within the meaning of S 270 and therefore the consent of the Governor is necessary for his prosecution in respect of an act done by him in the execution of his duty as a servant of the crown. I L R 1938 Bom 770=40 Bom L R 82=1938 Bom 419 The word 'duty' in S 270 is not necessarily confined to a legal duty. Civil servants who are Medical Officers are obviously bound to obey the rule in the Medical Code made for the guidance of such officers and it is their duty to obey them. I L R 1938 Bom 770=40 Bom L R 82=1938 Bom 419 When the acts of the official trustee complained of are done during the course of administration of the trust as an ordinary trustee under S 7 (1) (a) of the Official Trustees Act, his acts cannot be said to be done 'in the execution of his duty as a servant of the Crown and hence the consent of the Governor is not necessary in respect of a suit against such a trustee for breaches in respect of a private trust. 1940 Rang L R 273=1940 Rang 207

'PURPORTING TO BE DONE'—MEANING OF—TEST TO FIND OUT—The words purporting to be done in S 270 (1) must be given their full meaning. Clearly used in their context, they mean something more than done. There must be something in the nature of the act complained of that attaches it to the official capacity of the person doing it. I L R (1941) Kar 328=4 F L J (H C) 383=1941 Sind 204 Per Roeland J (Obiter)—If an act done by a public officer is apparently an official act, its character as such will not be changed by allegations that it was done in bad faith or that it had not that character which it purports to have. The applicability of the statute [S 270 (1)] depends on what the act purports to be and is not affected by any allegations that the apparent state of things is not the real one. The allegation that an official act was maliciously and corruptly done will not derogate from its official character if it is that character and what applies to the act but not on malice or corrupt motive in it. If a single officer applies no less where same malice is attributed

(2) Any civil or criminal proceedings instituted, whether before or after the coming into operation of this Part of this Act, against any person in respect of any act done or purporting to be done in the execution of his duty as a servant of the Crown in India or Burma before the relevant date shall be dismissed unless the Court is satisfied that the acts complained of were not done in good faith, and, where any such proceedings are dismissed, the costs incurred by the defendant shall, in so far as they are not recoverable from the persons instituting the proceedings, be charged, in the case of persons employed in connection with the functions of the Governor-General in Council or the affairs of Burma, on the revenues of the Federation, and in the case of persons employed in connection with the affairs of a Province, on the revenues of that Province

(3) For the purposes of this section—

the expression "the relevant date" means, in relation to acts done by persons employed about the affairs of a Province or about the affairs of Burma, the commencement of Part III of this Act and, in relation to acts done by persons employed about the affairs of the Federation, the date of the establishment of the Federation;

references to persons employed in connection with the functions of the Governor-General in Council include references to persons employed in connection with the affairs of any Chief Commissioner's Province, a person shall be deemed to have been employed about the affairs of a Province if he was employed about the affairs of the Province as constituted at the date when the act complained of occurred or is alleged to have occurred to him jointly with others. The taking of cognizance of an offence on complaint, by a sub divisional officer, whether done in good or bad faith, is clearly an official act of that officer, purporting to be done in the execution of his duty as a Magistrate. It is an act which he cannot do in any other capacity and one without which there can be no institution of a criminal proceeding and it can form no foundation for a suit against him. 20 Pat 417=(1941) P W N 225=1941 Pat 385

Under S 270 the consent of Governor is a condition precedent to the institution of the proceedings, and the necessity for such consent cannot be made to depend upon the case which the accused or the defendant may put forward after the proceedings have been instituted, but must be determined with reference to the nature of the allegations made against the public servant in the suit or criminal proceeding. 43 C W N (F C R.) 50=2 Fed L J. 153=1939 F.C. 43=1 L R (1940) Lah. 400=(1939) 2 M.L.J. NOTES provisions of sub S (1) S 270 are mandatory and admit of no reservation or exception. They contain a positive prohibition against the institution of civil and criminal proceedings against the persons described in the section in respect of the acts mentioned without such consent. In other words the Government's consent is an essential prerequisite to the competency of the Court to entertain the proceedings. It is the very foundation of the Court's jurisdiction and its absence renders the entire proceedings void ab initio. Such an illegality cannot be cured under S 537 Cr P Code even when no prejudice has been shown to have been caused. Where therefore the institution of proceedings is illegal for want of consent but those proceedings are transferred to another Court which begins with the case afresh subsequent production of consent even though it is before the commencement of the trial de novo cannot validate what was invalid at its inception. 184 I C 680—1939 Lah 479—I L R (1940) Lah 102—42 P L R 51

ACTS OF A PUBLIC SERVANT DONE AFTER APRIL 1937.—As part III of the Government of India Act came into force only in April 1937 the act referred to in S 270 (1) of the Government of India Act is an act done prior to April 1937. Hence S 270 (1) can have no application to the acts of a public servant after April 1937. 1940 O W N 494—1940 Oudh 382—15 Luck 740. [See also Notes under S 271 infra]

Sub S (1)—This applies to cases where in respect of acts done prior to the relevant date no proceedings had been started in Court against the official. The consent of the Governor or the Governor General as the case may be 'acting in his discretion' is constituted a condition precedent to the institution of the proceedings.

Sub S (2)—This deals with cases which had been already instituted and are pending in Court on the relevant date. The Court is directed to dismiss the proceedings unless it is satisfied that the acts complained of were not done in good faith. The Joint Parliamentary Committee recommended that the certificate by the Governor or Governor General as the case may be that the act was done in good faith should be conclusive and binding on the Court. This has not been accepted and the matter has been left to the Courts to decide.

Sec 271 PROTECTION OF PUBLIC SERVANTS.—Speaking on this section the Solicitor General said—'In order to reassure these officials Indians just as much as British who are anxious that there shall be no doubt that there is proper protection against vexatious and unjustifiable criminal proceedings we propose to give the Governor or the Governor General the last word. But it is most undesirable and entirely against the best interests of the services of India, or officials in any country where British ideas prevail that you should give or tend to give the impression that they are hedged off and free to do as they like and that no one can get at them. On the other hand it is equally necessary particularly in a country like India that where there is a danger of their being harassed by vexatious or maliciously motivated proceedings they should be given fair and proper protection. After all it is not only causes mental anxiety and so on, to a Magistrate but is bad for the administration of law and justice if a Magistrate because some person thinks he has a grievance

(3) Where a civil suit is instituted against a public officer, within the meaning of that expression as used in the Indian Code of Civil Procedure, in respect of any act purporting to be done by him in his official capacity, the whole or any part of the costs incurred by him and of any damages or costs ordered to be paid by him shall if the Governor General exercising his individual judgment so directs in the case of a person employed in connection with the affairs of the Federation, or if the Governor exercising his individual judgment so directs in the case of a person employed in connection with the affairs of a Province, be defrayed out of and charged on the revenues of the Federation or of the Province as the case may be ance should be put into the dock and have to justify his action. At present there is nothing to prevent a person issuing a writ or whatever may be the proper technical term in India against an official for damages for some civil wrong which he alleges has been committed. I do not think it would be right as a permanent part of the Constitution as it were to impose a barrier, even though it be a discretionary barrier between a member of the public and the official whom he is saying has invaded his private rights. After all civil actions would extend to such cases as motor accidents and they would extend no doubt to unjustified assaults. I suppose it might be possible to conceive a libel in which words might have been written or uttered in the course of carrying out official duties. It is a great principle and we do not wish to invade it that if an ordinary member of the public has a wrong committed against him be it by an official or a non official person he has the right to issue his writ and claim his redress in the Courts. We think it would be undesirable to put up or even to attempt to put up as a permanent part of this Constitution a barrier in cases where officials are concerned. But it seems to us that what really affects an official who has a civil claim made against him is the question of costs and the question of any damages that he may have to pay. (Par Deb, Vol 300 Cols 879 et seq.)

PROTECTION OF CROWN SERVANTS.—S 124 of the Government of Burma Act purports to be a general indemnity to all servants of the Crown for acts committed in the execution of their duty as such before the commencement of the Act. The protection given by this section is in addition to the existing protection given by S 197 of the Cr P Code 1938 Rang L R 116=

1938 Rang 189 There is nothing in the Government of India Act of 1935 which imposes a legal obligation upon the Governor of a Province to consult his minister before sanctioning under S 196 Cr P Code a prosecution for an offence under S 124-A I P Code. There is no provision in the Act which requires the Governor to consult his Ministers before performing executive acts. The instrument of instructions implies that he should consult his ministers but he is not legally required to do so. In the case of a sanction for prosecution under S 196 Cr P Code the Governor is certainly not required to exercise his individual judgment but that does not mean that in exercising his individual judgment he is acting unlawfully and that his action can be called in question in a Court of law. 48 I W 170=1938 Mad 758=(1938) 2 M L J 416. If any question arises whether any matter (a) is a matter as respects which the Governor is by or under the Act required to act in his discretion or to exercise his individual judgment or (b) is not a matter as respects which the Governor is by or under the Act required to act in his discretion or to exercise his individual judgment then the decision of the Governor in his discretion is final. 193 I C 91=1941 Rang 5.

Sec. 292.—In theory all Colonial Legislatures are subordinate law making bodies and legislation under the powers conferred on them are comparable with the articles and bye laws of Corporations and statutory bodies which is the ratio for the application of the doctrine of ultra vires to their legislative enactments. The rule of construction applicable to bye laws is that when a statute is repealed it must be considered as if it had never existed, and that all bye laws and rules made under a repealed statute cease to operate with the repeal of the main enactment unless there is any saving provision in the repealing enactment. As was observed by Lord Reading C.J. in Watson v. Inch (1916) 1 K.B. 688 at 690—Does the repeal of an Act which enables a corporation to make by laws have the effect of repealing by laws already made under the power while it existed or whether the bye laws remain in force notwithstanding the repeal of the statute under which they were made? Citing the passage from Surtess v. Ellison [9 B. & C. 750 (752)] 'It has long been established that when an Act of Parliament is repealed it must be considered (except as to transactions passed and closed) as if it had never existed.' His Lordship proceeded 'To that passage it is only necessary to make one qualification in that since that case Lord Brougham's Act and the Interpretation Act 1889 have been passed. It would follow that any bye law made under a repealed statute ceases to have any validity unless the repealing Act contains some provision preserving the validity of the bye law notwithstanding the repeal.' In the words of Sankey J. 'When a statute is repealed any by law made thereunder ceases to be operative unless there is saving clause in the new statute preserving the old by law. Hence the necessity for this saving clause. The section merely continues the existing law. It does not validate any law and such in validity as existed is still open to attack.'

SCOPE AND EFFECT—S. 292 of the Government of India Act is more than a mere preserving section. It enjoins that all the law in force in British India immediately before the commencement of Part III shall continue to remain in force until altered or repealed or amended. This provision amounts to a direction that the alteration, repeal or amendment of any law in force at the time of the commencement of Part III cannot be with a retrospective effect. I.L.R. (1940) All. 455=1940 All. 272 (F.B.). There is nothing in S. 292 to suggest that there was any intention to curtail the power of the Indian Legislature or other competent authority to decide in what manner a new law should operate as against the existing rights. All that S. 292 provides is that the existing law shall remain in force until it is repealed and not that the rights which have accrued under that law shall continue to be exercised even after the date of the repeal. S. 292 can obviously have no application to a case where pending appeal the question of the applicability of S. 84 A of the new Bihar Tenancy Act arises after the old law has been changed and the new section has come into operation. If the Legislature can make new laws and unmake old laws it can also create new rights as well as take away rights already accrued. 1941 P.W.N. 216=22 Pat.L.T. 356=1941 Pat. 413.

SCOPE OF SECTION—If PROHIBITS RETROSPECTIVE LEGISLATION—Per Gwyer, C.J.—The purpose of S. 292 was to negative the possibility of any existing Indian law being held to be no longer in force by reason of the repeal of the law which authorised its enactment and it is a safeguard usually inserted by draftsmen in similar circumstances. With a their own sphere the powers of the Indian legislatures are as large and ample as those of Parliament itself and the burden of proving that they are subject to a strange and unusual prohibition against retrospective legislation must certainly lie upon those who assert it. There is nothing in the language of S. 292 which suggests any intention on the part of Parliament to make them subject to that prohibition nor is there any explanation why Parliament should have desired to do so. (1941) 1 M.L.J. (Supp.) 65. Per Sulaiman J.—Although the main object of enacting S. 292 was to preserve the enforceability of the then existing laws the language of the section is more emphatic than would have been ordinarily necessary. There is nothing in S. 292 which debars Central or a Provincial Legislature which has altered, repealed or amended previously existing law from giving the new provision a retrospective effect from dates earlier than when the Act is passed. (1941) 1 M.L.J. (Supp.) 65. Per Varadachariar, J.—A provision like S. 292 is usually inserted in similar Acts to indicate that the repeal of the parent Act shall not be deemed to have repealed all the laws passed under that Act. That being the reason it is not necessary or proper to lay undue stress on the word 'until' used in S. 292 and hold that the policy of this provision is different from that underlying similar provisions in other constitution Acts. There is no justification for drawing a distinction between the statement that the previous law shall continue in force 'subject to repeal or amendment by later legislation' and the statement that it shall continue in force 'until repealed or amended by later legislation'. That Parliament might have had some reason or motive for denying to the Indian Legislature the power of retrospective legislation with reference to pre-existing law seems to rest on mere speculation and is not a fair inference from the language used in the section. 45 C.W.N. (F.R.) 27=1941 F.C. 16=(1941) 1 M.L.J. (Supp.) 65.

See 293.—The amendments made by the Adaptation Order cannot be challenged as until repealed or amended by a competent Legislature or other competent authority, have effect subject to such adaptations and modifications as appear to His Majesty to be necessary or expedient for bringing the provisions of that law into accord with the provisions of this Act and, in particular, into accord with the provisions thereof which reconstitute under different names governments and authorities in India and prescribe the distribution of legislative and executive powers between the Federation and the Provinces:

Provided that no such law as aforesaid shall be made applicable to any Federated State by an Order in Council made under this section.

In this section the expression "law" does not include an Act of Parliament, but includes any ordinance, order, bye-law, rule or regulation having in British India the force of law.

295. (1) Where any person has been sentenced to death in a Province, the Governor-General in his discretion shall have all such powers of suspension, remission or commutation of sentence as were vested in the Governor-General in Council immediately before the commencement of Part III of this Act, but save as aforesaid no authority in India outside a Province shall have any power to suspend, remit or commute the sentence of any person convicted in the Province:

Provided that nothing in this sub-section affects any power of any officer of His Majesty's forces to suspend, remit or commute a sentence passed by a Court martial.

(2) Nothing in this Act shall derogate from the right of His Majesty, or of the Governor-General, if any such right is delegated to him by His Majesty, to grant pardons, reprieves, respites or remissions of punishment ultra vires, as they derive their authority from Parliament but the Acts as amended or adapted, may be altered by the legislature which under Part V is competent to legislate in regard to the subject-matter of the Law. The 'competent legislature or competent authority' is not determined by the Orders in Council, but must be sought on the proper interpretation of Part V, read with Sch. VII of the Act.

SCOPE AND EFFECT.—All that S. 293 enacts is a power given to His Majesty in Council to adapt Acts already in force to bring them into accord with the provisions of the Government of India Act and what is contemplated is formal consequential amendment arising in the Act due to the passing of the Government of India Act. S. 293 does not mean that if His Majesty has made any Act the subject of an adaptation order, then that Act ipso facto becomes valid even though its provisions conflict with the provisions of the Government of India Act 43 P. L. R. 1938=1941 Lah. 182 (F.B.)

Sec. 295: POWER OF PARDON.—This section deals in general with the power of pardon. Under S. 401, Criminal Procedure Code, the authorities heretofore vested with such powers were the Local Governments and the Governor-General in Council and they had concurrent powers in all cases.

Besides this statutory power, S. 401 saved the right of His Majesty to exercise the prerogative of pardon and to delegate that power to the Governor-General in Council. It was thought to be inconsistent with Provincial autonomy to vest a power in the Federal executive at the centre to interfere with convictions of Courts over whom the control, vested in the Provincial Government and Legislature, was complete. An exception has, however, been made in the case of sentences of death, and the Governor-General in his discretion has been authorised to exercise the powers formerly vested in the Governor-General in Council under S. 401 in respect of such sentences. Subject to this exception, the powers of the Governor-General in Council under S. 401 are taken away.

Sec. 297: FREEDOM OF INTER-PROVINCIAL TRADE.—The purpose and scope of the provisions of this section were thus explained in Parliament "It would indeed be a serious situation if we were to allow to develop within India in future serious restrictions on trade and so upset many of the arrangements that have been made in other directions. This is a subject which has demanded considerable care and attention on the part of the Government, and the Government have finally drafted this clause for the purpose of achieving as far as possible, free trade within India. The object of

(a) by virtue of the entry in the Provincial Legislative List relating to trade and commerce within the Province, or the entry in that list relating to the production supply, and distribution of commodities, have power to pass any law or take any executive action prohibiting or restricting the entry into, or export from the Province of goods of any class or description,

(b) by virtue of anything in this Act have power to impose any tax, cess toll or duty which, as between goods manufactured or produced in the Province and similar goods not so manufactured or produced, discriminates in favour of the former, or which in the case of goods manufactured or produced outside the

Paragraph (a) is to stop a Provincial Legislature by its power to legislate on items in the Provincial Legislative list from checking the distribution of trade in India. Therefore the clause draws particular attention to the items in the Provincial Legislative list which might empower the Province so to legislate as to check the free circulation of trade. These items are in particular No. 26 (now 27)—Trade and commerce within the Province markets and fairs and so forth. I take these two as typical examples of the attempt which the proposed clause makes to prevent a Provincial Legislature legislating in such a way as to stop the free circulation of trade. 'It leaves it possible still for the Provinces to take measure for instance under items 30 and 40 of the Provincial Legislative list to deal with such a question as duties of Excise on liquor. Item 40 of the Provincial Legislative list gives powers to impose duties of Excise. These duties of Excise are vital to the welfare of the Provinces. I believe that in the Province of Madras from three to four crores of revenue accrue by this power of putting duties of Excise on liquor and so forth and in a Province like the United Provinces two crores accrue to the Provincial revenues from this source. It is not thought that by allowing this power to the Provinces it will lead to any contravention of the principle of free trade. In the same way we must allow the Provincial Governments to legislate on such questions as health the movement of diseased cattle and so forth and if our Clause were drawn in a different way with reference to the items on the legislative list this would be impossible. It is to achieve the object of free trade and not unduly to restrict the Provinces with regard to Excise or health questions that we have drawn our clause in this manner. (Parl Deb Vol 300 Col 1406)

Sulaiman J—An intention to discriminate is not essential to invalidate a legislation under S 297 (1) and (2) but it is sufficient if the provisions of the enactment result in discrimination. (1939) 1 M L J (Supp) 1. Quare—Whether the word 'locality' in S 297 (1) (b) should not be confined to localities in India having regard to the marginal note to the section and whether the section deals with products of foreign countries. Jayakar, J Quare

The law which is open to objection under S 297 (1) of the Constitution Act is a law made by Provincial Legislature substantially by virtue of the entry relating to trade and commerce or by virtue of the entry relating to production supply and distribution of commodities. And if a law is made substantially by virtue of the entry relating to agriculture or of entry relating to development of industry it is not open to objection under this section. Further the law contemplated by this section is a law which prohibits or restricts entry into or export from the province of goods directly and a law which does not deal directly and in substance with prohibition or restriction of export or import of goods but which deals with other needs of the province and provides for them though incidentally the effect of the provision is that in some measure export or import is restricted such a law is not within the meaning of the section. It follows from the above that the prohibition or restriction contemplated by the section is a prohibition or restriction on the act of export or import and so long as the goods remain the property of the province and are a stock of the province and before they have become the subject of interprovincial or foreign trade the province has every right to expropriate goods or to put any restriction upon them which it considers necessary for the needs of the province. All measures of price control collective marketing and expropriation of goods do not per se and as a matter of course interfere with free trade clauses in a constitution and the interference contemplated by the constitution is a direct interference and not an indirect interference. 200 I C 526=1942 A 156=1942 A L J 112. Section 297 does not deal with intoxicating liquors or narcotic drugs. It merely limits the power of the Provincial Legislature to legislate with respect to trade and commerce within the province which is one of the items in Art 27, List II Seventh Schedule of the Act and with respect to the production supply and distribution of commodities which is one of the matters included in Art 29 List II Seventh Schedule of the Act. All that S 297 (1) means is that though a Provincial Legislature has power

Province, discriminates between goods manufactured or produced in one locality and similar goods manufactured or produced in another locality.

(2) Any law passed in contravention of this section shall, to the extent of the contravention, be invalid.

298 (1) No subject of His Majesty domiciled in India shall on grounds only of religion, place of birth, descent, colour or any of them be ineligible for office under the Crown in India, or be prohibited on any such grounds from acquiring, holding or disposing of property or carrying on any occupation, trade, business or profession in British India.

Persons not to be subjected to disability by reason of race, religion, etc.

(2) Nothing in this section shall affect the operation of any law which—
(a) prohibits, either absolutely or subject to exceptions, the sale or mortgage of agricultural land situate in any particular area, and owned by a person belonging to some class recognised by the law as being a class of persons engaged in or connected with agriculture in that area, to any person not belonging to any such class; or

(b) recognises the existence of some right, privilege or disability attaching to members of a community by virtue of some personal law or custom having the force of law.

(3) Nothing in this section shall be construed as derogating from the special responsibility of the Governor-General or of a Governor for the safeguarding of the legitimate interests of minorities.

to legislate with respect to trade and commerce within the province and with respect to production, supply and distribution of commodities, it has no power to legislate or take any executive action prohibiting or restricting the entry into, or export from, the province of goods of any class or description. DECLARATION OF FUNDAMENTAL RIGHTS.—Sir S. Hoare thus explained the origin of this section—"The Indian delegates were anxious to have some declaration of fundamental rights. The request that they pressed upon the Joint Select Committee and the various Round Table Conferences was that somewhere or other the effective words in Queen Victoria's Proclamation should be repeated. These are the words substantially from Queen Victoria's Proclamation. They have become consecrated by long usage in the minds of Indians and the wise course is to retain the words." Parl Deb, Vol 300, Cols. 1048-1049.)

Sec. 298 (2) (a): "AGRICULTURAL LAND"—MEANING OF.—Per Dahp Singh, J.—The words "agricultural land" in S. 298 (2) (a) must, in the absence of any indication to the contrary in the Act, be taken in their natural meaning. Agricultural land is obviously land which is either actually used for purposes of agriculture or for purposes subservient to agriculture, that is, it may include buildings necessary to carry out the process of agriculture but by no stretch of language can it be held to include pastoral land or other rights in land which are included in the definition of land in the Punjab Alienation of Land Act 43 P L R 194=1941 Lah 182 (F B).

Sec 299 COMPULSORY ACQUISITION OF LAND.—The Joint Parliamentary Committee thus expressed themselves "We think that some general provision should be inserted in the Constitution Act, safeguarding private property against expropriation, in order to quiet doubts which have been aroused in recent years by certain Indian utterances. It is obviously difficult to frame any general provision with this object without unduly restricting the powers of the Legislature in relation particularly to taxation; in fact, much the same difficulties would be presented as those which we have discussed above in relation to fundamental rights. We do not attempt to define with precision the scope of the provision we have in mind the drafting of which will require careful consideration for the reasons we have indicated; but we think that it should secure that legislation expropriating, or authorising the expropriation of, the property of particular individuals should be lawful only if confined to expropriation for public purposes and if compensation is determined, either in the first instance or on appeal, by

(3) No Bill or amendment making provision for the transference to public ownership of any land or for the extinguishment or modification of rights therein, including rights or privileges in respect of land revenue, shall be introduced or moved in either Chamber of the Federal Legislature without the previous sanction of the Governor-General in his discretion, or in a Chamber of a Provincial Legislature without the previous sanction of the Governor in his discretion.

(4) Nothing in this section shall affect the provisions of any law in force at the date of the passing of this Act.

(5) In this section "land" includes immovable property of every kind and any rights in or over such property, and "undertaking" includes part of an undertaking.

some independent authority. General legislation on the other hand, the effect of which would be to transfer to public ownership some particular class of property, or to extinguish or modify the rights of individuals in it, ought, we think, to require the previous sanction of the Governor-General or Governor (as the case may be) to its introduction, and in that event he should be directed by his Instrument of Instructions to take into account as a relevant factor the nature of the provisions proposed for compensating those whose interests will be adversely affected by the legislation". (J.P.C., Rep. Para 369). Cf. Para. XIII (c) of the Instrument of Instructions to the Governor-General and Para XVII (c) of the Instructions to the Governor of Madras. Although the Governor's previous sanction under S. 299 (3) was not obtained before enacting the Bihar Agricultural Income-tax Act, the Governor having assented to the bill, having regard to the provisions of S. 109 (2) (a), the Bihar Act cannot be said to be invalid by reason of S. 299 (3). 20 Pat. 573=22 P.L.T. 863=1941 Pat. 306 (S.B.).

Sec 306 —This is an enlargement of the protection formerly afforded to the Governor and Governor General by S. 110 of the Government of India Act, 1919. They were under that Act not subject to the Original Jurisdiction of the High Court in respect of acts ordered or done in their public capacity, they were however liable to the High Court's original criminal jurisdiction for treason or felony. They were subject to Courts in the mofussil. The present section is all comprehensive and protects the Governor General, the Governor and the Secretary of State from all "process" whatsoever—including even a summons to appear as witness. It extends to all Courts in India—Civil and Criminal and applies not merely to their public acts but even to acts in a private capacity, e.g., even a suit for recovery of a debt will not lie. Cf. Hill v. Bage, (1841) 3 Moo. P. C. 465, where a suit was held to lie for a debt against the Colonial Governor of Trinidad. There is however power reserved to His Majesty in Council to relax the provisions of this section and permit proceedings to be taken. The liability of these officials to be proceeded against in England, for their personal acts, so far these proceedings could be Provided that nothing in this section shall be construed as restricting the right of any person to bring against the Federation, a Province, or the Secretary of State such proceedings as are mentioned in Chapter III of Part VII of this Act initiated in the English Courts is not affected. Moreover though Chapter XI of the Government of India Act is repealed these officials could be punished for criminal action in India by the Court of Kings Bench under the Governor's Act 1699 as amended by later Acts. The exemption from jurisdiction formerly afforded by S. 110 extended to Executive Councillors and ministers—but the protection in their case has not been re-enacted by this Act. It was on the ground of this personal exemption that it was held that no certiorari could be brought against the Act of the Ministry (Venkataraman v. Secretary of State for India 53 Mad 979=60 M L J 25). Order of Provincial Government under S. 36 Madras District Municipalities Act and issued in name of Governor under S. 59 Government of India Act reversing prior order—Application for writ of certiorari is not maintainable 50 L W 538=(1939) Mad 940=I L R (1940) Mad 204=(1939) 2 M L J 801. Where the Hindu Religious Endowments Board has abused its powers in notifying a temple under Chapter VI A of the Madras Hindu Religious Endowments Act the High Court has power to quash the Board's orders on which the notification is based and if the basis of the notification is illegal the notification is illegal. Even if the notification in such circumstances remained a lawful notification, the Court would still be in a position to take effective action. The provisions of S. 306 read with S. 109 of the Government of India Act 1935 do not make the notification under the Madras Hindu Religious Endowments Act an act of the Governor which cannot be challenged in Courts. Where on the facts it is found that the Board's action in notifying a temple was arbitrary and an abuse of its powers the order of the Committee of the Board and that of the full Board on appeal under S. 65 A of the Madras Hindu Religious Endowments Act should be quashed I L R (1941) Mad 807=1941 Mad 878=(1941) 2 M L J 175.

Sec 316.—Speaking of this section Sir Samuel Hoare said: "The word 'Powers' means the powers in the Federal and Provincial lists, simply the Legislative powers conferred by the two lists. The setting up of provincial autonomy would in itself considerably restrict the field of the activity of the Central Legislature. The Central Legislature at the present time can legislate over the whole field of Indian government. In the transitional period it will not be able to legislate over the very wide field of Provincial legislation."

In the concurrent list again the legislative field of the Centre is being considerably restricted. At the present time it has full power over the whole field. In future it will not have power over the provincial list. The Central Legislature so far from having greater powers than it has now will have smaller powers in the transitional period.

"There can be no question of the executive at the Centre becoming responsible to the Central Legislature during the transitional period. The executive at the Centre during the transitional period will remain the Governor-General in Council, just as it is now and there can be no question whatever that during the transitional period, a Government will be set up at the Centre responsible to the Central Legislature" (Parl Deb, Vol 300 Col 1119).

- 317 (1) The provisions of the Government of India Act set out, with amendments consequential on the provisions of this Act, in the Ninth Schedule to this Act (being certain of the provisions of that Act relating to the Governor-General, the Commander-in-Chief, the Governor General's Executive Council and the Indian Legislature and provisions supplemental to those provisions) shall, subject to those amendments, continue to have effect notwithstanding the repeal of that Act by this Act

Provided that nothing in the said provisions shall affect the provisions of the last but one preceding section

(2) In the said provisions, the expression "this Act" means the said provisions

(3) The substitution in the said provisions of references to the Secretary of State for references to the Secretary of State in Council shall not render invalid anything done thereunder by the Secretary of State in Council before the commencement of Part III of this Act

318 (1) Notwithstanding that the Federation has not yet been established the Federal Court and the Federal Public Service Commission and the Federal Railway Authority shall come into existence and be known by those names and shall perform in relation to British India the like functions as they are by or under this Act, to perform in relation to the Federation when established

(2) Nothing in this section affects any power of His Majesty in Council to fix a date later than the commencement of Part III of this Act for the coming into operation either generally or for particular purposes of any of the provisions of this Act relating to the Federal Court, the Federal Public Service Commission or the Federal Railway Authority

Sch VII LISTS AND ITEMS THEREIN—CONSTRUCTION—RULES AS TO —Per Gauver C J —The subjects dealt with in the three Legislative Lists are not always set out with scientific definition. It would be practically impossible for example to define each item in the provincial list in such a way as to make it exclusive of every other item in that list and Parliament seems to have been content to take a number of comprehensive categories and to describe each of them by a word of broad general import. None of the items in the list is to be read in a narrow or restricted sense and each general word should be held to extend to all ancillary or subsidiary matters which can to the context in which the expression is used and the scheme of the Government of India Act and to avoid conflict with Item 48 in List II of Schedule VII the expression Duties of excise as used in Item 43 of List I of Schedule VII must be construed as a power to impose duties of excise upon the manufacturer or producer of the excisable articles or at least at the stage of or in connection with manufacture or production and that it extends no further. A clear distinction exists between the first sale and the last sale as the latter is not intimately connected with the manufacturer or producer while the former is. If excise should be given the wider meaning then the only taxes that would not amount to excise duty and would be left over for the Provinces to impose under Item 48 in List II would be license fees and certain turnover taxes which will be merely illusory and that could not have been the intention of Parliament in using the words taxes on the sale of goods in Item 48 in List II of Schedule VII to the Act 2 F L J 6-43 C W N (F C R) 1-49 L W 36-1939 F C 1-1939 M L J (Supp) 1. The true distinction between an excise duty sale tax and a cess on entry of goods as used in the Constitution Act does not consist in the fact that the tax is on goods or that the tax is payable by manufacturer or producer but it consists in the fact whether the tax is on the act of production or on the act of sale or on the act of introducing goods in a particular area. Two conclusions follow from this that a tax on consumption of goods or a tax on purchase of goods whatever else it may be cannot be an excise duty. And a tax on raw produce required by the manufacturer for his manufacture may be an excise duty or may be a general tax or may be a special tax and the fact whether it is one or the other will depend upon the true nature of the tax in the light of surrounding circumstances of each case. The expression excise duty in entry No 45 of List I in Sch VII Constitution Act is used in a restricted sense so as to allow provinces to exercise powers under sale tax and cesses on goods without making those taxes excise duties in the British sense of the word A I R 1942 A 156-1942 A L J 112. Fees and cesses are two forms of special taxation which a Provincial Legislature provided it is given authority to do so is entitled to resort to in order to recoup itself for any special expenditure which it has incurred for the benefit of a special class of persons against that special class. And the Provincial Legislature may recover the whole of this expenditure either by levying a fee which may be partly recurring and partly non recurring and recurring portion may be based on monthly payment measured on the consumption of goods by the payer of fee or by levying a cess or partly by levying a fee and partly by levying a cess at its option. The imposition of a cess under Cl (2) of S 29 of the U P Sugar Factories Control Act is in the first instance a cess within the meaning of Entry No 49 of List II and not a duty of excise within the meaning of Entry No 45 of List I and if there be any difficulty in regarding it as a cess it can also be treated as a fee under Entry No 54 of List II and Entry No 36 of List III. The U P Sugar Factories Act, Cl (2) of S 29 and R 21 A of U P Sugar Factories Control Rules are all infra to the Provincial Legislature 1942 A L J 112-200 I C 526

THE GOVERNMENT SAVINGS BANKS ACT (V OF 1873)

PREFATORY NOTE — Savings Banks are institutions for the purpose of receiving small deposits of money and investing them for the benefit of the depositors at compound interest. They are generally managed by benevolent persons who seek no remuneration for their services. In India these banks are managed by the State. They originated in the latter part of the 18th century—a period marked by a great advance in the organization of provident habits in general. Such banks are now almost universally established throughout the civilized world.

THE GOVERNMENT TRADING TAXATION ACT (III OF 1926)

PREFATORY NOTE—One of the resolutions of the Imperial Economic Conference 1923 was to the effect that the several Parliaments of Great Britain the Dominions and India should be invited to enact at the earliest opportunity a declaration that the general and particular provisions of its Acts or Ordinances imposing taxation shall be deemed to apply to any commercial or industrial enterprise carried on by or on behalf of any other such Governments in the same manner in all respects as if it were carried on by or on behalf of a subject of the British Crown. This resolution has been accepted by the Government of India and the present Act has been enacted in order to give effect to it. The Act follows with suitable modifications, the wording of S. 25 of the British Finance Act 1925 (15 and 16 Geo. V, Chap. 36)

[24th February, 1926]

An Act to determine the liability of certain Governments to taxation in British India in respect of trading operations

WHEREAS it is expedient to determine the liability to taxation for the time being in force in British India of the Government of any part of His Majesty's Dominions exclusive of British India in respect of any trade or business carried on by or on behalf of such Government, It is hereby enacted as follows—

conferred by S. 65 of the Government of India Act and is therefore infra vires the Government of India A I R (1941) Bom 391=43 Bom L R 84=1941 Bom 93 1930 A I J 579=1930 A 389. The Government Trading Taxation Act applies wherever a Government specified in the Act is a Dominion Government including the Government of a Native Indian State carries on a business anywhere. There is no justification for holding that the Act is confined to business carried on in British India. The title preamble and the operative part of S. 2 of the Act make it perfectly clear that it applies to every case in which a Dominion Government is carrying on a business, and when that happens the Dominion Government is liable to Indian income tax as though it were a company. (2) It shall come into force on such date as the Central Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, appoint.

2. (1) Where a trade or business of any kind is carried on by or on behalf of the Government of any part of His Majesty's Dominions, exclusive of British India, that Government shall, in respect of the trade or business and of all operations connected therewith, all property occupied in British India and all goods owned in British India for the purposes thereof, and all income arising in connection therewith, be liable—

(a) to taxation under the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, in the same manner and to the same extent as in the like case a company would be liable;

(b) to all other taxation for the time being in force in British India in the same manner as in the like case any other person would be liable.

(2) For the purposes of the levy and collection of income-tax under the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, in accordance with the provisions of sub-section (1), any Government to which that sub-section applies shall be deemed to be a company within the meaning of that Act, and the provisions of that Act shall apply accordingly.

(3) In this section the expression "His Majesty's Dominions" includes any territory which is under His Majesty's protection or in respect of which a mandate is being exercised by the Government of any part of His Majesty's Dominions.

NOTES.

Sec. 2.—The effect of the Act is to add to the definition of "company" in S. 2 (6) of the Indian Income-tax Act, so as to include a Dominion Government deemed to be a company under Act III of 1926 and where a Dominion Government is carrying on a business anywhere, it is liable to British Indian Income-tax Act in respect of the income, profits and gains of that business which accrue or arise or are received in British India, as if it were a company working under like circumstances under the Income-tax Act. See 57 C. 553 The powers conferred upon the District

NATURE OF JURISDICTION.—In dealing with the custody of illegitimate children, the Courts in England are governed by equitable rules and exercise equitable jurisdiction One of these rules is that the desire of the mother of an illegitimate child as to its custody is primarily to be considered 5 Bur.L.T. 164=17 I C 926 This equitable rule should be adopted in the case of parties in this country, neither the father nor the mother has any absolute right to the custody of their illegitimate child 17 I C 926 The District Court should not assume direct responsibility under the Act for the marriage of minors for whom a personal guardian has been appointed 98 P R 1914=27 I C. 381 (22 B 509 Foll) There is no provision in the Act authorizing the Court to compel a person in possession of a minor's property to hand it over to the person appointed guardian 13 I C. 386 The scheme of the Act is to entrust the District Court with the duty of looking after the welfare of the minor's person and property and for this purpose gives it power to appoint a guardian The guardian is really the hand of the District Court and is to act under its advice (control and constant supervision) The enforcement of rights or claims of the ward or against the ward is left to be regulated by ordinary proceedings by suits and the Act does not provide any machinery for decisions upon or enforcing any such claims though so far as the guardian is concerned, the District Court is vested with very wide disciplinary powers over him in order that it may enforce the orders passed against him under the Act 35 M 39=22 M.L.J. 193=13 I C. 251 Agency tract—Ex parte order of agent appointing guardian of infant—Appeal lies to High Court

Sec 4 (2)—The word guardian is used in a very wide sense and does not necessarily mean a guardian duly appointed or declared by the Court Any person who has the care of the person of the minor is a guardian of the person and any person who has the care of the property of the minor is a guardian of the property within the meaning of the Act 54 A 128=1932 A L J 21=1932 A 215 The word guardian as defined in S 4 (2) is a very wide term and must include a father, who is admitted on all hands and in every system of law to be the natural guardian of his children and the word care in the definition includes the constructive custody of the father though the child is residing with another person Where the plaintiff a Mahomedan sent his minor daughter along with his wife to his mother in law and after the death of the wife there the daughter continued to live with the maternal grandmother for nine years still the father is the guardian of the minor as she is in his constructive custody 1935 O W N 1096=1935

(3) "ward" means a minor for whose person or property, or both, there is a guardian

(4) "District Court" has the meaning assigned to that expression in the Code of Civil Procedure, and includes a High Court in the exercise of its ordinary original civil jurisdiction

¹[(5) "the Court" means—

(a) the District Court having jurisdiction to entertain an application under this Act for an order appointing or declaring a person to be a guardian, or

APPOINTMENT AND DECLARATION OF GUARDIANS

Power of Parents to appoint in case of European British subjects

5. (1) Where a minor is an European British subject, a guardian or guardians of his person or property, or both, may be appointed by will or other instrument to take effect on the death of the person appointing,—

(a) by the father of the minor, or

(b) if the father is dead or incapable of acting, by the mother.

(2) Where guardians have been appointed under sub-section (1) by both parents, they shall act jointly the minor is subject.

Power of the Court to make order as to guardianship

7. (1) Where the Court is satisfied that it is for the welfare of a minor that an order should be made—

NOTES.

Sec. 7: APPOINTMENT OF GUARDIAN—Under the Act, it is open to a Court to appoint a guardian of the properties of a minor even though the minor is not entitled to present possession of these properties 70 IC 360=14 L.W. 706 Such appointment will not interfere, with the right of the persons to possession of the properties as executor or trustee or otherwise 70 IC. 360 Where owing to disputes between rival claimants, there is likelihood of the property being lost, a guardian should immediately be appointed. 96 IC 283 Appointment of person who has not applied as guardian not proper. 107 IC 397. An order appointing a husband as guardian of his minor wife cannot be passed in disregard of the Civil Court's decree that he cannot have the custody of her person until she attained majority 2 Lah L.J. 509 The provisions of the Act should not be enforced to enable a husband to get possession of his wife which he has failed to do by execution of the decree obtained by him for restitution of conjugal rights. 57 IC. 882 (2). Once the power of the Court is invoked, it is its duty as soon as any dispute about the guardianship of the minor's property or any allegation of detriment to the minor's interest resulting from such dispute is properly brought to its notice to set right the matters in the interests of the minor and appoint a proper person as his guardian 64 IC 433 The conception of a dual guardianship is by itself not repugnant to law and there may be cases where there are more than one guardian The guardianship of a father or a mother does not cease while the minor child is in the possession of another person who has been lawfully entrusted with the care and custody of such minor by the father or mother. There is nothing in law to prevent the father or the mother of a minor, who may be his or her lawful guardian for the time being, from entrusting lawfully the care and custody of such minor to more than one person at a time. 15 Pat. 817=18 Pat L.T. 535=1937 Pat. 263.

Where the dispute is as to the validity of the marriage of the minor and the matter is not free from difficulty, the Court should refer them to a regular suit. 1927 Oudh 516. An order of appointment of a guardian to a minor can only be made on the sole ground of welfare of the minor, the Court cannot go against the will of the minor especially when he is old enough to form an intelligent opinion. 11 IC 478=196 P.W.R. 1911. It is clear that before making an order on an application under sec. 7 the Court ought to trust on evidence showing that the order is in the best interest of the ward or child. children 41 IC 571. If the father is not able to provide a fit home, he should be held to be not fit to be the guardian. The provisions of the Act are in no way limited by the English practice. English decisions cannot be considered to have any authority in India when dealing with a conflict between Hinduism and Islam. Change of religion by itself does not necessarily render a father unfit to be the guardian of his minor children 41 IC 571. Whether the general rule that a child should follow the religion of the father could apply without qualification to a case where the religion has been newly adopted by the father and is not that in which the child was born or reared 41 IC 571.

EFFECT OF ORDER.—An order appointing a guardian is final (subject to any other order passed in appeal) even if it was made under a misapprehension of the case 52 IC 831=73 PR 1919. Appointment of guardian of person and property of a minor under the Act means removal of natural guardian 50 IC 580, 42 IC 505=6 LW 760. When a guardian is appointed by Court for minor's property no other person, not even the de facto guardian, can legally bind the minor's estate 37 M 38=21 MLJ 1077=12 IC 568.

ANCESTRAL PROPERTY.—No guardian can be appointed in respect of a Hindu minor's undivided ancestral property 46 IC 815 [25 A 407 (PC), Foll]. See also 140 IC 198=1932 C 730. But see also 59 C 570=138 IC 739=1932 C 502 and cases cited therein (High Court can appoint such guardian under powers conferred by Letters Patent). See also 1933 M WN 1293, 36 GWN 769=1932 Cal 730 (Guardian can be appointed only when the minor who is a member of joint Hindu family governed by Mitakshara law is shown to have separate property of his own).

TRUST PROPERTY.—No guardian in respect of trust properties can be appointed under S 7 nor can sanction be granted under S 29 to sell the properties. Such a sale is invalid 23 MLJ 267=42 IC 273. A right to a portion of the income of the trust properties does not vest the properties in the beneficiary so as to attract the provisions of §§ 7 and 29 of the Act 23 MLJ 267.

SECURITY.—A conditional order "that upon petitioner furnishing security he is appointed guardian of minor's property" is ultra vires and bad ab initio 49 M 809=1927 M 36=51 MLJ 726 (FB). (30 MLJ 508, Foll; 40 M 775=37 IC 892, Overruled). But see 1930 L 497, contra. The practice of issuing suspension orders of guardianship deprecated 49 M 809. The Act does not require two orders, viz., interim order of approval and a 'final order' of appointment of the guardian of property nor does it postpone the appointment till security is furnished 30 MLJ 508=34 IC 432. But see 1930 L 497 (FB) contra [See also Notes under S 10, infra]. An order appointing a person guardian of the property of a minor, conditional on his furnishing security, is not void

ab initio. S 7 of the Act, which empowers the Court to make an order appointing a guardian of the person or property of the minor is comprehensive in its terms and does not lay down, expressly or by necessary implication, that the Court cannot impose a condition of this kind, in cases where it thinks fit to do so. S 31 (a) is not exhaustive as to the powers of the Court to demand security. It obviously confers on the Court powers which are additional and not exclusive. It deals with the obligations of a guardian of property, who has already been appointed as such, and empowers the Court to require him to furnish security if and when, subsequent to his appointment, it becomes necessary to do so. It does not in any manner control or qualify S 7 under which the Court has full power to make the appointment on such terms and subject to such conditions as it, in its discretion, considers conducive to the welfare of the minor 1930 L 497 (FB). A guardian to the property of a minor was appointed on condition of furnishing security in 1902. The guardian furnished security in 1909. Held, that the appointment of the guardian took effect from 1909 1930 L 497 (FB). In case of a conditional order of appointment of a guardian, the minor's natural guardian's acts done in good faith prior to the furnishing of security by the guardian appointed are valid 40 M 775=37 IC 892. An order of appointment of a guardian of property of an infant on condition that he furnishes security is an order under S 7 (t) and not under S 34 and is appealable under S 47 (4) 24 IC 202. See also 49 M 809.

PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE.—The proceedings under S 7 are summary 65 IC 888=15 S LR 175. Section contemplates only a summary inquiry followed by an order for the welfare of the minor 40 B 513=35 IC 57. When a minor is to attain majority shortly the Courts cannot prolong the age of minority by appointing a guardian under S 7 38 M 807=27 MLJ 30=41 IA 314 (PC). See also 1939 Lah 221=41 PLR 542. Ss 7 and 8 do not necessarily require that when proceedings have been instituted on a proper application, application should be taken from the person whom the Court appoints, though certainly in practice it is more usual to take one 73 IC 256. But see also 117 IC 901, 1933 L 220, 38 C 226, 1931 L 212. A Court dealing with an application under the Act should not dispose of the matter in the absence of the applicant by making an order in favour of his opponent as though the absent person were a defaulter in a civil suit 19 ALJ 489=63 IC 567. In determining whether a person is a minor the Court should take an independent view of its own and not adopt a finding in some civil suit that that person is a minor 19 ALJ 489=63 IC 567. In an application for the appointment of a guardian for the property of a minor, it must be shown that the minor has some property, as without that there is no foundation for the application. An enquiry for such purpose is, no doubt, not meant to be a

(2) An order under this section shall imply the removal of any guardian who has not been appointed by will or other instrument or appointed or declared by the Court

TESTAMENTARY GUARDIAN—CL. (3)—Under Hindu Law, a man cannot appoint a testamentary guardian for his minor nephew 12 I.C. 452=220 P.W.R. 1911 It is only where there is a written will appointing a guardian that a testamentary guardian stands in the way of the appointment of a statutory guardian by the Court 16 L.W. 415=1922 M. 70 (1) See also 40 M. 672=34 I.C. 766=30 M.L.J. 504 In an application for the appointment of a guardian of a minor, the Court has jurisdiction and is bound to consider the fact that there is a will although no probate had been granted in respect of the same 42 C. 953=28 I.C. 972=19 C.W.N. 513 Where there is a testamentary guardian for a minor an order appointing another person to be his guardian shall not be made unless the Court has ordered under S. 39 or S. 41, the removal of the testamentary guardian 29 Bom.L.R. 1577 See also 100 I.C. 738=28 P.L.R. 127 If the validity of the will is in question, it is discretionary with the Court to defer decision of guardianship until the question of probate has been determined 29 Bom.L.R. 1577 (17 B. 560, 16 M. 380, 29 B. 832, Ref.) APPOINTMENT OF GUARDIAN—DISCRETION—INTERFERENCE IN APPEAL—Where a guardian for a minor is appointed by a single Judge in exercise of his discretion, though an appeal is competent from his order, the fact that the making of the order is a matter of discretion is a good ground for refusing to exercise the appellate jurisdiction unless the appellant succeeds in establishing a strong case, such as would justify interference in appeal (71 I.C. 824 and 21 M.L.J. 1, Rel. on) 14 Lah. 804=1933 L. 881.

APPOINTMENT OF GUARDIAN—REINING OUT OF JURISDICTION—There is nothing in the Guardians and Wards Act which debars a Court from appointing a guardian who is not residing within the jurisdiction of the Court to which an application is made Under S. 7 a Court will appoint a guardian whenever it is satisfied, that it is for the welfare of the minor that an order should be made S. 39 Cl. (h) does not imply that a person applying for appointment must be residing within the jurisdiction of the Court to which the application is made What Cl. (h) means is that in certain cases ceasing to live within the jurisdiction of the Court which made the order of appointment may be ground for the removal of the guardian from his office and no more The only duty cast on the Court under the Act is to appoint the best person to act as guardian regardless of his place of residence 1933 A.L.J. 1333=1933 A. 780=56 A. 20

INTERLOCUTORY ORDER—REFUSAL OF APPLICATION TO BE APPOINTED GUARDIAN—APPEAL—An interlocutory order passed at an intermediate stage of the proceedings refusing the application of a party to be appointed guardian of a minor's property as being unfit, the proceedings being kept pending is not a final order within the purview of S. 7 (1) or S. 47 (a) so as to be appealable 38 C.W.N. 1083 See also 1934 L. 323

SECS 7 AND 8 THIRD PARTY—APPLICATION FOR APPOINTMENT OF GUARDIAN—MINOR'S RIGHT TO FUND DISPUTED—PROCEDURE—Where a person with whom a certain fund was deposited on behalf of a minor filed an application to Court under S. 7 to appoint a guardian for the minor in respect of the said fund and the Court decided in the face of opposition that the minor's natural father should be appointed guardian with direction for deposit of the amount in a Bank, the interest alone being payable to the guardian Held, that original petition would be deemed to be under S. 8 (b) of the Act and the Court had power to appoint a guardian in spite of the denial of the minor's right to the fund, and that the Court could order the investment of the amount in dispute but that it acted wrongly in directing payment of interest to the guardian, while the minor's title to the fund was in dispute 1934 M. 496=66 M.L.J. 310

SECS 7 AND 12—A Hindu father has the absolute right of appointing by will the guardian of his minor child, and the will so far as the appointment of the guardian is concerned

(2) If the application is with respect to the guardianship of the property of the minor, it may be made either to the District Court having jurisdiction in the place where the minor ordinarily resides or to a District Court having jurisdiction in a place where he has property.

(3) If an application with respect to the guardianship of the property of a minor is made to a District Court other than that having jurisdiction in the place where the minor ordinarily resides, the Court may return the application if in its opinion the application would be disposed of more justly or conveniently by any other District Court having jurisdiction.

It must be proved where the minor ordinarily resides, as required by S. 9 (1). The mere fact that the minors were taken to a place when the mother went to visit that place would not make that place the place of ordinary residence of the minors. 1 L.R. The minors were with the father who was living in Rohtak district. The father obtained their custody as a result of a compromise with the mother in a criminal case. The elder child was born in Rohtak district and the younger in Ferozepore. Held, that in the circumstances the minors must be taken to ordinarily reside in Rohtak district and that therefore, the Ferozepore Court had no jurisdiction to hear the application 40 P.L.R. 708. Secs. 9 (1) and 25.—In order to give the Court jurisdiction for purposes of appointment of guardian under S. 9 (1) and for purposes of passing order under S. 25, the minor must be

Sec. 10.—Where the name of a third party was suggested by the counsel for the objector and consented to by the counsel for the petitioner and the Court accordingly appointed him as a guardian, the fact that there was no proper application under S. 10 by the third party to be appointed as guardian does not invalidate the appointment. 34 P.L.R. 17-1033 L. 220. JURISDICTION AND PROCEDURE.—Though a Judge is not authorised by law to appoint a guardian in the absence of an application for such appointment, once an application is filed under S. 10 of the Act, the jurisdiction of the Judge comes into play, and it is open to him as a result of the enquiry, to appoint a person other than the applicant as guardian, provided such person has intimated his will to act as guardian. No doubt it would be more in conformity with law that such willingness is communicated to the Court in the form of an application in accordance with S. 10. But the absence of such application is not a bar to the jurisdiction of the Court appoint him. 1934 A.L.J. 125-1034 See also 144 I.C. 173-1033 L. 200.

OF NON APPLICANT—JURISDICTION.—The absence of an application by the person appointed as guardian is not a ground which invalidates his appointment. Once an application is made in accordance with the provisions of S 10 of the Act for the appointment of a guardian for a minor, and notices sent to the interested persons under S 11 and such persons avail themselves of the opportunity and appear in Court and adduce evidence in the enquiry the Court can appoint as guardian any person which it thinks best in accordance with S 17 of the Act. (b) to be posted on some conspicuous part of the court house, and of the residence of the minor, and otherwise published in such manner as the Court, subject to any rules made by the High Court under this Act, thinks fit

(2) The Provincial Government may, by general or special order,¹ require that, when any part of the property described in a petition under section 10, sub-section (1), is land of which a Court of Wards could assume the superintendence, the Court shall also cause a notice as aforesaid to be served on the Collector in whose district the minor ordinarily resides, and on every Collector in whose district any portion of the land is situate, and the Collector may cause the notice to be published in any manner he deems fit

(3) No charge shall be made by the Court or the Collector for the service or publication of any notice served or published under sub-section (2)

12 (1) The Court may direct that the person, if any, having the custody of the minor shall produce him or cause him to be produced at such place and time and before such person as it appoints and may make such order for the temporary custody and protection of the person or property of the minor as it thinks proper

SECS 12 AND 25 APPLICABILITY—APPLICATION BY APPOINTED GUARDIAN FOR CUSTODY OF MINOR

—The Court can entertain an application by a guardian appointed by it for the custody of the minor under the provisions of Ss 12 and 25. So long as the custody of a minor is not actually made over to the guardian appointed by Court, the proceeding for the appointment of the guardian does not terminate and the applicability of S 12 is not barred. There is another way of looking at the matter. A minor who is not delivered to the guardian after he has been appointed by a competent Court can be treated as having left or been removed from the custody of the guardian under S 25 (1) of the Act. I.L.R. (1938) L. 318=1938 Lah 313. The Court has jurisdiction to entertain an application by a guardian appointed by it for the custody of the minor although the minor has been removed out of its jurisdiction. To place a restricted meaning on the words "for the time being ordinarily resides in S 4 (5) (b) (ii) so as to interpret them to mean where the minor actually is at the time of the application would be tantamount to rendering nugatory all the provisions of the Act and to making the law helpless against the machinations of recalcitrant persons who do not propose to part with the minor in favour of the appointed guardian. I.L.R. (1938) Lah 318=1938 Lah 313.

SECS 12 AND 43 AND C P Code, O 39.

DISTINCTION IN THE POWERS EXERCISABLE UNDER

—There is a difference between a Court issuing an injunction under O 39, C P Code and a Court exercising similar powers under the Guardians and Wards Act in the interests of the minor. Ss 12 and 43 of the latter Act enable the Court to pass orders suo motu unlike O 39 R 2, C P Code and it can suo motu deal with disobedience of its orders. 189 IC 813=1940 N.L.J. 157=1940 Nag 203.

Sec 13—The procedure under S 13 is not intended to be summary. 44 IC 976=134 P.W.R. 1917, 105 IC 616. See also 83 IC 320=1925 N. 233 89 IC 865, 26 P.L.R. 164, 1926 L. 117. On this section, see also 23 B 698, 15 IC 195, 27 IC 121, 4 IC 603, 17 B 560. Ss 13 and 17 are wide enough to cover an enquiry into any of the matters which can legitimately form the subject of opposition to the grant of a certificate of guardianship to a particular individual. 27 IC, 121=18 O.C. 66. See also 105 IC 616. Whether preliminary enquiry as to whether the minor is possessed of property is not necessary before action is taken under the section. 99 IC 222=1927 O 68.

Sec 14 (2) RESIDENCE OF MINOR NOT DETERMINATIVE—JURISDICTION OF.—Where the minors ordinarily resided cannot be found out as both parties claim that the minors resided with them, the matter should be heard by the Court where it is alleged the minors have property. 1934 L. 208.

15 (1) If the law to which the minor is subject admits of his having two or more joint guardians of his person or property, or both, the Court may, if it thinks fit, appoint or declare them.

Appointment or declaration of several guardians

(2) On the death of a father, being an European British subject, who has, by will or other instrument to take effect on his death, appointed a guardian of his minor child, the Court may appoint the mother to be guardian of the child jointly with the guardian appointed by the father.

(3) On the death of a mother being an European British subject, who during the incapacity of the father of her minor child has, by will or other instrument to take effect on her death, appointed a guardian of the child, the Court may, if the father becomes capable of acting, appoint him to be sole guardian of the child or guardian of the child jointly with the guardian appointed by the mother, as it thinks fit.

(4) Separate guardians may be appointed or declared of the person and of the property of a minor.

(5) If a minor has several properties, the Court may, if it thinks fit, appoint or declare a separate guardian for any one or more of the properties.

16. If the Court appoints or declares a guardian for any property situate beyond the local limits of its jurisdiction, the Court having jurisdiction in the place where the property is situate shall, on production of a certified copy of the order appointing or declaring the guardian, accept him as duly appointed or declared and give effect to the order.

Appointment or declaration of guardian for property beyond jurisdiction of the Court

17. (1) In appointing or declaring the guardian of a minor, the Court shall, subject to the provisions of this section, be guided by what, consistently with the law to which the minor is subject, appears in the circumstances to be for the welfare of the minor.

Matters to be considered by the Court in appointing guardian.

NOTES.

Sec. 15.—A Hindu mother who remarries loses her natural right to be a preferential guardian of the person of her minor children. She can however be appointed guardian by the Court. 48 I.C. 75. There is nothing in the Hindu Law which prevents the Court from appointing more persons than one as guardian of the person of a minor. 48 I.C. 75. See also 1927 C. 389=101 I.C. 609. The Court, when it appoints a person as the guardian of a minor's person, should put the person appointed as guardian in a position to support the minor. 1930 A. 255 (2). Where property is not large and the Court has appointed separate guardians of persons of the minors, and the appointment of as many guardians of property as that of persons would lead to waste, property may be left in the hands of one of such guardians. 1930 A. 255 (2).

Sec. 15 (2).—Among European British subjects whether mother can be preferred to testamentary guardian, see 31 C.W.N. 394=101 I.C. 609=1927 C. 389. As to appointment of joint guardians, see ibid., 48 I.C. 75.

Sec. 16.—Where a person had been appointed under the Act as guardian of the property and person of a minor, he becomes the guardian of the property of the minor, in whichever district or districts the property may be situated. The effect of the appointment is that he becomes the certificated guardian for all purposes until he is discharged and cannot lay aside his status as such and pose as a natural guardian. 2 A.L.J. 460. The section is directory and does not in any way affect or prejudice the status of a certificated guardian when appointed generally over the property of a minor. 2 A.L.J. 460. Under sec. 3 a minor, of whose person or property a guardian has been appointed by any Court of justice, shall be deemed to have attained his majority when he has completed his age of 21 years and not before. Such a minor can be major in one district and a minor in another. 2 A.L.J. 460. Decree for the specific performance of a contract of sale made by a guardian of minor's property should not be decreed except on proof of certain benefit to minor. 45 I.C. 192.

Sec. 17 [See also Notes under sec. 7]: SCOPE OF SECTION.—The words of sec. 19 so far from being subject to the provisions of sec. 17 expressly override them. 19 N.L.R. 45=1923 N. 199 (38 M. 807, Foll). See also 47 I.C. 817=12 S.L.R. 14; 32 Bom.L.R. 386=1930 B. 239=54 B. 560, 54 A. 128=137 I.C. 219=1932 A. 215, 1942 O.W.N. (B.R.) 22.

JURISDICTION.—When an application is made for the appointment of a guardian for a minor and notices are issued to all persons interested in the minor, all the interested parties have an opportunity of putting their case before the Court, and actually appear before the Court and adduce all the evidence that they have, the Court has jurisdiction under sec. 17 to appoint such person as it thinks should be appointed,

(2) In considering what will be for the welfare of the minor, the Court shall have regard to the age, sex and religion of the minor, the character and capacity of the proposed guardian and his nearness of kin to the minor, the wishes, if any, of a deceased parent, and any existing or previous relations of the proposed guardian with the minor or his property

The fact that the person so appointed has not himself filed an application under sec. 10 of the Act does not deprive the Court of its jurisdiction to appoint him. 149 IC 708=1934 A L J 652=1934 A 849. See also 1934 L 208.

CONSIDERATIONS FOR THE COURT.—PERSONS ENTITLED TO BE GUARDIANS.—The welfare of the minor is the paramount consideration in an application for the appointment of a guardian for the person of a minor though the rights of guardianship under the minor's personal law must also be considered, but the qualification or otherwise of the proposed guardian is only secondary to that of the minor's welfare. 22 M L J 68=13 IC 16. See also 13 IC 453=22 M L J 247, 4 P 109=1925 P 444, 13 C L J 735. When a minor girl is living and has been living with her mother's sister ever since her mother's death when she was an infant and now when she is of marriageable age it is not in the interests of the minor that her custody should be given to her father. 170 IC 592=1937 Lah 481. Under the Act a Court in appointing a guardian or declaring a guardian of the minor is guided first by the provisions of sec. 17 of the Act and secondly by what appears to be the welfare of the minor consistently with the law to which the minor is subject. By placing the provisions of the section above the law to which the minor is subject the Act makes it open to the Court to consider other matters as well as the personal law even if they are opposed to that law. Thus the Court may consider the opinion of the minor, whatever it may be if he be old enough to form an intelligent preference and in considering what is for the welfare of the minor the Court must have regard to his age, sex and religion and any existing or previous relations of the proposed guardian with the minor or his property. 7 OWN 950=1930 O 471. See also 1936 Pesh 207 162 IC 632=1936 R 63. Matters to be considered by the Court in appointing a guardian under this section are: (1) the legal right to be appointed a guardian the preference of the minors and the existing previous relationship are very minor considerations as compared with the main question, what order would be for the welfare of the minor. 9 Bom L R 923=32 B 50. The interest well being and happiness of the minor ought to be the main and paramount consideration for the Court in selecting the guardian of the person of a minor. 9 Bom L R 923=32 B 50. See also 13 OC 140=6 IC 1001 192 P L R 1913=19 IC 609 33 A 222=8 IC 78, 26 IC 300, 1936 Pesh 207. Consistently with the welfare of the minor the Court should also have regard to the wishes of the deceased parents of the minor and also to the minor's wishes when he is of years of discretion. 25 IC 112=18 G W N 1169 (32 B 50 29 A 210, Foll). The Guardians and Wards Act does not permit the Court to subordinate the law to which the minor is subject to the considerations of what will be for the minor's welfare. 1938 A L J 982=1939 All 15=1 L R (1938) All 963. The circumstances that the mother of the minor girl has been forced to leave the house of the person claiming guardianship that there has been litigation between them, that the person claiming guardianship is the legal heir of the minor girl and that the minor girl wishes to remain with the person who helped her mother and for whom she has life long affection make it desirable that girl should remain in the custody of the person with whom she has so long stayed. 1929 A 857. Sec. 19 precludes from appointing any one other than the father of the minor as guardian of the minor unless the minor's father is found to be unfit to be guardian of the minor's person. 19 N L R 45=1923 N 199. But see also 84 IC 308=1925 L 250 1925 O 282 87 IC 1024=1925 O 421 86 IC 957=1925 M 1085. The sister of the minor applied to be appointed guardian of his person and property. The minor who was aged 14 opposed this and it appeared that, after her appointment the minor attempted to commit suicide. It did not, however appear that his conduct was due to ill treatment by the sister. There being no other relatives the Court revoked the order of appointment and directed the Society for Protection of Children in India to visit the boy at his sister's house. The Society, however, was not appointed guardians. Held, (1) that it was necessary to have a guardian appointed for the person of the minor, (2) that under the circumstances of the case the sister was the only proper person to be appointed guardian. A female relation of a Mahomedan minor who has under the Mahomedan Law a preferential right to the custody of the minor, can be appointed guardian of the person of the minor under S 17 if the welfare of the minor would be better served thereby although she has married a person who is not related to the minor. In the prohibited degrees Under the section the welfare of the minor is the primary consideration and even a stranger may be appointed a guardian in preference to a relation if the Court considers that the welfare of the minor demands it. The section no doubt, also enjoins that the Court should wherever possible, make an appointment which is inconsistent with the personal law to which the minor is subject, and that when the personal law definitely forbids the appointment of a certain person as guardian, such person should not be appointed 1 L.R. (1941) 1 Cal 419-45 C.W.N. 515.

COMPETITION BETWEEN HUSBAND AND FATHER OF MINOR WIFE.—The language of the section obviously implies that when any of the three contingencies mentioned in the sub-clauses exist, there is no authority in the Court to appoint or declare a guardian of the person of the minor at all that is to say, the jurisdiction of the Court conferred upon it by S 17 to appoint or declare a guardian is ousted where the case is covered by S 19. The section means not only that in the presence of the husband or the father no one else should be given preference, when either of them is fit to be appointed the guardian but on its language it even ousts the jurisdiction of the Court altogether and prevents it from appointing even the husband or the father as the guardian when both of them are not unfit to be the guardian. The legislature did not intend to settle the competition that may arise under the personal law governing the minor between the husband and the father of the minor 54 A 128-137 IC 219-1932 A 215. Immorality is not decisive to show that he is not fit to be guardian 10 Mys L.J. 156 following 46 A 706.

RELIGION OF MINOR.—A child in India must, under ordinary circumstances, be presumed to have his father's religion and his corresponding civil and social status, and it is therefore necessarily the duty of a guardian to train his infant ward in such religion 32 I C 897-46 P.W.R. 1916 [11 W.R. 77 (P.C.)], folly Effect of change of religion on right of guardianship, see 167 P.L.R. 1901, 60 P.R. 1901. See also 13 O.C. 140-6 IC 1001. The father of an infant is prima facie entitled to say in what religion his infant child should be

(2) In considering what will be for the welfare of the minor, the Court shall have regard to the age, sex and religion of the minor, the character and capacity of the proposed guardian and his nearness of kin to the minor, the wishes, if any, of a deceased parent, and any existing or previous relations of the proposed guardian with the minor or his property

NOTES

The fact that the person so appointed has not himself filed an application under sec 10 of the Act does not deprive the Court of its jurisdiction to appoint him 149 IC 708=1934 ALJ 652=1934 A 849 See also 1934 L 208

CONSIDERATIONS FOR THE COURT—PERSONS ENTITLED TO BE GUARDIANS.—The welfare of the minor is the paramount consideration in an application for the appointment of a guardian for the person of a minor though the rights of guardianship under the minor's personal law must also be considered, but the qualification or otherwise of the proposed guardian is only secondary to that of the minor's welfare 22 MLJ 68=19 IC 161 See also 19 IC 453=22 MLJ 247, 4 P 100=1925 P 444, 13 CLJ 735 When a minor girl is living and has been living with her mother's sister ever since her mother's death when she was an infant and now when she is of marriageable age, it is not in the interests of the minor that her custody should be given to her father 170 IC 592=1937 Lah 481 Under the Act a Court in appointing a guardian or declaring a guardian of the minor is guided first by the provisions of sec 17 of the Act and secondly by what appears to be the welfare of the minor consistently with the law to which the minor is subject By placing the provisions of the section above the law to which the minor is subject the Act makes it open to the Court to consider other matters as well as the personal law even if they are opposed to that law Thus the Court may consider the opinion of the minor whatever it may be if he be old enough to form an intelligent preference and in considering what is for the welfare of the minor the Court must have regard to his age sex and religion and any existing or previous relations of the proposed guardian with the minor or his property 7 OWN 950=1090 O 471 See also 1996 Pesh 207 162 IC 632 1936 R 63 Matters to be considered by the Court in appointing a guardian under this section viz., the legal right to be appointed a guardian the preference of the minors and the existing previous relationship are very minor considerations as compared with the main question what order would be for the welfare of the minor 9 Bom LR 923=32 B 50 The interest well-being and happiness of the minor ought to be the main and paramount consideration for the Court in selecting the guardian of the person of a minor 9 Bom LR 923=32 B 50 See also 13 OC 140=6 IC 1001 192 PLR 1913=19 IC 609 33 A 222=8 IC 785 26 IC 300 1936 Pesh 207 Consistently with the welfare of the minor the Court should also have regard to the wishes of the deceased parents of the minor and also to the minor's wishes when he is of years of discretion 25 IC 112=18 CWN 1198 (32 B 50 29 A 210, Foll) The Guardians and Wards Act does not permit the Court

RELIGION OF MINOR—A child in India must, under ordinary circumstances, be presumed to have his father's religion and his corresponding civil and social status, and it is therefore ordinarily the duty of a guardian to train his infant ward in such religion 32 I C 897=45 P.W.R. 1916 [11 W.R. 77 (P.C.), foll.] Effect of change of religion on right of guardianship see 167 P.L.R. 1901, 60 P.R. 1901 See also 13 O.C. 140=6 IC 1003. brought up, but at the same time in a proper case (e.g. when the father has abdicated his right) there is undoubted jurisdiction in the Court to disregard those wishes. 25 C 881—2 CWN 379. See also 22 M.L.J. 247—11 M.L.T. 53. The scope of the enactment is merely to remove legislative prohibition to confer expressly a certain jurisdiction on and to define exactly the position of those who avail themselves of or are brought under the Act leaving persons to whom any existing rules of law apply unaffected. 4 C 929—4 C.L.R. 247 (F.B.). The Act contains no provisions enabling the Court to act of its own motion. (Ibid)

MAHOMEDAN FATHER—APPOINTMENT AS GUARDIAN—DIFFERENCE IN RELIGION.—An application for being appointed as guardian of his child by a Mahomedan father should be decided in the discretion of the Court after due consideration of the matters set out in S 17. The child being a child of a Mahomedan marriage the Mahomedan Law on the subject should receive due consideration at the hand of the Court, but the Mahomedan law need not necessarily govern the application. Where a Mahomedan divorces his Buddhist wife with a three months' old female child who is brought up in her mother's religion for nine years after wards the mother having married a Buddhist it is in the interests of the child that the mother should remain the guardian. The facts that the father is comparatively more well to do and able to maintain and educate the child and had given maintenance to the child who had never seen him do not override the consideration of the minor's interests. 145 I.C. 843. 1933 R. 201.

MUHAMMADAN MOTHER.—Where the mother of the minors who were Mahomedans and of the age of 11, 9 and 8 was not of good character and had married a Hindu Jat held it is in the interest of the minors to be brought up in the religion of their Mahomedan father and that the children were not so young that they cannot be separated from the mother. 149 I.C. 973 (1)=1934 L. 287. Where the mother of two Mahomedan girls, five and a half and two and a half years of age did not appear to be of good character and had married a Hindu held the mother was not a proper person to have custody of the minors but the girl of two and a half years was too young to be separated from her mother. 151 I.C. 322 (1)=1934 L. 291.

GUARDIAN OF INFANT IN AN UNDIVIDED HINDU FAMILY.—The High Court can in the exercise of its inherent jurisdiction under Cl. 17 of the Letters Patent (and apart from the Guardians and Wards Act, 1890), appoint a guardian of an infant coparcener in an undivided Mitakshara family. 59 C 570—138 I.C. 739. 1932 G. 502.

SECS 17 AND 25. CHILD OF TENDER YEARS—RIGHT TO CUSTODY—CONSIDERATION FOR COURT.—In proceedings for custody of a minor child under the Act the paramount consideration is the interest of the child rather than the rights of the parents. In the case of a child of tender years, the natural mother of the child is the proper person to have the custody of the child though the father is the natural guardian of her child. It is impossible to find an adequate substitute for the mother for the custody of a child of tender years and in the absence of any evidence to show that she is not a proper person to have the custody of the child she must be given custody of the child in preference to the father. 1 I.L.R. (1941) Bom. 455. 43 Bom. L.R. 79=1941 Bom. 103. If a girl willingly and with understanding embraces the Mahomedan religion the fact that she was under 18 years of age would not invalidate the conversion and make her subsequent marriage void if all the necessary formalities at the conversion and the subsequent nikah had been faithfully observed, because a minor girl above 15 years 12, the age of minority under the Mahomedan Law, can be validly converted to the Mahomedan religion if in addition to a mere reputation of the words of faith she has understood their meaning. The Court is not concerned to inquire into the motive or sincerity of religious belief or observance. 186 I.C. 183=1939 Sind. 311.

REVISION—Order not warranted by Act—Revision lies. See 36 M 39. See also 31 P.L.R. 333.

See 25—[See Notes under Secs 17 and 19, supra.] The only remedy of a guardian seeking the restoration of the custody of his minor ward is by way of an application under S 25 of this Act. A separate suit is not maintainable for the purpose. 9 R 569. See also 68 M.L.J. 662. Quære, whether S 25 was intended to apply to the case of a person who has not been declared or appointed a guardian under the provisions of the Act. 132 I.C. 636 = 35 C.W.N. 158 = 1931 C. 563. An application under S 25 must be made to the Court where the minor ordinarily resides. 118 I.C. 415 (1) = 1929 R 129 (1). The refusal by a person to deliver back the child to its natural guardian when asked to do so by the latter amounts in effect to a removal from his custody and he can therefore, apply under S 25 of the Act. 1929 M 81. See also 54 A 128 = 1932 A.L.J. 21 = 1932 A. 215, 158 I.C. 581 = 1935 O.W.N. 1096 = 1935 O 492 (F 8). (Application by Muhammadan father for custody of his minor girl.) Where it appeared that the father had been tried of serious charges in relation to his treatment of his children and though he had been acquitted of criminal prosecution, his conduct was otherwise reprehensible. Held, that he was disentitled from claiming custody of the minor children who were residing in a convent. 132 I.C. 636 = 35 C.W.N. 158 = 1931 C. 563. See also 1935 A 838. Matters to be considered in passing order under the section. See 107 I.C. 759. The father has a right to custody of a minor child. 47 A 706, 18 L.W. 173 = 1924 M 45. But as to consider of rulings, 1925 O 282, 1925 O 257, 83 I.C. 308 = 1925 L 250, 86 I.C. 937 = 1925 M 1085, 86 I.C. 640 = 1925 M 398. The decision of the question whether it would be for the welfare of the child to return to the custody of its guardian depends entirely on the circumstances of each case. When the guardian of the person of a ward applies for the custody of the ward, he is only asking the Court to help him to discharge the duty cast on him by law with reference to his ward and it is for those, who oppose such an application to make out that the welfare of the ward will be better served by its being kept out of the custody of its guardian and retained in the custody of the person against whom the application is made. This onus is especially heavy when the guardian is the father of the child. 1929 M 81. Before the Court can pass an order for the arrest and delivery of a minor girl to her husband, the guardian, the Court has first to be satisfied that it is for the welfare of the ward to return to her guardian. The Court cannot assume that it is for her welfare to so return, and if the order is passed without the Court deciding that question, the order will be set aside. 43 L.W. 650 = 1936 M 556 = 71 M.L.J. 346. There is no legal prohibition against the appointment of a person as a guardian who is not residing within the jurisdiction of the Court or the making of an order under S 25 in favour of such a person, though naturally the Courts would as an ordinary rule be reluctant to make such an order. 39 Bom L.R. 103 = 1937 B 158 = 1 L.R. (1937) Bom 348.

FATHER—RIGHTS OF—The father has an inalienable right to the custody of his children and he cannot be deprived of it except for strong reasons. 41 P.L.R. 841 = 1939 Lah 359. The father, as the natural guardian, has the legal right to the custody of his child and the Court will not interfere with his right except when the safety or the welfare of the child requires such interference. The Court will be perfectly justified in imposing limits upon the father's right of custody, if the exercise of such rights will materially interfere with the health and happiness of the minor. 74 C.L.J. 196. An immoral father has not the same right to the custody of his children as a moral man. (1924 A 622, not appr.) 1929 M 81. See also 120 I.C. 747. Although according to Hindu Law a father is the natural guardian of his children during their minority and has, therefore, a paramount right to the custody of his children, yet each case must depend upon its own circumstances and the right of the father is liable to be defeated where it is shown that it is better in the interests of the minor and for its welfare that it should remain where it is. If a minor girl has for many years from a tender age lived with grandparents or other near relatives and has been well cared for and during that time the minor's father has shown a lack of interest in the minor, these are circumstances of very great importance and bear both upon the question of the interests and welfare of the minor and on the bona fides of the petition by the father for the custody of his minor girl. 41 L.W. 190 = 1935 M.W.N. 412 = 1935 M 195. A Hindu father is the natural guardian of his children during their minority, and has prima facie a paramount right to their custody, and must be given such custody unless he is unfit or there are other circumstances. But the welfare of the minor child is a very

(3) The residence of a ward against the will of his guardian with a person who is not his guardian does not of itself terminate the guardianship important matter for consideration and the interests and welfare of the minor are some times even paramount to the rights of the father. A minor girl about one year old was, on her mother's death, taken to live with her maternal uncles with the consent of her father who took a second wife and had by her four children. She remained with her uncles ever since until she was 13 years of age and was fondly brought up and well-cared for by her uncles and grandmother. The father did not show the slightest interest in her welfare till then, but suddenly applied for her custody under S 25 of the Act. The minor girl showed her preference clearly in favour of remaining with her uncles, and it also appeared that the petition made by the father was not bona fide but out of spite and grudge against the maternal uncles. Held, that the minor girl of 13 years was capable of forming a good opinion on the matter and that the interests and welfare of the minor demanded that she should remain where she was and the father's petition should be refused. 41 L.W. 400=1935 M 363=68 M.L.J. 213. See also 50 L.W. 520=1939 Mad 611=(1939) 2 M.L.J. 515. The father is the natural guardian of his minor child and has a right to claim custody of the child, but such right can be defeated if the Court thinks it better in the minor's interests to leave him in another's custody. In determining the minor's welfare, the question whether the application for custody is bona fide or not should be considered. If it is not bona fide that is a reason for not disturbing the existing custody. The Court may in that connection take into account the failure on the part of the father to take steps over a long period to get custody of the minor. Another consideration is whether he is a fit person for the minor to be returned to. The fact that the father ill treated the minor's mother and was about to marry a second wife will also count against him, especially when his application is belated, made after the lapse of a long time. 158 I.C. 99=1935 M 568. See also 1939 Mad 611=(1939) 2 M.L.J. 515. A minor, provided he or she is old enough to understand the nature of his or her acts, though under 18 years of age, is able in spite of the father's power of general control over his or her education, religious and otherwise, to change his or her religion. But in this, as in all other matters under the Guardians and Wards Act, the Court in deciding who shall have the custody of the minor will consider first the welfare and interest of the minor and in so doing the Court can set aside her own preferences in her own interest and for her good. Further, a father does not lose the right of custody of his minor child if he becomes converted to another religion or if his child becomes so converted. 1939 Sind 311, 39 Bom L.R. 103=1937 B 158, 41 L.W. 789=68 M.L.J. 662. Where a District Judge appointed the father guardian of the property of a ward and directed the respondent to restore the child to her father, remarking that no order as regards the guardianship of her person was necessary. Held, that the conditional order of appointment as guardian of the property is of no effect. The District Judge was not correct in saying that no order as regards the guardianship of the person was 'necessary'. 1930 M 19. On this section, see also 27 I.C. 257, 13 A.L.J. 742, 29 I.C. 768, 28 I.C. 597=17 Bom L.R. 332. Though, according to the Muhammadan Law, the mother is the guardian of her minor son below 7 years of age, and so an application by the father for the custody of a child aged less than 7 at the time of the application would be incompetent, nevertheless, if during the course of the proceedings, the infant has attained 7 years of age, it is open to the father to continue the application. The only remedy of a father for the custody of his minor son is by an application under S 25. The words "removed from his custody" should receive a liberal construction as including removal from constructive custody. A refusal to deliver a minor to his natural guardian when asked to do so by the latter amounts in effect to removal from his custody. 124 I.C. 381, 25 A.L.J. 585 (rights of Mahomedan father and mother over minor child). Natural father of a child consented to the mother retaining the child during its infancy. The mother separated from the father before birth of the child and lived with another man as his wife. On her death the natural father applied for the custody of the child. The natural father was a man of good character. Held, that he was entitled to apply for and obtain the custody in preference to the other man with whom the mother lived as wife after separation from the natural father and that the child must be deemed to have been in his custody at the time of its birth. (39 M. 608, 49 A. 332, Ref. 40 B. 600, Diss from.) 12 R. 161=149 I.C. 1045=1934 R. 49 (1). Petitioner who lived with his wife and minor child in the house of his father in law for nearly two years and thereafter lived apart called upon the wife to come with the child and live with him but the latter refused. The petitioner having applied under S 25 of the Act for custody of his minor child, held, that the father as the natural guardian of his minor child was entitled to apply under S 25, that the minor must be deemed to be in the constructive custody of the petitioner and that the refusal of the wife to go and live with him with the child was in law a removal of the child from the custody of the petitioner. Held, further, that an application under S 25, and not a suit was the proper remedy of the petitioner. 151 I.C. 1037=36 Bom L.R. 668=1934 B. 311. The word 'custody' in S 25 includes both actual and constructive custody. 39 M. 608=30 M.L.J. 21, 25 A.L.J. 585, 58 B. 724=36 Bom.L.R. 668=1934 B. 311. Even where the minor has never been in the custody of the guardian, in order to make the Act workable, a fiction must be imported into S 25, whereby it is deemed that the child has been constructively in the guardian's custody and has left it. 1930 M. 19. A Court is not justified in refusing relief to the guardian under S. 25 of the Act on the ground that the guardian is too weak to keep the minor. 1927 L. 266. It is the duty of the Court to protect the weak against the high handed acts of the strong and this duty had to be performed with greater vigilance when the aggrieved party is a duly constituted guardian appointed by the Court itself and the victims are minors under its charge. 100 I.C. 807=1927 L. 266. In order to take action under S. 25, it is immaterial whether the minor left the guardian's custody of his own accord or was forcibly removed by the respondent. 100 I.C. 807=1927 L. 266. Father leading an immoral life—Children living with maternal uncle—Power delegated by the father whether can be revoked. 103 I.C. 361=1927 N. 314. For the purposes of S. 25, it is not really necessary that the applicant should be a lawful guardian under the personal law. The application can be made by any person having the care of the person of the minor. The father of an illegitimate son who had the care of his person has, therefore, a locus standi to maintain a petition under the section. The petition must be decided on equitable considerations, the sole criterion for decision being the welfare of the minor. 15 L. 630=35 P.L.R. 677=1934 L. 1003. See also I.L.R. (1910) All. 269=1910 A.L.J. 238=1910 All. 329. Under Hindu Law the father of a minor girl ceases to be the guardian of her person as soon as she is married. 1935 L. 25. On the death of her husband, this right does not revive in favour of the father, but devolves upon the husband's relations. Where therefore at the time of the application under S. 25 by the father the girl was in custody of her natural guardian, the mother in law, it cannot possibly be said that she had been removed from lawful custody, and the order for the delivery of the minor to her father under S. 25 is illegal. 1935 L. 25. Ex parte order directing production of minor—Application to cancel the order dismissed—Order of dismissal not appealable—Proper remedy of the party is to apply to set aside ex parte order. 92 I.C. 36=1926 N. 351. A husband is, by Hindu Law, a natural guardian of his minor wife and entitled to custody, and comes within the definition in S. 14 of the Act as being "a person having the care of the person of a minor" and, therefore, is entitled to apply under S. 25 for the custody of his wife. 121 I.C. 175=1930 Sind. 135. See also 33 Bom. L.R. 386. Where a husband obtains a decree for restitution of conjugal rights against his minor wife, his only remedy would be to get an attachment against the property of his wife, if she has any. It would be altogether wrong to permit the husband to achieve his object by making an application under the provisions of sec. 25 to take custody of his minor wife against whom the decree was passed. Reversed) 161 I.C. 915=1936 A. 637.

'CUSTODY'—'GUARDIAN'—The meaning of the word 'custody' is not confined to the physical or actual custody of the minor. Even if the ward is in the actual custody of another person with the permission of the guardian, he or she would be under the guardian's constructive custody. 54 A. 128=1932 A.L.J. 21=1932 A. 215. 'Custody' in sec. 25 includes the actual as well as the constructive custody of the minor, and the section is not limited to the powers of enforcing the guardian's right to the extreme case of an actual leaving or removal. A ward in the actual custody of another person with the permission of the guardian is deemed to be in the constructive custody of the guardian, and the refusal of the person in actual custody to hand over the minor to the guardian amounts to a removal of the minor from the constructive custody of the guardian within the meaning of sec. 25 of the Act. 151 I.C. 1037=36 Bom. L.R. 668=1934 B. 311. See also 74 C.L.J. 196; 39 M. 608=30 M.L.J. 21, 25 A.L.J. 585, 161 I.C. 816=1936 A.L.J. 211=1936 A. 267. Any person who has the care of the person of the minor is a 'guardian' of the person, so if a female relation is under the Muhammadan Law entitled to the custody of the minor and not disqualified in any way and the minor is actually in her custody, it cannot be said that she has left or has been removed from the custody of the guardian having the care of the person of the minor. 54 A. 128=137 I.C. 219=1932 A. 215. A father can make an application under sec. 25 for the custody of his minor son although the minor was never in his custody and lived all along with his maternal grandparents. The word "custody" as used in that section refers not only to actual but also to constructive or legal custody. When the father of a child is alive and has not abandoned his right, the maternal grandfather or for the matter of that any other relation who has actual custody of the boy must be deemed to have that custody with the knowledge and consent of the father. Legally it is the father who has the custody of the child in such circumstances and the child can be deemed within the meaning of the section, to be removed from such legal custody, when the person in whose actual possession he is, repudiates to the guardian's knowledge the right of the latter to the actual or legal custody of the minor. 74 C.L.J. 196. Sec. 25 does not apply if the ward has never been in the custody of the guardian. Custody means actual custody and not constructive custody. When the father of a minor has never had actual custody of the child there is no jurisdiction in the Court to direct the custody of the minor child to be handed over to the father in proceedings under the Act. I.L.R. (1911) Bom. 488=43 Bom. L.R. 615=1911 Bom. 344.

'GUARDIAN'—MEANING OF—'Guardian' in the Guardians and Wards Act means a person having the care of the person of a minor or of his property or both and is used in a wide sense. It does not necessarily mean a guardian duly appointed or declared by the Court, but includes a natural or even a de facto guardian. 151 I.C. 1037=36 Bom. L.R. 668=1934 B. 311. See sec. 4, supra.

26 (1) A guardian of the person appointed or declared by the Court, unless he is the Collector or is a guardian appointed by will or other instrument, shall not, without the leave of the Court by which he was appointed or declared, remove the ward from the limits of its jurisdiction except for such purposes as may be prescribed

SEC 27 APPLICABILITY—S 27 applies to guardians recognized by the law whether or not they have been appointed guardians under the Guardians and Wards Act. It does not and was not intended to confer any power upon a person who without any lawful authority in that behalf has usurped the position of a guardian, or has taken upon himself the care of the property of a minor 12 R 656=1934 R 335. A guardian appointed under the Act cannot ratify the unauthorized acts of a former guardian 54 I C 311. It is unwise on the part of the guardian to admit that his wards were liable for a debt when the debt could not be legally recovered owing to the lapse of time 56 I C 328=23 O C 27. Where a guardian acting in the interests of the minor enters into a compromise of a doubtful right, it is binding on the minor 14 M L J 442. A guardian has a discretion under sec 27 to allow a remission of rent on failure of rain or other source of irrigation 28 I C 5=8 S L R. 222. On this section, see also 83 I C 24=1924 A 622. Where the income from a business inherited by a minor is the principal source of his maintenance, money borrowed by his guardian for the efficient conduct of that business is money borrowed for the benefit of the minor's estate 44 C W N 1048=1940 Cal 532. The mere fact that the guardian has filed abstract statement of assets and liabilities does not release him from liability to account unless he gets a discharge from such liability from the Court 15 C L J 57=7 I C 214 (34 C 211, Rel). A promissory note executed by the certificated guardian for goods supplied to the shop owned by the minor does not impose a personal liability on the minor and the creditor is not entitled to recover the amount from the minor or his estate 34 Bom L R 1001=1932 B 480. Although a guardian can under certain circumstances sell or charge his ward's estate or property, he cannot bind him personally by a simple contract debt nor can he bind his estate except by a document purporting to bind it. This principle applies even to a case where the promissory note was executed by the guardian (appointed by the Court) after obtaining sanction from Court and the amount was utilised for the benefit of the minor [11 B 551 (P C) and 20 B 61, Foll.] 34 Bom L R 996=1932 B 460. Though a debt incurred on behalf of a minor for necessary purposes of the minor or a covenant to pay a debt so incurred can be enforced against the property of the minor, a guardian cannot impose an unconditional personal liability on the minor by executing a promissory note on his behalf because any qualification of the promise contained in a promissory note such as that it is only to be enforced against a minor, if necessity binding on the minor be shown is wholly foreign to the idea of a negotiable instrument 65 M L J 350=56 M 879. PURCHASE OF LAND FOR MINOR—A guardian of a minor, although he occupies a position which is fiduciary in character, cannot be held to be debarred from acquiring immovable property on behalf of his ward provided in doing so he acts as a prudent man who is acting carefully with his own money. Though a guardian in possession of minor's property may fall under S 94 of the Trusts Act he cannot be held in every case to come within S 95 of the Trusts Act as the words 'so far as may be' in that section make it subject to S 27 of the Guardians and Wards Act 49 L W 644 1939 Mad 645=(1939) 1 M L J 745

Secs 27, 29 and 30—Under S 27 of the Act a guardian may, subject to the provisions of the Act, do all acts which are reasonable and proper for the realisation, protection or benefit of the property of the minor. Other sections in the Act place restrictions on the guardian's power to alienate or charge the immovable property of the minor. It follows that the restrictions contained in S 29 and the provisions of S 30 do not apply to a mere borrowing of money by a guardian. A loan contracted without the sanction of the Court by a guardian appointed under the Act will be binding upon the minor if the lender had made proper enquiries and had satisfied himself as to the legal necessity for the loan whether or not the money was actually applied for the benefit of the minor. The fact that the true necessity was not mentioned in the recitals in the bond is of little importance, as such recitals are merely a piece of evidence as to the nature of the alleged necessity and are not conclusive on the point 72 C L J 542=44 G W N 1038=1940 Cal 332 See also 31 P L R (J & K) 125

Secs 30 and 31.—Where a guardian of a minor appointed under the Act obtains the sanction of the Court authorising him to execute a mortgage of the minor's property and to borrow a certain amount for the purpose of paying off a mortgage decree against the estate, and executes a mortgage for the amount authorised by Court, and no fraud or underhand dealing is alleged, the person who lends money to the guardian and takes a mortgage from the guardian is entitled to rely upon the sanction itself for the validity of the transaction. The lender is not bound to go behind the order of the Court sanctioning the mortgage; he is entitled to rely upon it, and if he acts bona fide, he is not bound to see to the application of the money or any part of it. The circumstance that the guardian does not subsequently apply the money in its entirety for the purpose for which he borrows it is irrelevant. If the guardian applies the bulk of the money borrowed for the purpose sanctioned by the Court but applies a small part of it for a different purpose which is not sanctioned, it would still be open to the creditor who has advanced the money to establish that there was legal necessity for that amount also. When he has paid the whole amount of the consideration on the faith of the sanction and the amount advanced does not exceed the amount sanctioned by the Court, he is entitled to claim the whole amount advanced by him as a mortgagee. 40 Bom L R 180=1938 Bom 234.

See 31.—[See also under S 29.] S 31 does not make the holding of any enquiry by Court essential. The fact that the guardian mentioned one debt in the application for permission for sale but the sale-deed purports to have been executed to pay off totally different debts and the fact that the sale was actually made for a higher sum than that proposed do not show that the interests of the minor were prejudiced in any manner by the sale. 172 I C 637=1938 O W N 104=1938 Oudh 65. Under its general jurisdiction, and apart from the Guardians and Wards Act, the High Court has power to appoint a guardian of the property of a minor who is a member of a joint Hindu family and where the minor's property is an undivided share in the family property. The High Court has also jurisdiction to sanction an alienation by the father of a minor or the manager of a joint family where the Court is satisfied that the transaction is for the benefit of the minor. The father or manager has no doubt power under the Hindu Law to sell or mortgage for legal necessity or for the benefit of the estate, but that is no ground for depriving the father or manager in a Hindu joint family of his right to come to the High Court and apply to appoint him the guardian of the property of a minor member and for empowering him as such to sell or mortgage the family estate including the minor's undivided share, and if the requisite facts are proved, the Court ought in a proper cause to make an order sanctioning the alienation. 167 I C 947=38 Bom L R 1286=I L R (1937) Bom 432=1937 B 98. SANCTION—GRANT OF—FACTS TO BE CONSIDERED.—All that the District Judge has to consider in an application by the certificated guardian for sale of the minor's property is whether such a sale is necessary or is for the evident advantage of the ward. While granting permission the District Judge should mention that the transaction may take place at a certain figure the certificated guardian, however, should not be directed to sell to a certain party, the sanction under S 31 is therefore complete authority to the certificated guardian to sell to any person he likes who is willing to comply with the terms upon which permission to sell is accorded by the District Judge. 8 P 226=f17 I C 161=1929 P 202. Where however, the mortgagees fully knowing the terms of the order of the District Judge under which the guardian has been permitted to take a loan grant the loan without complying with the terms of such order it is not open to them to claim any benefit which they would have been entitled to otherwise because of the sanction given to the guardian. In such circumstances the mortgagees in order to establish the fact that the mortgage deed is binding on the minors have to show that the loan was taken for family necessity. 152 I C 503=1935 A 41

Secs 31, 33 and 43 LEASE WITHOUT PERMISSION—POWER TO CANCEL—POWER TO DEAL WITH MINOR'S PROPERTY—The District Judge cannot exercise judicial authority in relation to third persons in proceedings under the Guardians and Wards Act. If the lease executed by the guardian is voidable, the same not having been executed with the permission of the District Judge, the latter has no power to cancel it in the sense that the lease becomes inoperative by force of that order. Any question as regards the validity of the lease is to be determined by a competent Court in a regular suit. There is no provision in the Guardians and Wards Act which empowers the District Judge to exercise disposing power over the minor's property under the management of a lawful guardian. It is the function of the guardian to deal with the property of the minor and to administer it. The guardian may obtain the advice of the District Judge under S 33. The District Judge may also make an order under S 43 regulating the conduct or proceeding of any guardian appointed or declared by the Court. But he cannot deal with the minor's property and do every thing which the guardian might do. Besides cancelling an instrument executed by the latter, he has no power to declare that the cancellation of the lease already executed is to take effect from a certain date and that it shall be valid till that date arrives. 1934 A 1043=1934 A L J 1208

Sec 33—The directions of Court under S 33 do not impose a liability on a minor where none existed. The effect of the sanction under sub-cl (3) of S 33 is that it raises a statutory presumption of a faithful performance by the guardian of a duty cast upon him and protects him as regards his own liability either under his bond or in general to the Court or as against the minor. The sanction does not however, have the effect of making the minor personally bound by a contract by the guardian which does not purport to charge the minor's estate. 34 Bom L.R. 996. Power to award remuneration for auditing accounts

35 Where a guardian appointed or declared by the Court has given a bond duly to account for what he may receive in respect of the property of his ward, the Court may, on application made by petition and on being satisfied that the engagement of the bond has not been kept, and upon such terms as to security, or providing that any money received be paid into the Court, or otherwise as the Court thinks fit, assign the bond to some proper person, who shall thereupon be entitled to sue on the bond in his own name as if the bond had been originally given to him instead of to the Judge of the Court and shall be entitled to recover thereon as trustee for the ward, in respect of any breach thereof and Reasons.—“The Guardians and Wards Act, 1890, contains no specific provision for the auditing of the accounts of minor's estates and the meeting of the cost of the audit out of the estates. The audit of such accounts tends to be left to the Judges of Subordinate Courts or District Courts or to ministerial officers who have rarely the time or training to apply anything in the nature of a thorough test. With a view to checking the possibility of defalcation an adequate audit of these accounts is desirable. Accordingly the present Bill has been framed for the purpose of giving express power to the Court to award remuneration for auditing accounts out of the income of the property. Cl (3) empowers the High Court to make rules as to the audit of the accounts the class of persons who should be appointed to audit them and the scales of remuneration to be granted to the auditors.

Sec 35.—The Court has got the power under S 35 to assign a surety bond executed by the guardian in favour of the assignee of the interests of the minors who has attained majority. The exercise of jurisdiction to assign is undoubtedly discretionary. (The effect of the words “as trustee for the ward in S 35 considered.) 34 C W N 953

SECURITY BOND BY GUARDIAN—ASSIGNMENT.—Where a person appointed as guardian of a minor under the Act executes a security bond in favour of the Court undertaking to ‘duly account for all the movable property and for all the money which he shall receive on account of the movable and immovable properties of the minor,’ etc., and to be liable for a certain amount of money in default of the due performance of his duties as guardian making his immovable properties security for the amount in addition to his personal liability, the bond is conditioned for the due performance of the duties of the executant as guardian. The obligation to pay comes into force the moment there is failure to account for the monies received by the guardian. If as the result of the engagement of the bond not being kept up and of the failure of the guardian to account for the monies the Court assigns the bond under S 35 what the assignee gets is not a mere right to sue but a right to enforce a liability under the bond which has accrued due and when the liability is also secured by a charge or mortgage of immovable property, the charge or mortgage is also assigned along with the right to enforce the liability. The assignee under S 35 is entitled to enforce the liability and the charge or mortgage therefor as if the bond has been executed in his favour. When a newly appointed guardian of the ward takes an assignment the assignment is in trust for the ward. When the assignee guardian assigns the bond to the ward on the latter becoming a major that assignment is only in fulfilment of the duty the assignee is under to hand over all the property of the ward to the latter. Such an assignment is perfectly valid and entitles the ward to sue and to enforce its terms. 1938 M W N 379=1938 Mad 829. The proceeding for assignment will in no way operate to the prejudice of any defence the surety's representatives may have in a suit brought on the bond. 34 C W N 953=1930 C 594. An order by the District Court fixing the liability of the surety is not called for and not necessary before the Court can assign the bond to the minor or any other guardian of his appointed by the Court. There is no provision in the Act for the surety being a party to any proceedings in which accounts may be taken and no provision by which the surety can appeal against the order of the District Court fixing his liability. 135 I C 833=1932 A 177. A certificate of guardianship is not a public or official record within the meaning of sec 35 and is therefore not admissible in evidence. 53 A 428=130 I C 201=1931 A 307. What sec 35 apparently contemplates is that an entry should have been made by an officer whose duty it is to make such an entry after having been satisfied as to its correctness. 53 A 428=130 I C 201=1931 A 307.

Sec 35 is perfectly general and can apply to a case where the ward was a minor or to a case where the ward has ceased to be a minor. The section is intended to cover both the cases. It is within the discretion of the Court to appoint a man who does not reside within the local limits of its jurisdiction as a guardian or not. There is no provision in the Act prohibiting the appointment of a person as a guardian who does not reside within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court. A plain reading of sec 39 shows that the Court has been given the power to remove a guardian who has ceased to reside within its local limits. The word "may" has been used and not "shall". But the converse proposition is not true 188 I C 555=1940 Pesh 14. See also 75 I C 595=1925 Nag 224. Under the Guardians and Wards Act, it is not essential that a person who applies for being appointed guardian of the property of a minor should be a resident of the district in which the property is situated. The power of the Court under S 39 of the Act to remove a guardian who is not residing in the district within which the property is situated is discretionary and it cannot reasonably be inferred therefrom that the applicant must necessarily be a resident of the district in which the property is situated 44 P L R. 202.

(d) in the case of a female ward, by her marriage to a husband who is not unfit to be a guardian of her person or, if the guardian was appointed or declared by the Court, by her marriage to a husband who is not, in the opinion of the Court, so unfit, or

(e) in the case of a ward whose father was unfit to be guardian of the person of the ward, by the father ceasing to be so or, if the father was deemed by the Court to be so unfit, by his ceasing to be so in the opinion of the Court

APPEAL—There is no appeal from an order made by the District Judge refusing to remove a guardian 14 IC 56=195 PWR 1912 (19 C 487 23 C 201, 20 B 667, 20 A 433, Foll) Order removing guardian is appealable 1925 O 260

Secs 39 and 8—A first cousin, once removed of a minor comes within the terms of S 8 (b) and is thereby entitled to make an application for the appointment of a guardian. The fact that he comes within the terms of S 8 is quite enough to make him personally interested within the meaning of S 39 and he is, therefore entitled to file an application for the removal of a guardian. The fact that he is at enmity with the guardian is immaterial I LR (1939) 2 Cal 440=185 IC 880=12 RC 420

Sec 41 SCOPE OF SECTION—S 41 is not confined to the case of guardian appointed by the Court. The word 'guardian' in that section refers not merely to a guardian appointed or declared by the Court, but also to other guardians, including guardians appointed by instruments. Under S 41 (b) the rights of a person who claims to be the legally constituted guardian of a minor come to an end when the Court of Wards assumes superintendence 150 IC 706=1934 O 392

APPLICATION OF DISCHARGE ON GROUND OF MAJORITY—EFFECT OF ORDER—In an application by the guardian for a discharge on the ground of majority, it is not necessary for the Court to declare the minor to have attained majority. The Court when it accepts the fact that the minor has attained majority, does not make any order under the Act, which would be final and not liable to be contested by suit or otherwise. It is open to the minor to show that he had not attained the age of majority on that date in spite of the orders passed by the Judge. 129 IC 781=1934 ALJ 318=1934 A 406 (FB)

Sec 41 (3)—The words 'in his possession or control' should be taken in the narrow sense of 'in this sense of the guardian having a power of disposition over it and not in the actual possession. It does not mean that if the guardian has converted the Government Promissory Notes of his ward and disposed of the property or proceeds no order can be made against him under S 41 152 IC 1073=38 GWN 438=1934 C 520. See also 149 IC 781=1931 A 406 (F.B.). Under S 41 (3) the guardian is liable to deliver any property in his possession or control belonging to the ward or any accounts in his possession or control relating to any past or present property of the ward. But the Court has no power to compel the guardian to pay any sum found due from the guardian after the enquiry. Per Curiam—It cannot be said, if the deceased guardian's accounts are wrong, the Court can compel the representative of the guardian to pay into Court any sum found due after an investigation. 130 IC 779=1931 L 68. Where the only object is to protect the minor's property the object can well be served by directing the discharged guardian to furnish solvent security for payment of any amount that may be found due on scrutiny of accounts. It is hard on a guardian, to be called upon to deposit a large amount in cash. 1938 N.L.J. 202=1938 Hag 399. Death of ward—Succession disputed—Court should not order guardian to hand over properties to one of the claimants. See 22 L.W. 642=92 IC 570. If the guardian is incompetent or is otherwise an improper person to be allowed to continue as such, proper proceedings must be taken under S 39 for his removal and the appointment of another guardian. But until this is done, it is the duty of the Court to render all assistance to the guardian in the discharge of his duties and to see that the minors remain in his custody. 100 IC 807=1927 L 266.

Sec 41, Cl. (3) and (4).—When the guardian guardian has complied with the directions of the Court under sub S (3), the Court has full discretion in the matter under sub-S (4) to discharge him if it thinks fit. In exercising such discretion the Judge is exercising a jurisdiction vested in him and as such it cannot be interfered with in revision. I.L.R. (1938) Mad 667=1938 Mad 347=(1938) 1 M.L.J. 285 (F.B.). Where the ward is not satisfied by the accounts rendered by the guardian it is the duty of the Court to order an enquiry into the accounts. The Court cannot shirk its duty by suggesting a remedy by way of a separate suit in view of the provisions of S 48. 191 IC 108=1940 Rang 246.

Cl. (4).—A suit will lie against the guardian's son and a surety to render accounts in the absence of an order of discharge of the guardian. 67 IC 935=3 Lah L.J. 364. Even after discharge of guardian his liability continues for mistakes discovered subsequently. 23 A.L.J. 428=88 IC 165=1925 A 457. To bar a suit by a ward on attaining majority against a guardian for rendition of accounts, the order of discharge under S 41 (4) must be in express terms. 25 P.R. 1918=41 IC 344 (34 C 211, 15 C.L.J. 57 Foll.). The proper thing for a Court when the guardian applies for a discharge, is to issue a notice to the minor. If the minor has no objection, the discharge may be given. If, however, he has any objections the Court may look into them in a summary manner, and if it is satisfied prima facie that there is some force in the objections it will refuse to declare the guardian discharged from his liabilities under S 41 (4), and direct the minor to obtain redress by means of a suit and the discharge will be given on the basis of the decision of the regular suit. 161 IC 493=1936 A.L.J. 36=1936 A 179. Where a guardian of property has been appointed on the minor coming of age, the proper course for a Court is either to refuse a discharge if it appeared that there was sufficient reason to keep open the question of the guardian's liability or to exercise its power under S 41 (4) and discharge him if it considered that he has acted properly throughout and that no reasonable claim could be brought against him. I.L.R. (1938) Mad 667=1938 Mad 347=(1938) 1 M.L.J. 285 (F.B.). An order discharging a guardian under S 41 (4) must be regarded as discharging him from all his liabilities as guardian except in respect of any frauds committed by him which may subsequently be discovered 'Liability' referred to in the clause is not confined to liabilities to which the guardian is made subject by the Act but includes all the liabilities of the guardian under the general law to render an account of his management to the minor. When the guardian has rendered accounts and has been discharged by the Court under S 41 (4), it is not open to the minor after becoming a major to sue the guardian praying that an account should be taken of the management. The suit, to be maintainable, should be framed as one for falsifying or surcharging the account already rendered by the guardian and not merely for taking an account. 44 L.W. 441=1936 M 868=71 M.L.J. 658. When an application is made by the mother of a minor under S 39 for removal of a guardian appointed under the Act and for appointing herself as guardian of the property of the minor, and the Court orders the guardian to be discharged on the ground that he had furnished proper accounts which were checked and found correct by the Court the discharge must be deemed to have been granted under S 41 (4) of the Act. 44 L.W. 441=1936 M 868=71 M.L.J. 658. TERMINATION OF GUARDIANSHIP—SUBSEQUENT ORDER FOR RESTORATION OF PROPERTY—POWER OF COURT—An order for delivery of specific properties, to wit Government Promissory Notes can be made against the guardian on an application made even after the termination of the guardianship by reason of the ward having attained majority. (5 C.W.N. 207, Dist.) 152 I.C. 1073=38 C.W.N. 438=1934 C 520.

PROPERTY OF WARD NOT TAKEN POSSESSION OF BY THE GUARDIAN—ORDER FOR RESTORATION—Though it may be the duty of the guardian as soon as he was appointed as such to take possession of the ornaments of the ward from whomsoever they were with, and his failure to do so is a great dereliction of duty, where, however, it is proved he had never obtained possession of those ornaments no order can be made under S 41 directing him to restore such property. 152 I.C. 1073=38 C.W.N. 438=1934 C 520.

INTEREST, RATE OF ON RESTORATION—Where the guardian is ordered to restore certain Government Promissory Notes belonging to the ward he can only be charged with interest at 3½ per cent, the interest which the ward would have got if those notes had been duly handed over to her. 152 I.C. 1073=38 C.W.N. 438=1934 C 520.

SECS 41 AND 43 GUARDIAN REQUIRED TO CONTINUE PERIODICAL PAYMENTS—APPEALABILITY OF ORDER—Where a guardian has been required to continue the fixed periodical payments which the Court required him to make as a condition of being appointed guardian and it is because he is unwilling to comply with this condition that he refuses to act as guardian the requisition is not an order under S 41, but one under S 43 and as such is appealable. 1935 L 931.

SECS 41 (3) AND 45—The power of a Court under S 41 (3) to direct a guardian on termination of his guardianship to deliver any property belonging to the ward extends to monies belonging to the minor. S 45 is not inapplicable to a guardian after his removal. In view of the above it cannot be contended that the accounts filed by a guardian prior to his removal should be deemed to have been passed by the Court. 19 Pat.L.T. 485=1938 P.W.N. 509=1938 Pat. 398.

SEC 42 SCOPE—This section comes into operation only where a guardian is properly removed. 27 I.C. 28=20 C.L.J. 298. Object of the section. See 4 I.C. 603. Court has power to appoint a person who has not made an application himself and whose name is not mentioned in an application under this section as guardian. (Ibid.) An order appointing a guardian under S 42 is appealable under S 47. 93 I.C. 776=7 S.L.R. 90. Where a guardian of the person and property of a minor has been appointed the minor should be treated as a minor or infant and would not be able to enter into a contract or to transact any kind of business himself until the age of 21 and when a guardian so appointed has resigned another guardian should be appointed to the person and property of the minor even though he has exceeded the age of 18 years. 162 I.C. 716=1936 L 142.

another person 18 IC 922=24 MLJ 231
The exercise of powers by District Judges over the guardians appointed by them, should be kept within limits provided by law, and should not be wholly arbitrary, made before necessary enquiries are held in the manner provided by law. Orders which are arbitrary are liable to be set aside 64 CLJ 556=1937 C 424 S 43
(4) limits the exercise of the powers to punish a disobedience of orders passed under cls (1) and (2) 103 IC 493. In the case of a minor for whom a personal guardian has been appointed and who undertook not to marry the minor without the Court's permission, the marriage or connivance at marriage with the ward of the Court without the consent of the Court is contempt of Court liable to be severely punished. These powers of the District Judge are however limited to the actual guardian in respect of whom the order is made and cannot be exercised as against persons indirectly committing the breach by assisting the guardian in the act (42 C 351, Kel on) 31 Bom LR 1120=122 IC 140=1929 B 417. 'Regulating the conduct or proceedings of a guardian cannot be interpreted as an order holding that prior to the date of such order guardian had caused loss to the estate which he should make good (1926 M 478, Not appr) 121 IC 168=1930 S 43. S 43 enables a Court to regulate by its order the conduct of persons either appointed or declared by the Court. A person who is appointed executor under a will and who disclaims that he is a guardian of the minor sons of the testator cannot be declared to be a guardian against his will by reason of S 17 (5) of the Act. S 43 is therefore inapplicable to him, and does not justify the Court to impose conditions on him in regard to his discharge of duties as guardian. Osmer—Under S 39 which is wider in its scope than S 43, the Court may remove a guardian appointed or declared by the Court or a guardian appointed by a will 44 LW 513=1936 M 843=71 MLJ 417. One of the duties of a guardian of a minor girl is to provide a suitable bridegroom. Whatever he does in relation to that is either conduct or proceedings within the meaning of S 43. Where a Court authorises the guardian to celebrate the marriage of the girl, his act is a regulation of conduct or proceeding on the part of the guardian. The appellate Court has therefore the right to hear appeal from such an order under the provisions of S 47 (1) read with S 43. 1930 A LJ 152=121 IC 690=1930 A 66. It is not the function of the District Judge to act as a match maker for the female ward, much less on the application of the guardian of the property of the ward to select a particular bridegroom and force him upon the minor against the wishes of the minor and her step-mother who is appointed guardian of the person of the minor. The natural guardian or the guardian appointed by Court for the person of the minor should apply to the Court for sanction in granting which the wishes of the minor where the minor is old enough to form an intelligent preference, cannot be ignored 56 B 71=130 IC 732 (2)=34 Bom LR 83=1932 B 156. Legislature has neither expressly nor impliedly given power to the Court to record a definite finding as to the exact amount due by the guardian as a result of an enquiry binding upon the guardian and to compel its payment, and if there is a definite finding by a Court as to the amount which the ex guardian had to pay as the result of the enquiry, to that extent the finding is not warranted by the provisions of the Act and is without jurisdiction 121 IC 168=1930 S 43. S 43 read with S 34 impliedly provide for expenditure in connection with the auditing of the accounts relating to the property of the ward 11 PLT 349=1930 P 384 (2). APPLICATION FOR INVESTMENT OF MINOR'S MONEY—APPEAL.—An application under S 43 (1) of the Act can be made only by a person interested in the minor. Where a stranger filed an application under S 43 of the Act praying that a loan might be ordered to be given out of the minor's funds on a first mortgage of immovable properties and notices were issued to the personal guardian, the outstandings guardian, and the immovable properties guardian of the minor and though the several guardians opposed the petition the Court ordered the grant of the loan, Held, that the order was one regulating the conduct or proceedings of the guardian appointed by the Court, as contemplated in S 4, against which an appeal would lie to the High Court under S 47 (1) of the Act. Held, further that the petitioner was not a person interested

44 If, for the purpose or with the effect of preventing the Court from exercising its authority with respect to a ward, a guardian appointed or declared by the Court removes the ward from the limits of the jurisdiction of the Court in contravention of the provisions of S 26, he shall be liable, by order of the Court, to fine not exceeding one thousand rupees, or to imprisonment in the civil jail for a term which may extend to six months

THE HINDU DISPOSITION OF PROPERTY ACT (XV OF 1916).

PREFATORY NOTE.—Statement of Objects and Reasons.—The object of the present Bill is to enable Hindus and Mussalmans to dispose of property by transfer inter vivos and by will for the benefit of unborn persons within certain limits. According to the Hindu law as now administered in British India, a gift in favour of a person not in existence at the date of the gift is void, and so also a bequest in favour of a person not in existence at the time of the testator's death. The same is the rule of Mahomedan Law, except that under the provisions of the Mussalmans Wakf Validating Act, 1913, it is competent to a Mahomedan to settle property for the benefit of unborn persons even in perpetuity, provided the ultimate disposition is for the benefit of charity.

2 Every lawyer familiar with the Indian Courts must have come across a large number of settlements and wills made by Hindus and Mahomedans for the benefit of their children and grandchildren. The paramount object of the settler in all these cases has been to provide not only for his children and grandchildren then in existence, but also for those to be born hereafter. Instead, however, of giving effect to the settler's intention, the law as now administered completely defeats it. Even where a donor has only one child in existence at the date of the gift, and the gift is made in express terms for the benefit of all his children including those to be born hereafter, the law excludes from the benefit of all gift all children born subsequently to the date of the gift, to the entire subversion of the donor's intention. Similarly, the intention of testators to benefit by their wills their children and grandchildren not in existence at the death of the testators is also defeated. It is to remedy these evils, and to give effect to the settler's or testator's intention, that the present Bill is proposed. The sole object of the Bill is to enable the Court to carry out the settler's or testator's intention, which, under the present state of the law, they are precluded from doing. At the same time, it is recognised that this can only be done within the limits allowed by the rule against perpetuity, and these limits are prescribed in clauses 4 and 5. The effect of the Bill, if passed into law, will be to enable Hindus and Mahomedans to make dispositions of their property to the same extent, and subject to the same limitations as other communities in British India.

Notes on Clauses. Clause (4).—This clause is a reproduction of section 100 of Act X of 1865 and section 13 of Act IV of 1882.

Clause (5).—This clause is a reproduction of section 101 of Act X of 1865, and section 14 of Act IV of 1882. It refers to the rule against perpetuity.

Clause (6).—The effect of this clause is to supersede the decision in L R 11 A 164, and other cases following it.

Clause (7).—This clause is a reproduction of section 103 of Act X of 1865 and section 15 of Act IV of 1882. It is also in conformity with the rule of construction laid down by the Privy Council in the Tagore Case.

Clause (8).—The enactments referred to in this clause are the Hindu Wills Act, 1870, the Transfer of Property Act, 1882, and the Indian Trusts Act, 1882.

Select Committee's Report.—The following report of the Select Committee on the Bill to enable Hindus and Mussalmans to make disposition of property by transfer inter vivos or by will for the benefit of unborn persons was presented to the Indian Legislative Council on the 19th September, 1916.—

1 We, the undersigned Members of the Select Committee to which the Bill to enable Hindus and Mussalmans to make dispositions of property by transfer inter vivos or by will for the benefit of unborn persons was referred have considered the Bill and have now the honour to submit this our Report, with the Bill as recast by us annexed thereto.

2 In obedience to the instructions contained in the order of reference, we have so amended the Bill as to confine its operation to Hindus save that, in the exercise of the discretion vested in us, we have inserted an enabling clause permitting the Governor General in Council to extend its provisions to the Khoja community in the whole or any part of India where he is satisfied that the community in question desires the extension. Having regard to the existence of the Hindu Transfers and Bequests Act 1914 (Madras Act 1 of 1914), we have limited the extent clause of the Bill so as to exclude the Province of Madras from its operation but we have inserted a power allowing the Governor General in Council to extend the Act to that province should this course at any time be considered necessary or desirable.

3 The most important clause in the Bill was clause (3) and this clause now clause (2), we have recast so as to provide that no disposition of property by a Hindu, whether by a transfer inter vivos or by will shall be invalid by reason only that any person for whose benefit it may have been made was not in existence at the date of such disposition. We consider that the clause as drawn in this form avoids many of the difficulties which would arise if we had retained the positive form in which it appeared in the Bill as referred to us.

4 Clauses (4) and (5) of the Bill, as referred to us, endeavour to combine the provisions of the relevant sections of the Indian Succession Act, 1865 and the Transfer of Property Act, 1882. The language of the two Acts differs in slight respects, and we think it in every way desirable not to attempt to combine their provisions in a composite clause, and we have preferred in section 3 of the Bill as revised by us to incorporate the sections of the Acts in question by reference. We are well aware that referential legislation of this kind is open to objection but in the circumstances we feel that the practical advantages of reference to a well known Code, and the incorporation of all the decisions under these provisions outweigh any such objection. In this connection we have thought it well to include the provisions of section 20 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882 as the wording of the Transfer of Property Act differing in that respect from the Indian Succession Act, does not without this section make it clear that the property is vested.

5 The only other change of substance is the omission of clause (6) of the Bill as referred to us. A perusal of the opinions recorded on the Bill leads us to the conclusion that there is no clear manifestation of opinion in favour of the retention of the English rule laid down by the clause in question and we think in the absence of any consensus of opinion in favour of the rule, that the clause should be omitted. The remaining alterations are mere alterations of form consequent upon the manner in which the Bill has been recast.

THE HINDU LAW OF INHERITANCE (AMENDMENT) ACT (II OF 1929)

PREFATORY NOTE.—The following extracts from the Statement of Objects and Reasons would show the necessity for the passing of this Act —

1 This Bill is a revival of a similar Bill introduced by the late Mr T V Seshagiri Aiyar and passed by the first Assembly on the 27th March, 1923. Its consideration in another place was moved on the 19th July, 1923, but postponed to the next session, when no further action being taken, the Bill was suffered to lapse

2 The Bill is intended to remove a sex disqualification which under the archaic rules of Hindu Law excludes one's nearest female relations, e.g., the sister the son's daughter and the daughter's daughter from inheritance altogether, while it gives the sister's son a very low place among bandhus, who can only take in the absence of gotraja sapindas and samanodaks, that is to say, the owner's agnatic relations even up to the 14th and later degrees, which gives him a very poor chance of succession in many cases. This condition is somewhat ameliorated in the case of persons subject to the Mayukha law where usage has given female heirs a somewhat better position, though, in the case of persons subject to the Dayabhaga School of law, certain bandhus are not considered inferior to the gotrajas: still even under that system the sister is not an heir, though the sister's son is expressly mentioned in the Dayabhaga as the heir, while the son's daughter and the daughter's daughter have no place at all. In fairness to Bengal the Bill should have been extended even to that Province but an objection was taken in the first Assembly to its extension to that Province and its provision was, therefore, restricted to the two Provinces of the Mitalshara country

3 The Bill is intended to include the son's daughter, daughter's daughter, and the sister amongst heritable bandhus which they are not under the Hindu Law, and improves the position of the sister's son by placing him immediately after the grandfather but before the granduncle

4 This does not exhaust a very large number of female relations, e.g., the son's son's daughter, the brother's daughter, the sister's daughter, who still remain outside the pale of heritable

bandhus But the Bill being merely a revival of the Bill already passed by the Assembly, it is not proposed to enlarge upon its provisions for the present though the whole law of Hindu inheritance is unsatisfactory and does not follow the line of affinity and affection placing as it does agnatic kinsmen, however remote above all cognatic relations however near

5 The Bill will not make any serious irroad upon the law as understood in the Province subject to Mayukha nor will it seriously affect the law as understood in the Province of Madras where female bandhus are allowed to rank but only after all the male bandhus are exhausted

6 The previous Bill passed by this Assembly was limited only to the two provinces of Madras and United Provinces but the reason for this limitation is not understood nor was it clear to the Council of State who gave it as one of their reasons for postponing its consideration The Act is thus intended to rectify a glaring injustice to one's nearest relations in matters of inheritance — (Fort St George Gazette, Part III 10th April 1928 p 187)

1935 L. 83 Act II of 1929 applies to the case of a person who dies before it came into force, if his widow, who inherits his estate is alive at the time of its enforcement (1932 I 361 and 1934 P 324 Foll.) 17 L 356-1936 L 124 Act does apply to cases in which a male governed by the law of Mitakshara has died before the date on which the Act came into force leaving a widow who was alive on such date (1936 I 124, Foll.) 163 I C 480 (1)=1936 L 139 See also 1937 L 196 Where a widow is in possession of her husband's estate as a limited owner, the question whether certain persons are heirs under Act II of 1929 depends on the date of the death of the widow and not on the date of the death of the last male holder. In such cases the question is not whether Act II of 1929 is retrospective 150 I C 1039-15 P L T 707=1934 P 324 But see also 1933 M W N 1404 On the language of the Hindu Law of Inheritance (Amendment) Act as it stands no question of its retrospective operation arises. The mere fact that the change of law introduced by the Act affects also the estates of persons who have died intestate before the Act does not, by itself, make the Act retrospective in its operation. The critical date being the date when the succession opens, the Act would be retrospective only if it was applied to cases where the succession opened before the Act. That the Act may in certain cases apply to the estates of persons who died before the passing of the Act cannot prejudicially affect any rights which the reversioner possesses only in a representative capacity. It cannot therefore be said that the Act is retrospective 16 P 215=1937 P 117 (FB) The effect of the Hindu Law of Inheritance (Amendment) Act of 1929 is simply to substitute a revised list of reversionary heirs to a Hindu male with certain additions and alterations in place of the list which was in force under the law as it stood before the Act. The Act, however, makes no reference to the date of death of the Hindu male and there is no reason why the operation of the Act should depend upon that date. The only date which is material is the date when the succession opens or when the question of succession to the estate arises. If such a question arose before the Act came into force, the succession would be governed by the Hindu Law as it stood then, but if the question were to arise after the Act, the Act would apply. The only criterion to be applied in determining whether the Act is applicable to a particular case is to enquire when the succession opened and whether the conditions laid down in the Act for its application have been fulfilled. The question of the applicability of the Act will arise only when the succession opens and not before it 16 P 215-18 Pat I T 8=1937 P 117 (FB) The Act was designed not only to give a sister a higher position in the order of succession than she previously held in provinces where she was already an heir but also to constitute her an heir even in provinces where she was not previously an heir according to the prevailing view of Hindu law 10 O W N 424=1933 O 231, 168 I C 743 1937 Oudh 402=1937 O W N 672 See also 57 B 377=35 Bom L R 497=1933 B 272 146 I C 511-1933 L 777 Right to challenge alienation by widow already barred by time—Persons becoming reversioners by reason of this Act—Right of suit See 19 Pat L T 145=1918 P 510

Whether or not the custom referred to in S 3 (a) must be one in derogation of the law of the school governing the parties, it is clear that judicial decisions based either on inferences drawn from the texts or on the principle of stare decisis cannot constitute a custom within the meaning of the Act. PREFATORY NOTE—"Our Legislature has on principle been slow to interfere with the marriage laws of India, and in the legalizing of widow marriage, its interference was not gratuitous, but was sought by the Hindus themselves. Pandit Iswar Chandra Vidyasagar pointed out in his celebrated tract that the re-marriage of widows was not unauthorised by the Sastras, and his opinion was accepted by a considerable body of his educated countrymen, and it was to meet their wishes that the Legislature felt induced to pass Act XV of 1856. This we learn from the preamble to this Act" (See Gooroodas Banerjee's Marriage and Stridhanam, Tagore Law Lectures for 1878, 2nd Ed, 1896, p 256)

The following remarks on the provisions of the Act by Justice Gooroodas Banerjee may well be noted —

The Act does not give any rules for determining the eligibility of parties for marriage. It is clearly its intention that this matter should be governed by the ordinary rules of Hindu Law. But these rules are not sufficient to meet every point which might arise in connection with the re-marriage of widows. Thus, one of these rules of selection requires that the parties to marriage should be of different gotras, but what is to be regarded as the gotra of a widow—the gotra of her father, in which she was born or that of her deceased husband to which she has been transferred by marriage? Vidyasagara maintains that her father's gotra is to be deemed the gotra of a widow for the purposes of her re-marriage, and considering that her father or some other paternal relation is still her guardian in marriage, I think that view is in accordance with the intention of the Act. Again the ordinary rules about prohibited degrees do not prohibit the marriage of a man with the mother of his wife, however repugnant to our feelings it may be. No express rule for the prohibition of such marriage is, however, necessary in the Hindu Law, as it prohibits widow marriage altogether. But now that widow marriage has been legalized, the want of such prohibition may be deemed a defect in the law in theory, though, in practice, the universal feeling of repugnance to such improper unions would be sufficient to supply the place of prohibitory rules (Ibid pp 259-263)

It is the general rule of the Hindu Law, as stated by the Privy Council in Monram Kolita v Keri Kolita, 5 C 776 (788) "that an estate once vested by succession or inheritance is not divested by any act or incapacity which, before succession, would have formed a ground for exclusion from inheritance" and it was held not to have been established that the estate of a widow formed an exception to the rule. But it is equally clear that there were grounds, which, under the Hindu Law, caused a forfeiture of a vested estate. Change of religion did so before Act XXI of 1850 and the Regulations that preceded it. Degradation from caste had the same effect as was pointed out by the Privy Council in the case above referred to at page 792. It is an important question whether a second marriage is a circumstance, like those just mentioned, which determines a widow's estate.

We cannot expect to find express texts on this point in the usual authorities on Hindu Law, because second marriage was a thing they did not contemplate, we cannot expect more than an indication of the view they took of the nature of a widow's estate.

The view is clearly expressed in the text of Vrhaspathi which Jmutavahana makes the basis of his reasoning on this subject of a widow's estate (Dayabhaga XI, 1) "of him whose wife is not deceased half the body survives. How then should another take his property while half his person is alive?" This is difficult to reconcile with a right in a widow who ceases to be the wife or half of the body of her late husband, and becomes the wife and half of the body of another man, to keep the estate of her late husband. The view that on principle a second marriage determined a widow's estate is strengthened by the fact that where second marriages were sanctioned by custom, the further rule seems almost always to have followed that such re-marriage entailed a forfeiture of the first husband's estate. (See the cases cited in Mayne's Hindu Law, section 512, and in West and Bühler, Bk I, ch 3, S 77 a, 3rd ed, p 429), and again the adoption of the rule of forfeiture on second marriage in the Hindu Widows Re-marriage Act (XV of 1856) seems to be an indication that the Legislature considered that rule to be in accordance with the principles of Hindu Law. If, therefore, we had to decide this point upon the principles of Hindu Law, and without reference to express legislative enactments, we should be disposed to hold that the widow's estate was determined by her marrying a second time and we do not think this would be in any way inconsistent with what was held in Monram Kolita v Keri Kolita, 5 C. 776, namely, that a widow's estate is not forfeited by unchastity during widowhood, for there seems to be a very broad distinction between misconduct on the part of a widow, as a widow and her ceasing to be a widow.—19 C 289 (292 at (per Wilson, J))

An Act to remove all legal obstacles to the marriage of Hindu widows

WHEREAS it is known that, by the law as administered in the Civil Courts established in the territories in the possession and under the Government of the East India Company, Hindu widows with certain exceptions are held to be, by reason of their having been once married incapable of contracting a second valid marriage and the offspring of such widows by any second marriage are held to be illegitimate and incapable of inheriting property, and

Whereas many Hindus believe that this imputed legal incapacity, although it is in accordance with established custom, is not in accordance with a true interpretation of the precepts of their religion, and desire that the civil law administered by the Courts of Justice shall no longer prevent those Hindus who may be so minded from adopting a different custom, in accordance with the dictates of their own conscience, and

Whereas it is just to relieve all such Hindus from this legal incapacity of which they complain and the removal of all legal obstacles to the marriage of Hindu widows will tend to the promotion of good morals and to the public welfare, It is enacted as follows—

- 1 No marriage contracted between Hindus shall be invalid, and the issue of no such marriage shall be illegitimate, by reason of the woman having been previously married or betrothed to another person who was dead at the time of such marriage any custom and any interpretation of Hindu law to the contrary notwithstanding father the natural and legal guardian of her children and she does not lose her right by re marriage in cases when such re marriage is recognised as valid by custom. To such cases S 3 was obviously not intended to apply. And even under the Act the mother is not considered to be physically dead and may in appropriate cases be appointed as guardian though not in her own natural right but where it is for the welfare of the minor to do so (1 L 146 and 38 C 862, Ref) 1933 L 817. On this section see also 15 C W N 579 11 WR 82 24 B 89 33 B 107

Sec 5 —[See also notes under secs 1, 2 and 3 supra] The object of the Act is to remove all legal obstacles to Hindu widow re marriages. S 5 was never intended to lay down any proposition regarding the inheritance by a Hindu widow 45 B 1247=63 IC 947. A re married Hindu widow is not entitled to inherit as a gotraja sapinda to the relations of her first husband 45 B 1247

Sec 6 —The purpose of the Hindu Widows Re marriage Act is not to limit but rather to increase the rights of Hindu widows and not to restrict any existing custom of re-marriage among Hindu widows but to give the right to those to whom it had hitherto been denied. S 6 of the Act does not apply to a case where the re-marriage is among people among whom widow re marriage is recognized by custom. Where, therefore the re-marriage is among sweepers among whom widow re marriage is generally recognized it is not rendered invalid merely because the ceremonies necessary for the first marriage as required by S 6 have not been gone through. It is sufficient if the conditions essential by custom to validate the re-marriage have been fulfilled and the widow becomes a married wife of the person to whom she is married within the meaning of Ss 497 and 498 Penal Code 30 S L R 421=167 IC 366 1937 S 42. To prove the re marriage of Hindu widow the same religious rites and ceremonies that are necessary to constitute her first marriage valid should be shown to have been observed in her re marriage. Where therefore a Hindu widow had been validly married in the Brahma form but the observance of the afore said rites and ceremonies was not established as regards the re-marriage. Held that the validity of the re marriage was not established 7 O W N 753-1930 O 426

Secs 6 and 7 —There can be no valid marriage in any form without a substantial performance of the requisite religious ceremonies. The performance therefore of the necessary religious rites is necessary for the completion of a marriage even in a gandharva form of which re marriage of a widow is an instance. So neither the consent of a widow to re marry herself under last paragraph of S 7 nor mere talk by a person in the presence of visitors of his intention to take her as his wife is sufficient to constitute a valid marriage in the absence of the performance of some religious or secular rites (12 Mad 72, Rel on) 174 IC 342=1938 Rang 59

Sec 7 —The marriage of a minor widow is not valid unless consented to by the persons enumerated in S 7. But if the first marriage has been consummated the consent of the minor widow herself is enough 9 P L R 1912=12 IC 673. See also 8 A. 143. Power of mother in

Sec 1 VALIDITY OF ACT—PROPERTY — MEANING OF—ACT IF AFFECTS SUCCESSION TO AGRICULTURAL LAND—No objection can be taken to the validity of the Hindu Women's Right to Property Act 1937, on the ground only that it was introduced into the Legislature and passed by the Legislative Assembly before Part III of the Constitution Act came into force, as the Indian Legislature which was in existence immediately before the coming into force of Part III was continued in existence after that date, and was in all respects the same legislature, though its legislative powers were no longer as extensive as they had previously been. Nor can any objection be taken to the validity of the said Act on the ground that the powers of the Legislature changed during the passage of the Bill from the Legislative Assembly to the Council of State. The form content or subject matter of a Bill at the time of its introduction into, or of its consideration by either Chamber of the Legislature is a matter with which a Court of law is not concerned. The question whether either Chamber has the right to discuss a Bill laid before it is a domestic matter regulated by the rules of the Chamber, as interpreted by its Speaker, and is not a matter with which a Court can interfere, or indeed on which it is entitled to express any opinion. The only function of a Court is to pronounce upon the Bill after it has become an Act. Consequently the only date with which the Court is concerned is the date on which the Governor-General's assent was given, and the question whether the Act was or was not within the competence of the Legislature must be determined with reference to that date and to none other. 45 CWN (FR) 81=1941 FC 72= (1941) 2 MLJ 12 See also 1937 AWR. (HC) 655 195 IC 636=1941 Sind 114. The Hindu Women's Right to Property Act 1937, and the Hindu Women's Rights to Property (Amendment) Act, 1938, do not operate to regulate succession to agricultural land in the Governor's Provinces, but do operate to regulate devolution by survivorship of property other than agricultural land. When a Legislature with limited and restricted powers makes use of a word of such wide and general import as 'property' the presumption must be that it is using it with reference to that kind of property with respect to which it is competent to legislate and to no other. In the Hindu Women's Rights to Property Act 1937, the word property must accordingly be construed as referring to property other than agricultural land. Though S 3 of the Act of 1937 does not use the word 'survivorship', and it may be that the widow taking a share under the Act does not become a coparcener with the other sharers yet there can be no doubt that in the cases in which it gives to the widow of a deceased coparcener a right to a share in the joint property which she did not possess under the pre-existing law, it takes

Provided that the widow of a predeceased son shall inherit in like manner as a son if there is no son surviving of such predeceased son, and shall inherit in like manner as a son's son if there is surviving a son or son's son of such predeceased son

Provided further that the same provision shall apply mutatis mutandis to the widow of a predeceased son of a predeceased son away to that extent, the benefit of the rule of survivorship which would have accrued to the remaining coparceners. So far as its effect goes the Act does legislate with respect to the law of survivorship. But it is not ultra vires the Indian Legislature on that ground as the subject of devolution by survivorship of property other than agricultural land is included in entry No. 7 of List III of the concurrent list. 45 CWN (F.R.) 81=73 CLJ 415=54 LW 22 1941 FC 72=(1941) 2 MLJ 12. The Hindu Women's Rights to Property Act does not operate to regulate succession to agricultural land in the Governor's provinces. Hence the widow of a predeceased son has no title except to maintenance according to ordinary Hindu Law. 1941 OA (Supp.) 715 (2)=1941 AWR (Rev.) 804 (2)=1941 RD 742

Sec 3 (2) and (3) INTEREST TAKEN BY WIDOW IN JOINT FAMILY PROPERTY—EXTENT OF—LIABILITY FOR DEBTS—Under S 3 (2) of the Act a widow gets the same interest which her husband had in the joint family property, that is the interest of an undivided member of a joint family in the joint family property. The widow takes that interest subject to the rights and obligations attached to that interest and subject to the restrictions placed on her powers by Cl (3) of S 3. As the husband's interest could be seized in execution by a creditor for his debt in his lifetime the creditor of the husband is entitled to the same remedy against the interest of the widow accrued under the Act in respect of non agricultural land the property taken by the widow being liable for the debts of her husband. 54 LW 651=(1941) 2 MLJ 862. As the Hindu Women's Rights to Property Act as amended by Act II of 1938 is ultra vires of the Indian Legislature and does not operate to regulate succession to agricultural land in the Governor's provinces but operates only to regulate devolution by survivorship of property other than agricultural land where the property left by the deceased is both agricultural and non agricultural the widow would have no right under the Act to succeed her husband even to a limited interest so far as the agricultural property is concerned. 1942 O 216 Sub-Secs (2) and (3) of S 3 of the Act do not contemplate that the sons of a deceased Hindu are to be excluded by the widow upon the death of their father. The right conferred upon the Hindu widow by sub S (3) is merely a limited right such as a Hindu widow possesses under the ordinary Hindu Law with an additional privilege conferred by the section that she could independently claim partition as a male owner which was denied to her under the Hindu Law. The rights of survivorship in a joint Hindu family possessed by the sons are not taken away by sub-secs (2) and (3) of sec. 3 of the Act. 1942 O 216=198 IC 443

1841	XXIV	The Illusory Appointments and Infants' Property Act, 1841.	Repealed in part, XXVII of 1866, VIII of 1868, XVI of 1874, Act XII of 1891

PREFATORY NOTE—ENGLISH LAW AS TO ILLUSORY APPOINTMENTS—The first statutory alteration of the law relating to Illusory Appointments was made in 1830 by the Act 11, Geo IV, and 1 William IV, C 43. It is entitled "An act to amend the law relating to Illusory Appointments." It enacted that no appointment which from and after the passing of the Act should be made in exercise of a power should be impeached in equity or at law as illusory by reason of giving only an unsubstantial or nominal share to any object of the power. It provided, however, that nothing in the Act should prejudice or affect any provisions in any deed, will or other instrument creating the power which declared the amount of the share from which no object of the power should be excluded, nor, on the other hand, should anything in the Act contained be deemed to give any other validity, force, or effect to any appointment than such appointment would have had if a substantial share of the property affected by the power had been thereby appointed to, or left unappointed to devolve upon any object of the power. The enactments are retrospective and apply to powers in esse at the time of, but executed after, the passing of the Act [Reid v. Reid, (1858) 23 Beav 469=53 E.R. 716].

According to the old law, where a power of appointment was given to A to appoint among a class in such shares as A should direct, the presumed intention of the donor of the power was to give an actual and substantial share to each of the objects of the power. A, the appointer, could not in exercising the power, exclude any one of the class, as this would be an exclusive appointment and bad [see Bulleit v. Plummer, (1870), L.R. 6 Ch 160]. The whole theory is tersely stated by Jessel, M.R., in his judgment in Gainsford v. Dunn, (1874) L.R. 17 Eq 405. Speaking of this interpretation of the intention, he says "That was not according to the literal wording of the power, but it made sense of it, because if the appointment of a farthing would do, then on the principle of de minimis non curat lex, it would make every non exclusive power an exclusive power. However, that doctrine was found inconvenient. "The inconvenience arose from the obvious reason that it was impossible to determine without litigation what precise amount was or was not a substantial sum in accordance with the presumed intention of the donor of the power. The Act therefore put the question aside by making any share, though purely nominal, sufficient to make the exercise of the power non exclusive. The process of reasoning that inspired this statutory change seems to have been that the practical exclusion of an object could not like the total exclusion, owe its origin to an oversight or omission on the part of the appointer, and therefore it was not a proper case for any interference by a Court of Equity. "One would have imagined," says Jessel, M.R., in the case quoted, "that the reasonable mode of altering the law would have been to make every power of appointment exclusive, unless the author of the settlement had pointed out the minimum share which every object was to get," instead of allowing an appointment to be impeached because the appointer omitted to appoint the necessary farthing. In the same year, 1874 the Statute 37 and 38 Vict c 37 rectified the anomaly by enacting that no appointment which, from and after the passing of the Act, shall be made in exercise of a power of appointment, shall be invalid at law or equity on the ground that any object of such power has been altogether excluded, but every such appointment shall be valid and effectual, notwithstanding that any one or more of the objects shall not thereby, or in default of appointment take a share or shares of the property subject to the power. But the provisions of the Act are not to prejudice or affect any declaration in a deed, will or other instrument fixing the amount or the share or shares from which no object of the power shall be excluded, or some one or more object of it shall not be excluded. *[NB—The amendments made by Act III of 1934 shall come into force on such date as the Governor-General in Council may, by notification in the Gazette of India appoint See S 1 of Act III of 1934]

PREFATORY NOTE—The following are extracts from the Statement of Objects and Reasons—

“For constituting and regulating the Government Banks, i.e., those banks which had dealings with the Government of the country, statutory and had been invoked as it instanced by Statute 47, George III, S 2, Chap 68 in the days of the East India Company

Prior to 1862, Acts VI of 1839, III of 1840, IX of 1843, XXI of 1854 and Act XXVII of 1855—Acts of the Governor General as well as of the Governors-in-Council of Madras and Bombay—constituted and regulated the Banks of Bengal, the Bank of Bombay and the Bank of Madras. In the eight years up to 1870, the Governor General in Council passed five Acts to the same end. The Governor of Bombay in Council passed three Acts in the same period, and to the Governor of Fort St George in Council, Acts VI of 1866 and I of 1871 owe their promulgation. The Presidency Banks Act, 1876, consolidated the scattered legislation amplifying and modernising it in accordance with the company law then prevailing. The Act was amended by Acts V of 1879, XX of 1899, I of 1907 and by Act VIII of 1916

To foster and promote the growth of improved banking facilities in the country, and to render the money resources of India more accessible to the trade and industry, the fusion of the above-named Presidency Banks into a single strong unified Bank in close relation with Government, had long been considered necessary by the thoughtful public and the Government. After mature deliberation, Act XLVII of 1920, was passed creating a great national institution—The Imperial Bank of India—having ample resources for the assistance of trade, constituting itself an example of sound banking to other banks, an institution which will assist not only the State, but the public, and all sections of the public. The proposal, the terms of consolidation and the advantages to accrue were approved by the shareholders and proprietors of the three Presidency Banks, by the Government of India and by the Secretary of State

The Act came into effect on the 27th January 1921 'the day appointed' [vide S. 1, Cl. (2)] by the Governor General in Council and the Bank of Bengal, the Bank of Bombay and the Bank of Madras as constituted by Act XI of 1876 stood dissolved on that date.

The Act provides for a large initial increase of the capital of the Bank when compared with the total capital of the three defunct banks. The bank is empowered to transact the same class of business with considerable extensions to the same but it is restricted in its activities in London. It is not permitted to do exchange business but can only keep accounts and deposits for its Indian customers. The Bank can enter into an agreement with the Secretary of State in Council but the instructions of the Governor General in Council (vide S. 10) are to be carried in matters vitally affecting his financial policy. In addition to the branches at present existing sixty three in number, one hundred branches are to be opened before the 26th January, 1926.

The general control of the Bank vests in a Central Board constituted by the Board of Governors. This Board includes besides the chief officials of the Bank, the Controller of Currency who represents Government interests on the Board and Non official Governors—not to exceed four in number—nominated by the Governor General in Council. And the object of this provision is to give representation to the general tax payer in view of the use of the Government balances which the Bank will obtain on the conclusion of the abovementioned agreement with the Secretary of State in Council.

The provisions regulating this statutory corporation have been recast and revised in the light of the further development of company law.

Short title, extent and commencement

1 (1) This Act may be called THE INDIAN INCOME TAX ACT, 1922

LEG REF

This Act has been declared in force in the district of Khondmals by S 3 and Sch of the Khondmals Laws Regulation, 1936 (IV of 1936) and in the district of Angul by S 3 and Sch of the Angul Laws Regulation, 1936 (V of 1936)

The Act has been applied with certain exceptions to persons in the Chittagong Hill tracts, by S 2 of the Chittagong Hill tracts Laws Regulation, 1937 (Ben Reg II of 1937)

NOTES

Sec 1 SCOPE OF THE ACT—(Per Mukerjee) 52 C 1=28 CWN 1074=1925 C 34 (22 C 788, 23 C 563, Ref) See also 18 SLR 68=1925 S 130

CHARACTERISTIC OF INCOME TAX—INCOME-TAX AND POOR RATE—DIFFERENCE BETWEEN—The purpose of the Income tax Act is to tax a person's total income from all sources, the method of assessing income derived by ownership or occupation of hereditaments is somewhat arbitrarily based on annual value and not on actual income, but that does not alter the essential characteristic of income tax that it is a tax on income generally. On the other hand, the poor rate is levied in respect of the occupation of hereditaments, irrespective of a person's income generally, and irrespective of whether the rate payer is in fact deriving profits or gains from such occupation. A dwelling house is a burden, not a source of profit, for the occupier, who pays rent for it. He is rated on the value of the burden, while he remains unrated in respect of his whole profits, be they from business or from investments. This marks the essential difference in character between income tax and rates. 162 IC 479 (PC). Per Baumont, CJ and Broomfield, J—It is clear that in a statute imposing income tax, that is a tax on total income, the tax relating to land is none the less income tax because it is assessed on the annual value of the land and not on the actual income. But it does not follow from that proposition that every statute which charges a tax in relation to annual value of land is charging a tax on income. Prima facie, a tax on the annual value of land is not a tax on income. 1940 Bom 65. Kania, J—In determining the nature of a tax though consideration may be given to the standard on which the tax is levied, that is not the determining factor. 1 LR (1940) Bom 58=42 Bom LR 10=AIR 1940 Bom. 65 (FB)

Krishnaswami Ayyangar, J—(1) The Income-tax Act, being a taxing statute, should receive a strict construction that is a construction in favour of the subject and not in favour of the Crown. If a case appears to be governed by either of two provisions, it is clearly the right of the assessee to claim that he should be taxed under the one which leaves him with a lighter burden. 1 LR (1940) Mad 178=51 LW 222=AIR 1940 Mad, 866=(1940) 1 MLJ 319 (FB)

CONSTRUCTION—On points specially dealt with in the Act it should be interpreted without reference to previous state of law. 28 CWN,

1074=52 C 1=1925 C 34. Construction most beneficial to the subject should be adopted. 48 C 161, 43 A 139. "If the Crown, seeking to recover tax cannot bring the subject within the letter of the law, the subject is free"—(Per Lord Cairns in Farlington v Attorney General, LR 4 HL 100). But the Court cannot undertake, out of its notions of what is fair, to adopt or re arrange the machinery of the Act upon a question as to whether a certain payment made by the assessee is allowable or not in computing income tax. 57 C 918=1930 C 641. Per Baumont, CJ—In construing a taxing Act, the Court is not justified in straining the language in order to hold a subject liable to tax. If the legislature intends to assess the estate of a deceased person to tax charged on the deceased in his lifetime, the legislature must provide proper machinery and not leave it to the Court to endeavour to extract the appropriate machinery out of the very unsuitable language of the "Statute". 55 B 312=33 Bom LR 388=1931 B 333. See also 1 LR (1940) Mad 178=1940 Mad 366=(1940) 1 MLJ 319 (FB). It is obviously undesirable that in construing an All India Act like the Income tax Act different constructions should be placed upon the Act in different provinces. 1940 ITR 1, As to mode of keeping accounts for income tax, see 7 Mys L. J 287. Income of previous year as basis of income tax, see 1929 M 35=55 MLJ 844 (FB). A man who is liable to pay a tax is entitled to take shelter under all devices which he may adopt within the law to avoid payment of the tax. 1929 A 919=1930 ALJ 26. The amounts received from the sale of timber trees are income and as such liable to income tax. 54 M 21=1930 M 764=59 MLJ 265 (FB)

INTERPRETATION—Where a statute has been punctuated, the punctuation marks must be taken as part of the Statute. 46 MLJ 42=1924 M 455

INCOME TAX MANUAL—The Income tax Manual merely contains departmental instructions for administering the Act and for guidance of officials and is not authoritative of the statute which is binding on the Courts. 131 IC 193=1931 L 320 (2) (FB). 49 M 22=1926 M 287=50 MLJ 63. See also 12 L. 757=1931 L 441 (as to the effect of R 25 of the Income tax Manual)

OPERATION AND COMMENCEMENT—Where the proceedings, such as issue of notice, etc., were taken under the Income tax Act of 1918, the subsequent coming into force of the Act of 1922 does not make the latter applicable. 80 IC 562

ENGLISH AND INDIAN LAW—The English and Indian Income tax Acts, not being in pari materia decisions of the English Courts are not as a rule useful guides on the construction of the Indian enactment. 59 IA 206=36 CWN 653=63 MLJ. 124 (PC), 52 C. 1=28 C.W.

[(2) It extends to the whole of British India, including British Baluchistan and the Sonthal Parganas and applies also, within the Indian States and the tribal areas, to British subjects who are in the service of the Crown or of a local authority established in the exercise of the powers of the Crown Representative or the Central Government in that behalf, and to all other servants of the Crown in the said States and areas]

CONTRA—English decisions are not decisions of foreign Courts and the decisions of English Courts on the English Income tax Act are the best guides to the interpretation of the Indian Act. 44 M. 718=41 M.L.J. 177 52 C. 1=28 C.W. N 1074, 1933 P.C. 145=65 M.L.J. 285=60 C. 1029=60 I.A. 196 (P.C.) Extreme care must be taken in applying English decisions to cases under the Burma Income tax Act, because the Scheme of the English Income tax Act 1918 and the Scheme of the Burma Income-tax Act 1922 are entirely different 1938 Rang.L.R. 346 175 I.C. 287=1938 Rang. 151 (S.B.) An assessment is valid in law when the source of income is non-existent in the year of assessment but had been in existence in the previous year Per Rankin, C.J.—The general scheme of the Income tax Law in England is that tax is payable in respect of a source of income existing in the year of assessment though the amount is often measured by the results of previous years. But under the Indian Income tax Act the income of the previous year is not merely the standard by which the next year's income is to be computed but is itself the subject matter of the tax 54 C. 637=31 C.W.N. 557=1927 C. 553 The Indian Law bases the liability of a person to taxation on the place where the income accrues or arises or is received but not on the place of his residence 10 L. 657=1929 L. 609 (F.B.) The invocation of Imperial Income tax Code and of decisions pronounced upon it is apt to be very misleading in the interpretation of Indian Income tax legislation which is framed on other and fortunately much simpler lines 60 I.A. 196=1933 P.C. 145=65 M.L.J. 285 (P.C.)

LEGAL OPINIONS—It is not proper for the Income-tax Officer to ask the assessee to produce opinions of legal practitioners in support of his contention. Where such opinions are annexed by the assessee to their petitions the proper course is for the tribunal to state that the petitions cannot be received until the statements as to opinions are removed 12 P. 5=14 P.L.T. 171=1933 P. 123

INCOME, WHAT IS—The word 'income' is not defined in the Act. It connotes a periodical monetary return coming in with some sort of regularity or expected regularity from definite source. The source is not necessarily one which is expected to be continuously productive, but it must be one whose object is the production of a definite return, excluding anything in the nature of a mere windfall 59 I.A. 200=59 C. 1343=1932 P.C. 158=63 M.L.J. 124 (P.C.)

See also 37 Bom.L.R. 126 1933 P.C. 145=60 I.A. 196=65 M.L.J. 285 cited under S. 3

APPEAL TO PRIVY COUNCIL—LIMITATION—An application for leave to appeal to Privy Council in a case under the Income-tax Act is governed by Art. 179 rather than by Art. 181 of the Limitation Act and the date of the judgment is the starting point of limitation 59 C. 251=36 C.W.N. 127=1932 C. 587 The Commissioner of Income tax preferring an appeal to Privy Council is entitled in computing the period of limitation to deduct the period taken for copies of judgment 59 C. 251

RESUMPTION OF GOOD FAITH OF ASSESSEE—The normal presumption is in favour of good faith and not of bad faith on the part of the assessee. To start with the assessee is entitled to the presumption that an entry in his accounts is made in the ordinary course and not with an intention to conceal the real income 12 Mys. L.J. 245 Where a system of accountancy has been adopted by an assessee and recognised by the Income tax authorities in previous years as correct, and on that basis a particular item has been allowed as deductible in the computation of profits in previous years, the income-tax authority will not be justified in subsequent years to turn round and refuse to accept that system of accountancy, a party cannot both approbate and reprobate at the same time 12 Mys. L.J. 245

DOUBLE TAXATION, RELIEF AGAINST—ENGLISH FINANCE ACT—Held, in order to claim relief afforded in respect of double taxation it is necessary to prove (i) payment of or liability to pay United Kingdom income tax for a year of assessment or a part of the year's income, and (ii) payment of domestic tax for that year in respect of the same part of the assessee's income, those parts had to be ascertained by excluding from the statutory incomes in the two countries items which do not satisfy the conditions according to the true construction of the section and it is the smaller of these two incomes in respect of which relief is afforded, (u) the word 'income' in the section meant not real income, but statutory or notional income, by means of which tax is calculated, (uu) an analysis of the two incomes, for the purpose of comparing, for example, the respective allowances for repairs or depreciation, is inadmissible, (v) that nothing need be regarded except the two statutory incomes of the business, taking care, of course, to see that neither includes income from any other source, (v) that the rules which determine in the United Kingdom or in a Dominion the allowances or deductions which are permissible for the purpose of assessing a tax payer to income-tax in either country must be disregarded in determining the comparable incomes, provided that the incomes are derived from the same source, (vu) that actual payment, and not ultimate incidence, was the

"OFFICER OF CROWN"—MEANING OF—COLLECTOR—POSITION OF—The expression "officer of the Crown" as used in the Income tax Act clearly covers a Collector. The latter is in one sense an officer of the Provincial Government, but there can be no doubt that in India he is also an "officer of the Crown" 20 Pat 573=1941 I T R 386=1941 C 663=22 Pat L T 863=1941 Pat 306 (S B) The proceedings before the Income-tax Officer are not judicial proceedings in the sense in which this term is ordinarily used, and all that is required of him is to proceed without bias and give sufficient opportunity to the assessee to place his case before him, or in other words, to conduct himself in accordance with the rules of justice, equity and good conscience, and the control exercisable by the High Court on the Income tax Officer in these circumstances is slight 39 P L R 1028—AIR 1937 Lah 721

SECOND INCOME TAX cannot be imposed without sanction of Governor General 106 I C 882=1928 L 53

Sec 2 (1) AGRICULTURAL INCOME—Forest income is "agricultural income" 45 M 518=1922 M 325 Income derived from pasturage is agricultural income See 1924 Rang 337, 1924 Cal 668 184 I C 31 Where cattle are wholly stall fed and not pastured upon the land at all, doubtless, it is trade and no agricultural operation is being carried on, where cattle are being exclusively or mainly pastured and are nonetheless fed with small amounts of oil cake or the like, it may well be that the income derived from the sale of their milk is agricultural income. But between the two extremes there must be a number of varying degrees and the task for the Income tax Officer is to apply his mind to the two distinctions and to decide in any particular case on which side of the fence the matter falls. The Income tax Officer has to see whether the cattle derived sustenance to a material extent from the produce of the ground, and whether they did so or not is entirely a question of fact for him and one which cannot be reviewed by the High Court 176 I C 601=1938 Rang 260 (F B) In order to determine whether certain income is agricultural income or not, regard must be had to the source of such income and annual sum in the nature of an ex gratia payment made by the Bettiah Ray to the assessee in consideration of some services rendered by an ancestor of his in the remote past is not derived from land and could not be regarded as agricultural income within the meaning of S 2 (1) of the Act 1941 Pat 27=1940 I T R 416 Agricultural income does not lose its right to exemption because it can be brought under one of the heads of income set out in S 6 of the Income tax Act 45 C W N 647=1941 I T R 292=1941 Cal 598 Profits derived by money-lender from usufructuary mortgage is "agricultural income" 62 I A 215=69 M L J 474 (P C) 'Dharat' which means weighing charges levied by the landlord on the tenants in addition to the rent is also agricultural income and is exempt from assessment 165 I C 141=1936 L 602 S 2 (1) of the Act applies to the case of a person who gets agricultural income from the use of the land by direct operation. It is not applicable to a lambardar who gets certain fees which constitute his remuneration for the work of the collection of the land revenue. Lambardari fees are not, therefore, within the definition of agricultural income 38 P L R 400=1936 L 595 The rent of the site of a flour mill cannot be regarded as agricultural income, as the working of a flour mill is not an agricultural purpose 38 P L R 402=1936 L 595 The net profit from commission charged to tenants for sale of their produce on their behalf does not fall within the definition of agricultural income 38 P L R 402=1936 L 595 Where the tenant had executed a pro note for arrears of rent, interest earned, on the pro note is not "agricultural income" and is taxable 55 M 830=63 M L J 20 See also 1941 Cal 443 Where the assessee being a usufructuary mortgagee is in the position of a landlord with respect to the actual cultivating tenants, the income derived from such lands must be agricultural income within the meaning of the Income tax Act and is therefore exempt from taxation 13 P 336=15 P L T 85=1934 P 178 (S B) Simple mortgagee—Rents and profits collected by receiver and deposited in Court—Payment to mortgagee—If not agricultural income—Income—When accrues or arises or is received 53 L W 714=1941 Mad 246=(1941) 1 M L J 262 Cash remuneration received by Mutwalli, where wakf properties consisted entirely of agricultural income is taxable 45 C W N 647=1941 Cal 598 Income derived from toddy extracted from cocoanut trees situated on lands assessed to Government revenue is agricultural income when it is received by the actual cultivator whether owner or lessee of the land on which the trees grow 50 M 923 If the income is obtained by a person who has a produced the trees from which the toddy is tapped, or has not done any agricultural operation whereby those trees have been raised it is not agricultural income 50 M 923=1927 M 1038=53 M L J 666 (F B). Income from lease of fishery rights is not "agricultural income" which is exempt from taxation 1932 M 757=63 M L J 634 (F B). The words "agricultural purposes" in S 2 (i) of the Act cannot be held to cover the process of flooding the land occupied by letting in the sea water and then extracting the sodium chloride from it by eliminating the other chemical constituents. Consequently a licensee of salt factory is liable to pay income tax on the profits he makes by the manufacture of salt 50 M 204=1927 M 848=53 M L J 377 (F B). Fees received from land used for storing purchases of crops do not come within the definition of "agricultural income" and cannot therefore be exempted from assessment 31 C W N 1047=1927 C 793. It is not possible to lay down any general rule that payments in the nature of salami or nazarana must be regarded as payments of rent and therefore, income. The question would depend on the facts and circumstances of each case. Salami or nazarana may in certain cases be payment of rent in advance but in other cases it may well be a lump payment for the transfer of the leasehold interest. The nature of the payment whether capital or income cannot be decided as a question of law but can only be decided after a full investigation of all the facts relating to the settlements for which the sums are payable. It must also be ascertained whether the holdings settled are holdings connected or unconnected with agriculture. If they are connected with agriculture the payments would be agricultural income 3040 P W N 702=1941 Pat 39. See also 31 C W N 5037=1927 Cal 793. Nor does nazar paid by tenants to zamindar 1941 P 39. As to income received from Misladars or permanent leaseholders see 1941 Pat 39=1940 P W N 702=1941 P 39. The question whether the rent derived from certain lands leased out by an assessee on patni leases is agricultural income or not stands to be determined not with reference to the nature of the leases by which they were let out but by reference to the use to which the land has been put. Where a certain portion of the lands which a zamindar has given on patni lease is used for non agricultural purpose, it follows that the rent paid by the patnidar to the zamindar which is attributable to that portion of the lands is not "agricultural income" within the meaning of the Act. The question whether any portion of the income derived from the patnidar by the zamindar is agricultural or not is essentially a question of fact 1940 I T R 378. Cl (1) (c)—In order that the income derived from any building may be held to be agricultural income, it is necessary that the building must be in the immediate vicinity of the land and it is a building which the receiver of the rent or revenue or the cultivator requires as a dwelling house or as a storehouse or other out building. It is not open to the Commissioner to decide in the case of a large building of a zamindar for instance what portion of the building the assessee does in fact require as dwelling house by reason of its connection with the land. cannot be said that it is implied that a complete instrument only is intended to be valid for registration under S 2, that is an instrument which does not require supplementing by other evidence, but contains in itself the complete agreement constituting the partnership and by itself solely operates to create the partnership. It is not impossible that a firm should be constituted under an agreement, although the agreement has not been executed by all the partners. 58 C 1005=1931 C 682 (S B). It is essential that an application for registration should be signed by at least one of the partners of the firm. SCHEME OF TAXATION—The scheme of taxation under the Income tax Act, 1922, is a definite departure from the system prevailing under the previous Income tax Act of 1918. By S 3 of the Act of 1922, the tax to be charged for any year is in respect of income of the previous year. The intention of S 3 is not to treat the income of the previous year merely as a measure of the unascertained income of the year of assessment but to tax the assessee in the year of assessment upon the income received by him in the previous year. 61 I A 1=56 A 1=66 M L J 127 (P C). The total income for the purpose of S 16 means the total amount of income profits or gains from all sources including (1) certain receipts on which an assessee is exempt from paying income tax and (2) the amount of tax deducted at the source by companies when paying dividends. 26 Bom L R 366=48 B 504. When the Act by S 3 subject to charge 'all income' of an individual it is what reaches the individual as income which it is intended to charge. Where therefore, a decree of the Court charges the assessee a whole resources with a specific payment to his step-mother it to that extent diverts his income from him, and directs it to his step-mother, to that extent what he receives for her is not his income. NOTES

the trustees of Currimbhoy Ebrahim Baronetcy, having been created a corporation sole by their Act constituted an "individual" within the meaning of S 3 and a taxable unit and as a matter of convenience may be assessed to income and super tax 33 Bom L.R. 1549. The term "association of individuals" in S 3 has no technical meaning. It merely means a group when the properties of a number of individuals are put together and one business is carried on with the combined resources (for instance by a guardian on behalf of several minors having distinct and specified shares in the properties) it is open to the Income tax Officer to regard it as one business carried on by an association of individuals within the meaning of S 3 and make a single assessment on the guardian as representing that association. He is not bound to assess each minor separately. It may be different of course if no business is carried on and the trustee or guardian is merely in receipt of the income on behalf of the beneficiaries or minors 55 M. 891=62 M.L.J. 600 (F.B.). The words "association of individuals" in S 3 of the Income tax Act must be construed with reference not merely to the word "firm" immediately preceding them, but with reference to the other associations of individuals, namely, a Hindu undivided family and company which appear in the section. An association of individuals resembling a Hindu undivided family is an association of individuals contemplated by sec 3 of the Income-tax Act. The question whether certain persons form an association of individuals under sec 3 is a question which must depend upon the particular facts and circumstances of each case 1941 Sind 71=1940 I.T.R. 114. Where several persons join together and remain joined together for the purpose of buying, holding or owning and using property in order to make gain by it, they become and are an association of individuals within the meaning of sec 3 of the Act 63 C. 538=40 C.W.N. 476. It is the intention of the legislature that the expression "other as association of individuals" in sec 3 should be ejusdem generis with the word immediately preceding, i.e., the word "firm". Thus, before there can be an association of individuals within the meaning of the section it must first be shown that the association has at least some of the attributes of a firm or partnership, though not in the strictly legal sense of the term. Accordingly the mere appointment by a body of co-owners of a common collecting agent will not convert such body of co-owners into an "association of individuals" within the meaning of the section 1936 A.L.J. 1109=1936 A. 817. Secs. 3 and 4 COMPANY—FOREIGN INCOME—LIABILITY TO ASSESSMENT—In the case of a non-resident, income which neither accrues nor arises nor is received within British India may be liable to tax under the combined operation of secs 3, 4 and 42. The assessee, a resident of British India owned a saw mill in Burma, which in the account year commencing from April, 1936, resulted in a loss, and the income of the assessee consisted solely of interest received from investments. For purposes of assessment to income tax, the assessee sought to set off the loss sustained in the saw mill in Burma against the profits derived from the investments. The Income tax authorities held that as Burma ceased to be part of British India from 1st April 1937, the loss sustained in Burma which was thus outside British India could not be set off against the profits from the investments. Held, that when the assessee worked the saw mill Burma was part of British India and reading secs 3 and 4 together—the sections should be so read the loss must be deemed to have been sustained in British India and therefore the set off claimed ought to be allowed. Secs 3, 6 and 9—Held (1) that a difference must be made between a private wakf created, if not primarily, at least in part, for the maintenance of the settlor's family and a wakf created for charitable or religious purposes falling within the exception in sec 4 (3) (1) of the Income tax Act, (2) that so far as the wakf might operate as a wakf for charitable and religious purposes to that extent immunity from taxation could be claimed but so far as the wakf operated for the maintenance of the settlor's family, or other quasi secular purposes to that extent the income was liable to taxation (3) that in the case a private wakf the estate is vested in the beneficiaries (4) that for purposes of secs 6 and 9 of the Income tax Act the trustees could not be regarded as the owners of the income (5) that the income in this case was bound up with the beneficiaries and should be taxed in their hands 1940 I.T.R. 501. In a case where the revenue authorities have discharged the onus which lay on them by showing that the assessee is in receipt of income, sec 3 of the Act renders that liable to taxation, it is for the assessee then to prove that the income which he is in receipt of is exempted from taxation by the Act. the trustees of Currimbhoy Ebrahim Baronctey, having been created a corporation sole by their Act constituted an 'individual' within the meaning of S 3 and a taxable unit and as a matter of convenience may be assessed to income and super tax 33 Bom L.R. 1549. The term 'association of individuals' in S 3 has no technical meaning. It merely means a group when the properties of a number of individuals are put together and one business is carried on with the combined resources (for instance by a guardian on behalf of several minors having distinct and specified shares in the properties) it is open to the Income tax Officer to regard it as one business carried on by an association of individuals within the meaning of S 3 and make a single assessment on the guardian as representing that association. He is not bound to assess each minor separately. It may be different of course if no business is carried on and the trustee or guardian is merely in receipt of the income on behalf of the beneficiaries or minors 55 M. 891-62 M.L.J. 600 (F.B.). The words 'association of individuals' in S 3 of the Income tax Act must be construed with reference not merely to the word firm immediately preceding them, but with reference to the other associations of individuals, namely, a Hindu undivided family and company which appear in the section. An association of individuals resembling a Hindu undivided family is an association of individuals contemplated by sec 3 of the Income tax Act. The question whether certain persons form an association of individuals under sec 3 is a question which must depend upon the particular facts and circumstances of each case 1941 Sind 71-1940 I.T.R. 114. Where several persons join together and remain joined together for the purpose of buying holding or owning and using property in order to make gain by it, they become and are an association of individuals within the meaning of sec 3 of the Act 63 C. 538=40 C.W.N. 476. It is the intention of the legislature that the expression 'other as association of individuals' in sec 3 should be ejusdem generis with the word immediately preceding it, the word firm. Thus before there can be an association of individuals within the meaning of the section it must first be shown that the association has at least some of the attributes of a firm or partnership though not in the strictly legal sense of the term. Accordingly the mere appointment by a body of co-owners of a common collecting agent will not convert such body of co-owners into an association of individuals within the meaning of the section 1936 A.L.J. 1109=1936 A. 817. SALE OF PATENT—PRICE—IF 'INCOME' OR 'CAPITAL RECEIPT'—TEST—If a transaction is an out and out sale of the patent by the patentee for a definite fixed price, even though it is not payable in lump sum but in instalments, there can be no doubt that any such instalment received during the accounting period cannot be treated as taxable 'income', but is a 'capital receipt' and as such exempt from assessment. If, on the other hand, it is merely a 'working licence' granted for an annual payment, it is clearly 'income' and as such is taxable. 1937 Lah 880. If the assessee has been carrying on the business of acquiring and selling of patents as a regular trade, the price received by him by the sale of any particular patent would be income within the meaning of the Income tax Act and assessable as such. In that event, the case would be similar to that of a speculator in immovable properties, who purchases and sells such properties as a regular trade. The profit made by him in any transaction would clearly be his taxable income. But this would not be so if a person who had inherited immovable property or had acquired it as an investment, subsequently sold it at a profit. 1937 Lah 880. If a transaction is a working licence for a number of years in which no fixed sum is to be paid to patentee but he is to receive a royalty on a percentage basis on the net profits made by the grantee, the amount of the royalty so received would clearly be assessable in the hands of the grantors. 1937 Lah 880.

What the Income tax Act charges with tax is income and nothing but income, whether that income accrues or arises or is received in British India or is deemed so to arise or accrue or be received by reason of being brought into British India. But if income arising or accruing without British India is spent or otherwise so dealt with that it ceases to be income instead of being brought into British India, it is not chargeable under the Act merely because the thing upon which it has been expended or into which it has been turned is subsequently brought into British India. It is not necessary of course, in order to attract the tax that the income received abroad should be brought into India in the exact form in which it has been received. Where the interest on certain sterling bonds belonging to the assessee company carrying on business in British India was payable in England and was in fact received by an agent of the company and expended on the purchase of certain mill stores and machinery which were later on sent to India and used for the purpose of the business of the company it was contended that the machinery bought with the sterling equivalent of the interest on the securities on their arrival in British India, resulted in so much of foreign income being brought into British India but it was overruled and held that the income on the securities were not liable to be taxed under S 4 (2) of the Act. 67 IA 115=I LR (1940) Bom 332=51 LW 61=71 CLJ 156=1940 P C 36=(1940) 1 MLJ 137 (P C). The Court must look at the substance of the transaction and when that is done, the proper conclusion to be drawn should be that there was here a remittance of profits. The test is from where did the money for the remittance come (1910) 2 M.L.J. 217 (S.B.) Krishnamoorti Iyer, J.—It would not be necessary that the assessee should receive the profits in the exact form in which they were made, but he must receive them in British India substantially as profits. The mere existence of an overdraft cannot save foreign income from liability to taxation, as money paid out of the overdraft and remitted to British India is not necessarily the money of the lender, and may be that of the recipient. There is no abstract rule of law to be applied generally to cases of this kind. The question in each case is what is the correct inference to be drawn and the Court is entitled to get behind appearances in order to discover the truth. I.L.R. A person in British India carrying on business there and controlling transactions abroad in the course of such business is not by these mere facts liable to tax on the profits of such transactions. If such profits have not been received in or brought into British India it becomes necessary to consider on the facts of the case where they accrued or arose. It cannot be said that the place of formation of the contract prevails against everything else. In some circumstances it may be so but other matters—acts done under the contract for example—cannot be ruled out a priori. Where the contract is neither framed nor carried out in British India the profits cannot be said to have accrued or arisen in British India. I.L.R. If there are profits in an assessee's foreign business sufficient to cover remittances to British India during the year of assessment the presumption is that the remittances were from profits and not from capital and the onus of showing that they were from capital and not from profits lies upon the assessee, as also the onus of showing that they were profits earned more than three years before the date of the remittances. Where it is shown that the foreign business as a debtor is unable to pay the foreign business debt and the assessee takes the debtor's land in British India in satisfaction of his claim against his debt, the land so taken in British India is not taxable as foreign profits under S 4 (2) of the Indian Income Tax Act 1930 M 457 = 58 M.L.J. 602 (F.B.) See also 1932 M 573 = 63 M.L.J. 227 (F.B.) See also 1940 Mad 416 = 51 L.W. 362 = (1940) 1 M.L.J. 543. The proper rule is in the case of such a general Act to construe it according to the jurisprudence of the country wherein it was drafted (1892 A.C. 531, Rcl on) 131 I.C. 689=1931 L. 578 (F.B.) The words "religious and charitable purposes" in the Income tax Act are to be judged not by the personal law of the assessee but according to the general principles of construction applying to statutes 165 I.C. 32=1935 P. 532 The word 'charitable' in the Income tax Act has a technical significance other than the meaning which it bears in common parlance. Every institution whose object is to benefit the public or a section of the public is not necessarily "charitable." Before an institution can be held to be "charitable", there must be an element of altruism, that is to say, the beneficiaries must not be able to claim the benefit. This condition is wanting in the case of a mutual association, like the Chamber of Commerce, whose ostensible object is to provide facilities of trade and to improve business and whose whole idea is that the particular members composing it should be benefited. Such an association, therefore, is not a "charitable institution" within the meaning of S 4 (3) (ii) of the Act and is not as such exempt from tax. 1936 A.L.J. 1085=1936 A. 764 An object of "general public utility" within the meaning of the proviso to S 4 (3) of the Income-tax Act is an object of public utility which is available to the general public as distinct from any section of the public, in other words the object in question should not be to benefit work of public utility confined to a section of the public, i.e., those interested in commerce. 40 B.L.R. 1227=A.I.R. 1939 B. 45 Whether a particular object or purpose is of general public utility so as to be a charitable purpose is not to be decided by what the testator or settlor considered to be beneficial to the public. The Court has a responsibility in coming to a finding on the point, and there is no hing in the Income tax Act to discharge the Court of its responsibility. Where a newspaper is started with the object of supplying the province with an organ of educated public opinion, it should prima facie be held to be an object of general public utility. The expression 'charitable purposes' in S 4 (3) (i) must be construed strictly and can only be applied to a public charity. There is no such thing as a private charitable trust. There may be a private trust for religious purposes and therefore S 4 (3) was amended in 1939 in order to put beyond all doubt the intention of the Legislature not to exempt even private trusts for religious purposes. Consequently the exemption in S 4 (3) (i) only applies to a trust the object of which is public utility. What an assessee has to establish if he is to avoid liability to income tax under S 4 (3) (i) is that the income assessed is derived from property held under trust or other legal obligation for religious or charitable purposes. If the purpose of an association is charitable, such as the relief of the poor, it is nonetheless charitable because some political body may consider that it affords the best method of relieving the poor and may therefore adopt the scheme. The fact that it is intended to advance the purposes of a political party, does not make it a purpose which is not charitable. But unless at the time when the profits were made the assessee (Association), was under a legal obligation to devote the profits to a charitable purpose the fact that in practice the profits have been devoted to charitable purposes would not create a legal obligation or trust. If the association is not bound to devote its profits to charitable purposes and the members are free to apply the profits to any purposes they chose it cannot be held that the property is held under trust or other legal obligation for charitable purposes and S 4 (3) (i) cannot apply so as to exempt the profits from tax. 43 Bom L R 742=1941 Bom 374. Charitable purposes in S 4 (3) of the Income tax Act would include relief of the poor, education, medical relief and the advancement of any other object of general public utility. Trusts for the benefit of the inhabitants of a particular locality are regarded as charitable, but trusts for the benefit of a particular political party or for the advancement of particular political purposes opinions are not regarded as charitable. A gift for such purposes as a particular individual or individuals may consider to be charitable is not a good charitable purpose although a gift for such charitable purposes as the managing committee of a trust may think fit would be good because the committee would be bound to keep within the ambit of charity.

But where, as a matter of fact, in a money-lending business, profits are generally got by taking lands in satisfaction of the debts due and selling them for profits later on, such profits must no doubt be considered as derived from such business and cannot escape taxation by saying that the profits have nothing to do with the business of the firm which was merely money lending 31 L. W. 215=1930 M 119 (S.B.) The mortgagee who carried a money lending business advanced a loan and the transaction was embodied in indentures. One of these was described as a zarpeshgi lease with usufructuary mortgage. The mortgagee lessee was to be in possession of the properties, and, in his relation to the cultivators of the soil he stood in the position of landlord, dealing directly with them and collecting the rents. He had moreover to pay the Government revenue, cesses and taxes and his name was registered in the Land Registration Department. He alone was able to sue for rent whether current or arrears, to sue for enhancement or for ejectment and was able to settle lands with rayats and tenants in all the properties, in fact he was in a position to take all proceedings which the mortgagor would have been able to take in the ordinary course if the lands leased and mortgaged had remained in her khas possession. Held, that the thika profits which formed part of the rents were agricultural income within the meaning of S 2 (1) (a) and as such were exempt from assessment. Held, further, that the fact that the recipient was a money-lender did not matter, as the business of money lending may bring in an income which is exempt from income tax on the ground that it is derived from agricultural land. The exemption is conferred, and conferred indelibly, on a particular kind of income and does not depend on the character of the recipient 62 I.A. 215=14 P. 623=1935 P.C. 172=69 M.L.J. 474 (P.C.) The question of the assessability to income-tax of profits realised by a banking concern from the sale of securities and shares must be determined on the facts of each case whether the banking concern had been dealing in securities and shares as part of its business. In this matter the finding of fact arrived at by the Income-tax authorities is conclusive unless it is found that that finding was based on no material. It does not necessarily follow from the circumstance that such profits have not been utilised in the revenue account and that they have been carried to the reserve capital en bloc that they were not trading profits. Later on, he sold the properties for cash and made a large profit out of the transaction. On the not profits being assessed to income-tax, the assessee claimed exemption under S 4 (3) (vii) of the Income tax Act, on the ground that the transaction was not one in the course of his business, but an isolated venture, speculative and casual in nature. Held, that the taking of the assignment was of a nature coming within the ambit of money lending and not such an isolated transaction as to take it out of the category of his business, though it might be speculative that the transaction could not be held to have been entered upon otherwise than as a matter of business and hence the profits were liable to be assessed to income tax. 58 M 105 = 1934 M 539 = 67 M L J 247 (F B). Subsequently he again advanced a loan to W in order to enable the latter to do certain work and sell the mine and W executed an agreement by which he agreed to pay the assessee a third of the consideration which might be realised by the sale. Held, that the transaction was a private venture and not part of the assessee's business and was a receipt of a casual nature under S 4 (3) (vii) and not profits or gains under S 10 or S 12 (3). 11 R 454.

See 4 (3) (vii) and (viii) ROYALTIES FOR PREPARING BRICKS—Royalties for preparing bricks are assessable to income tax. On the assessee's land, there was a quantity of earth suitable for brick making. He granted licences to brick makers to erect brick kilns upon the land to take away brick earth and use it for making bricks. The assessee charged fees at certain rates for the licences. Held, the income was not of a casual or non recurring nature, or agricultural income, it could not be considered as in the nature of a capital sale of the assets of the assessee and that it was assessable to income tax. 10 P 275 = 1931 P 264. An assessee who owned patent rights which were originally used in his business conveyed the working rights under licence to another person against payment of a share in the profits. He subsequently cancelled this agreement and converted his rights under that conveyance into licence under an agreement against an annual payment during subsistence of agreement. See 4 (3) (vii), 10 and 66 (5). PROFITS FROM INVESTMENT OF CLIENT'S DEPOSITS IS TAXABLE—Where an assessee doing business as a produce agent receives large sums of money from his clients as deposits and invests them in Government securities and realises a profit by the sale of such securities on the questions whether such an investment was in the nature of fixed capital or of stock in trade, and whether such profits were exempt from payment of income tax under S 4 (3) (iii) of the Act. Held, that if an investment is made with the object of permanently excluding a certain sum from the floating capital of a concern, it might be held to be fixed capital. But if the investment is part of the business and the sum is intended to serve as stock in trade, the profits arising therefrom will form part of the income of the concern. Held further on the facts, that the business of the assessee was a quasi banking business and it received moneys from clients for the purposes of the business and that the investments had been made as part of the same business, and hence the receipts therefrom were to all intents and purposes receipts from business. Even if they were of a casual or non recurring nature they will not be covered by S 4 (3) (vi). An exemption under S 4 (3) (vi) if claimed for any item of income it is for the assessee to show that the receipt does not arise from business and is of a casual and non recurring nature. In matters where the intention of the assessee is the factor to be considered, where the Department has found such an intention as a matter of fact, it is doubtful

The Government revenue was to be paid by the mortgagor and in default the mortgagee was entitled to proceed against mortgagor. In default of payment of the lease rent the mortgagee was entitled to take possession of the mortgaged property. In the event of any reduction of the principal the rent payable was also to be reduced in proportion. Held that the interest reserved by the documents in this case and paid to the assessee during such period as he was not in possession of the leased property was assessable to income tax 9 P 194=123 I C 617=1930 P 33 (SB). See also 13 P 336=1934 P 178 (SB). Per Das J.—There is a clear distinction between rent and interest. Rent is the return from land for the use of one's land and signifies the sum payable in respect of the use of land. Interest is the return from money for the use of one's money and signifies the sum payable in respect of the use of money. Rent issues out of the land demised, whereas interest is revenue derived from the money lent 9 P 194. Per Kulkarni Sahay J.—If the income is derived from land used for agricultural purposes as rent or revenue then such income is exempt from assessment. Chap III—See under S 4. Pantridge J—The provisions of Ch III of the Act are not limited by S 3 of the Act and must be construed as they stand and S 10 (1) does not require that the business should be carried on by the assessee personally. The assessee must be held to carry on the business though he may not have any executive control over the conduct of it and he is consequently liable to be assessed on the full profits and gains of the business which is his business. 41 C.W.N. 46-1 L.R. (1937) 2 Cal 36 described as income is taxable unless expressly exempted 13 P 661=1934 P 384 (FB) See also 63 C 109, 14 P 552=62 I A 207-69 M L J 190 (P C) The word "income" is not specifically defined in the Income tax Act. The word is used along with the words 'profits and gains', and it may be that those words are explanatory of the word "income." Moneys paid to a Railway Company by the State by way of subsidy under the terms of an agreement between the company and the Secretary of State, in order to make up the minimum guaranteed interest payable to the shareholders should properly be described and treated as income of the company assessable to income-tax. Moneys which are in the coffers of the company and are available in the same way as earnings for the purpose of payment out as interest or dividend are "income." The subsidy being in lieu of moneys which might have been earned by the company, and having the same nature as moneys earned by the company, as far as liability to income tax is concerned once that is paid by the State to the company, it is income and as such comes within the grip of the Income tax Act, and is liable to income tax in spite of the fact that it is intended to be paid to the shareholders. Such moneys cannot be deducted under S 10 (2) (iii) of the Act 63 C 109.

Sec 1, Cl (i)—Compensation amount paid to Government servant who had been compulsorily retired is liable to assessment as for salary received 137 I C 557=1932 M 424=62 M L J 636 (FB) (56 C 211, Ref 10) See also 137 I C 84, cited under S 7.

Cl (ii)—The border line between a case where interest is chargeable to tax and a case where it is not so chargeable appears at times to be extremely fine. Where interest is awarded under the provisions of S 28 of the Land Acquisition Act, it is in the nature of compensation for the loss of the late owner's right to retain possession of the property acquired. In other words it is damages assessed in terms of interest for loss of possession of property up to date of receipt of its consideration. Further, the awarding of such interest is not mandatory but is discretionary with the Court and the claimant is not entitled to it as of right under any rule of law. Hence such interest is not income and is not assessable as such to tax 1 L R (1941) All 34=193 I C 731=1940 A L J 860=1941 All 135.

Cl (iii)—Royalty on mines cannot fall within the heading "income from property" in S 6 because such income is defined in S 9 1940 T R 563=21 Pat L T 897=20 Pat 53=1940 Pat 633 (S.B.) Mineral leases must be regarded as leases and not as sales of coal, the annual payments of royalty in such case must be regarded as a rent in the hands of the assessee. They were therefore assessable to income tax as they constitute "income from other sources" 20 Pat 13—(S B) "A sale may be made for a price which could properly be regarded as a capital receipt and therefore not assessable to income tax. Such a transaction would amount to the exchange of one form of capital for another. The consideration for such a sale, however, need not be in the form of capital. A vendor might secure by the terms of the sale an income for himself, and such would undoubtedly be assessable to income tax, 20 Pat 13 (S B).

Cl (iv)—Contributions made entirely by members to a Mutual Insurance Company are not assessable. See 56 B 119=135 I C 813=33 Bom L R 1581=1932 B 104. See also 55 B 637=33 Bom L R 807=1931 B 448 1936 A L J 1085=1936 A 764, 1941 I T R 627.

Cl (vi)—Employee's gratuity—Termination of service on insolvency of employer—Payment of gratuity by stranger not taxable 12 R 477 1934 R 377 (S B) Income from Jalkart which were included in the assets of the estate at the time of Permanent Settlement is not liable to assessment to income tax. Such income does not fall under the term "other sources" 53 C 524=1926 C 819 54 C 863=31 C W N 765=1927 C 432 (FB) (Case law fully discussed.) Foreign firm lending to resident firm, see 30 Bom L R 1172. Where the assessee has taken land on lease and has erected on a part thereof temporary houses and shops which are let out on rent and has let out the rest to squatters on rent, the income derived from such rents comes under S 6 (b) and must be assessed as income from "other sources" 1930 A L J 613=1930 A 283. Where the income tax authorities concede whether rightly or wrongly, that the income of a Chamber of Commerce, which is a mutual concern derived from its members in the shape of a certain fixed amount on each transaction registered in the Chamber, is not income from business such income is not taxable as income from "other sources" within the meaning of S 6 (vi) of the Act. If these payments are not income from business it is difficult to see from what "other source" a mutual concern can derive profits 1936 A L J 1083=1936 A 764.

Secs 6 and 7—A relationship of employer and employee or of principal and agent is essential before a payment from one party to another can be salary within the meaning of S 6 (b) and 7 of the Income tax Act. A restrictive covenant whereby a person undertakes for consideration to abstain from doing a particular act or from following a particular course of conduct, is something quite outside an ordinary contract of employment and the amount so paid as consideration under such a covenant cannot be held to be "salary" under S 6 (i) or

7. (1) The tax shall be payable by an assessee under the head "Salaries" in respect of any salary or wages, any annuity, pension or gratuity, and any fees, commissions, perquisites or profits ¹ * * *] in lieu of, or in addition to, any salary or wages,

NOTES

S 7 of the Act. Nor would it fall under S 6 (w) or S 10 of the Act. The amount is not received as the direct consequence of any actual business transacted. On the other hand it is the direct consequence of no business being transacted. To fall under the head business in S 6 (w) of the Act, an amount must be the direct result of profits or gains accruing from particular business actually carried on by the assessee. When the object of the transaction in pursuance of which the amount is paid is not to secure an income to the assessee, the amount cannot also fall under Cl (a) of S 6 or S 12. The fact that the payment is spread over a number of years would not make it income, because a capital payment is not any the less a capital payment because it is to be paid in equal instalments over a period of years. If the object of the agreement is not the production of an income to the assessee, it is not income within the meaning of S 12. 1941 ITR-642. As to allowance for bad debts see 1941 Rang L R 529=1941 Rang 185 (S B) and notes under. See infra.

Secs 6 and 7. MAINTENANCE CHARGE—NATURE—Where by the decree of a Court, the assessee's step-mother has a charge not only on the son's zamindari property from which his agricultural income was derived but also on all his other sources of income included in the assessment, the assessee's liability to his step-mother is not of the same kind as his liability to provide for his wives and daughter. The case was not one of a charge created by the assessee for the payment of debts which he has voluntarily incurred and the liability to his step-mother does not fall within any of the exemptions or allowances allowed under Ss 7 and 12. 60 IA 196=60 C 1029=1933 PC 145=65 M.L.J. 285 (PC). See also 10 O.W.N. 1003=1933 O 475, 57 C 918=1930 C 741.

Secs 6 (i) (iv) and (vi), 7, 10 and 12—Applicability—Payment of fixed sum annually for several years by one to another in consideration of latter undertaking not to do particular act or business not taxable as salary or business profits or otherwise. See 1941 ITR 642=1 L R (1941) Kar 512=1942 Sind 53.

Secs 6 and 12—TRANSFER OF ENTIRE PROPERTY BY ASSESSEE—TRANSFEREE TO PAY OFF DEBTS AND ANNUITY TO TRANSFEROR—ANNUITY IF TAXABLE—The assessee was the owner of a landed estate known as the 'nine annas Tikaraj Raj'. He had contracted heavy debts. He executed a deed by which he transferred his entire interest in that estate to the transferee. The consideration for the transfer was the payment by the transferee of the transferor's debts amounting to a considerable sum, the further payment by her of the expenses of the marriage of the daughter of the transferor and life annuity of Rs 2,40,000. It was contended by the assessee that the life annuity payments must be considered as payment by instalments of a capital purchase sum and secondly, that the payment as derived from the estate and therefore exempt from taxation under S 12 as agricultural income. Held, (1) that an owner of capital might exchange it for an income which was taxable, or for another form of capital which was not taxable and the question whether what was obtained in exchange should be considered as taxable depended upon the nature of the transaction in the particular case. (Per Full Bench) (2) that the annuity cannot be considered as "revenue derived from land which he used for agricultural purposes" (By majority, (3) that in spite of the use of the word annuity) the sum in question was not capital but was income and was so taxable, and it was immaterial that it was the 'price' of the property transferred. (Foley v Fletcher, 3 H & N 769, Minister of National Revenue v Spooner, (1933) A C 684, Secretary of State v Scoble, (1903) A C 209, 13 P 661=15 P L T 325=1934 P 384 (F B)).

Secs 6 and 24—The maintenance roanagement and running in races of race horses by an assessee, and his betting, do not in law constitute the 'business', 'profession', 'vocation' or 'occupation' of the assessee, nor any part of such 'business', 'profession', 'vocation', or 'occupation' and the receipts by the assessee from the said sources or any of them, would not, if a profit had been derived therefrom have in law, constituted income, profits or gains of the assessee from 'other sources' within the meaning of S 6 (vi) of the Income-tax Act (1922), and accordingly, the assessee is not entitled under S 24 of the Act to set off any loss of profits or gains in any year of assessment in respect of the said maintenance, management and running of his race horses or in respect of betting, against his income profits or gains in the year under any other head of assessment. 1 L R (1940) All 274=1940 A L J 129=1940 All 154 (F B). rested in the employer out of charitable motives is not chargeable under the head "salaries" in S 7 of the Act, because it is not paid by the employer or any one on behalf of the employer 12 R 477=1934 R 377 (FB) 'Income in the Income tax Act connotes a periodical monetary return coming in with some sort of regularity from definite sources. The source is not necessarily one which is expected to be continuously productive but it must be one whose object is the production of a definite return, excluding anything in the nature of a mere wind fall. Where the assessee, after the termination of an agency, is granted by his employer a certain periodical sum of money during the lifetime of the assessee and in the event of his death before expiry of five years from the date of the termination of the agency payment is to be made to his son for the unexpired period of five years, for the services rendered during the agency, provided he does not enter into a competitive business the periodical sum of money fall clearly within the purview of S 7, Income-tax Act, and as such taxable income, unless the assessee is able to bring his case within one of the exemptions contained in S 4 Cl (3) of the Act 31 S L R 432=171 I G 375=1937 Sind 234. As to assessment of income tax on salaries see 1 R 335=1924 R 30. The annual allowance received at London from a fund by the Lord Bishop of Lucknow as such is a salary within the meaning of S 7 (1) 1931 A L J 1107=1932 A 151. A transfer by the trustees of the salaries to the employee at the termination of his employment is not a payment perquisite or profits thereunder received by the employee in addition to his salary or wages which are paid by or on behalf of the company within the meaning of S 7 11 R 70=1933 R 22. The interest paid by a company on the contributions which the company makes to the Provident Fund is a perquisite in addition to the salary or wages of the employees of the company. It is a sum that accrues to the members of the Provident Fund because they are under a contract of service with the company and as such it falls within the ambit of the term "salaries" in S 7 (1). But unless and until the salary has been received by the employee and has been paid by the company to him, such salary is not assessable to income tax. When therefore the interest of the company's own contributions to the Provident Fund is paid by the company and received by the employee, the sum so paid is 'salary' within the meaning of that term as used in S 7 (1) 1933 R 45=11 R 172 (FB) 'Salary' meaning of See 1941 I T R 642. Company—Provident Fund—Contributions by employee and company—Payment to employee on retirement of total amount in Fund. Held, that the payment which the assessee received was not merely deferred salary but was a payment in the nature of a capital bonus paid to a faithful employee of long standing the assessee was therefore not liable to tax on the amounts received by him 1940 I T R 85. Secs 7, 18 and 60. SALARY OF GOVERNMENT SERVANT—DATE ON WHICH IT BECOMES ASSESSABLE—POSTPONEMENT IN RECEIPT OF SALARY—EFFECT—Upon a true construction of S 7 (1) read with Ss 18 (2) and 60 (2), Income tax Act, salary is not assessable to income tax until it has been paid to and received by the employee the scheme of the Act being to levy income tax not upon potential but actual profits. An assessee a Government servant requested the head of his office to pay him his February salary on 1st April instead of on 1st March. The head of the office drew the salary in March and paid it to the assessee on 1st April as requested. The Income tax Officer included the salary for February in the year's assessment on the ground that as it was drawn in March it must be regarded as having been paid in that month because it was held by the head of the office in trust or bailment for the assessee until it was actually paid to the latter. Held that the head of the office in the circumstances of the case could not be regarded as a bailee or trustee

¹[Provided further that where tax is deductible at the source under section 18, the assessee shall not be called upon to pay the tax himself unless he has received the salary without such deduction]

²[Explanation ³(1) —The right of a person to occupy free of rent as a place of residence any premises provided by his employer is a perquisite for the purposes of this sub-section]

⁴[Explanation 2 —A payment due to or received by an assessee from an employer or former employer or from a provident or other fund at or in connection with the termination of his employment, whether or not the employment is then terminated or to be terminated, is to the extent to which it does not consist of contributions by the assessee or interest on such contributions a profit received in lieu of salary for the purposes of this sub-section, unless the payment is made solely as compensation for loss of employment and not by way of remuneration for past services]

Provided that nothing herein contained shall render liable to income-tax any payment from a provident fund to which the Provident Funds Act, 1925, applies, or any payment from a recognised provident fund within the meaning of Chapter IXA if such payment is exempted from payment of income-tax under the provisions of Chapter IXA, or any payment from an approved superannuation fund within the meaning of Chapter IXB made on the death of a beneficiary or in lieu of or in commutation of an annuity, or by way of refund of contributions on the death of a beneficiary or on his leaving the employment in connection with which the fund is established]

(2) Any income which would be chargeable under this head if paid in British India shall be deemed to be so chargeable if paid to a British subject or any servant of His Majesty in any part of India [by or on behalf of the Crown] or by a local authority established [in the exercise of the powers of the Crown Representative or the Central Government in that behalf]

8 The tax shall be payable by an assessee under the head "Interest on securities" in respect of the interest receivable by him on any security of the [Central Government] or of a Provincial Government, or on debentures or other securities for money issued by or on behalf of a local authority or a company

The obligation to pay a certain sum of money to the assessee could not make him a bailee for bailment could be of specific property only. He was clearly not acting as the assessee's agent in drawing the salary for February, for he had not been authorized by the assessee either to draw the February salary in March or to keep it on the assessee's behalf. In these circumstances the February salary received by the assessee in April could not be included in year's assessment 1937. Lah 878.

Sec 9 (1)—S 9 (1) which deals with assessment under the head "property" in respect of the bona fide annual value of buildings does not apply to property in a foreign country. 1933 WN 1362=65 MLJ 649 (FB) Where the whole of the income of an assessee who is the sole surviving coparcener of a Hindu joint family is derived from immovable property, but under a decree of Court the income is made subject to certain maintenance allowances in favour of widows in the family, such maintenance allowances are a charge on the property, the property being declared to belong to the assessee as residuary legatee subject to the payment of the allowances by way of maintenance. Though these charges do not fall under S. 9 of the Act and cannot be deducted under that section, yet, the real income of the assessee which is liable to tax is the income subject to the deductions in respect of the charges. Therefore the assessee ought to be assessed not to the full amount of the income derivable from the immovable property, but to that income less the amounts payable for maintenance allowances. I.L.R. (1939) Bom L.R. 445-41 Bom L.R. 652-1939 Bom 362. In order to come within the provision of S. 9 (1), the person who owns the building need not also be the owner of land upon which it stands. An assessee who takes on long lease a parcel of land from Government and erects buildings thereon with their permission and is entitled under the term of the said lease to remove the buildings within a stipulated period on the termination of the said lease is assessable in respect of the annual value of the buildings under S. 9 of the Act. 151 IC 879 (2)=1934 M 670 (FB) S. 9 is inapplicable to a case where the assesses have only a limited interest of a lessee for 50 years. 34 CWN 327=1930 C 1 (FB) Before an assessee can be taxed as an "owner" under S. 9 of the Act it must be decided that he is in fact the owner of the property in question, and this decision rests with the Income-tax Officer. The mere existence of a dispute as to title, even where a suit has been filed, cannot of itself hold up an assessment and the Income tax Officer has power to decide if the assessee is the owner of the property without waiting for the determination of the suit. I.L.R. Sec 9 (1) (iv) —The property belonging to an estate subject to the rule of primogeniture is still the property of the family and not the sole property of the manager for the time being for the purposes of super tax. In computing income of the head of an impartible family governed by the law of primogeniture the allowances paid to junior members thereof should be deducted. They cannot be deemed to be part of the income of the family. They are the separate property of the junior members on which they can be separately assessed. 14 L 255 1933 L 284. The words 'property of which he is the owner in S 9 (1) are not to be read as meaning of which annual value he is the owner. However difficult it may be in some cases to apply the simple and ordinary phrase 'owner of property to the facts of each case it is not permissible to substitute a phrase which is of dubious and noticeably different meaning. Again the distinction between property owned by an individual Hindu and property owned by a Hindu undivided family must be made by applying the Hindu Law. It cannot be said that because the statute to be interpreted is an Income tax Act broader or more general notions of ownership than the Hindu Law affords are to determine the matter. The Act is an Indian Act and the distinction takes its meaning from the Hindu Law. Property though impartible may be the ancestral property of a joint family and in such cases the successor falls to be designated according to the ordinary rule of the Mitakshara. Though the co-ownership of the junior member may be in a sense only carrying no present right to joint possession if the question be whether the Hindu undivided family or the present holder is owner of the estate the answer of the Hindu Law is that it is the joint family property. The present holder cannot therefore be charged in respect of it under S 9 of the Income tax. 54 L W 635=1941 P C 120= (1941) 2 M L J 972 (P C). A Hindu undivided family is a single unit for the purpose of income tax matters and in the case of assessment of a Hindu undivided family S 9 (1) (iv) of the Income tax Act can be applied only when the property is the property which constituted the taxable property of the undivided Hindu family is subject to a mortgage. The word mortgage in S 9 (1) (iv) must mean when a Hindu undivided family is being assessed as such in respect of the income under S 9 be taken to refer only to a mortgage by the Hindu undivided family as such and cannot include a mortgage by some individual member or members of his or their shares of such property. Interest paid or payable in respect of a mortgage by some members of the undivided family of their shares in the family property cannot therefore be allowed to be deducted in computing the profits of the property in assessing the undivided family to income tax. 63 C 1157. NOTES

the property within the meaning of S 9 (1) Cl (iv) of the Act 1932 A 431 See also 63 C 1157

See 9 (1) (vi) — 'Vacancy' cannot mean or include occupation. Consequently where an impugnous tenant fails to pay the rent the house cannot be treated as not having been let at all. Nor can unrealised or unrealisable rent be treated as rent which did not accrue. 32 P.L.R. 418 = 1931 L 656. The provision in S 9 (1), paragraph (vi) is intended to apply primarily only to those cases in which the house in question is not in the occupation of the owner but is habitually let to tenants and the vacancies referred to are vacancies between the different tenancies. It may also be applied to cases where a house though not let is dismantled and shut up by the owner but it has no application to a house kept always furnished and ready for occupation by the owner but never in fact used by him at all. Such a house may be unused but it cannot be called 'vacant' 1931 L 656. Vacancy meaning of See 49 M 22 = 1926 M 287 = 50 M L J 63.

Sub See (2) ANNUAL VALUE — Annual value in S 9 (2) does not mean only annual money benefit derivable from property but the sum for which the property might reasonably be expected to let from year to year. In estimating the sum for which the property might reasonably be expected to let from year to year, the amount paid by the tenant on account of the Municipal house tax should be included, that is should be treated as part of the rent payable by the tenant to the landlord. 17 L 494 = 1936 L 762 (F B). The sum for which the property might reasonably be expected to let from year to year is a hypothetical sum into which rates as such do not enter at all and from which they are not to be deducted. But if and so far as the actual bargain made by the parties is considered as evidence of the amount which a hypothetical tenant would give or the landlord reasonably expect to get is the figure which represents the whole of the consideration exacted by the landlord for the right to use and occupy the property — comprising not merely the rent paid by the tenant as such, but also the tax paid to the corporation by the tenant. 36 C.W.N. 1144 = 1932 C. 886 (S B) (1930 L 320, Diss). The owner's share of Municipal tax payable under this Municipal Act, is not a tenant's tax. It is a liability of the owner and if under the agreement it is paid off by the tenant it represents part of the consideration received by the landlord and has got to be included in the computation of the annual value of the premises. 36 C.W.N. 1144 = 1932 C. 886 (S B). See also 1929 L 503. The phrase annual value whether in Income tax Acts or wherever else it appears with rating or taxation means the same thing, i.e., 'the sum at which the property may reasonably be expected to let from year to year'. The annual value of a house means the annual money benefit derivable from it by the owner. 131 I.C. 193. Per Addison J — What the landlord has been able to collect for past year is a fair measure of what the property may reasonably be expected to let from year to year. 131 I.C. 193. Per Dalip Singh J — The sum for which the property might reasonably be expected to let from year to year is a notional amount and has nothing to do with the rent actually received by the owner. A good way of arriving at the notional sum would be the correct average of the rents paid for similar and similarly situated buildings in any given area. The sum for which the property might reasonably be expected to let from year to year does not mean the sum that the most grasping landlord can secure from the most necessitous tenant but is the sum which might reasonably be expected to be paid for that building from year to year regard being had to the rents paid for similar and similarly situated buildings in that locality. If circumstances make it impossible or inconvenient to apply this method, other factors may be taken into consideration. One of the more important considerations is the length of time for which the landlord had been able to shift the burden to the tenants of the taxation. A long time might well lead to the inference that the notional rent included that amount of the tax. Held, by the majority of the Full Bench (Addison J, dissenting) that the 'annual value' of the property for purposes of S 9 of the Act does not include sums paid by tenants to the owner on account of Municipal house-tax. 131 I.C. 193 = 1931 L 320. Per Tek Chand, J — The question in such cases does not admit of a general answer. The provisions of the Municipal Act in force in a particular locality and the relevant notification under which the taxes levied have an important bearing on the decision in question. Per Addison, J — The question is one of fact and not of law, namely, what as a fact was the sum for which the property might reasonably be expected to let from year to year. 131 I.C. 193 = 1931 L 320 (2).

Provided that, where the property is in the occupation of the owner for the purposes of his own residence, such sum shall, for the purposes of this section, be deemed not to exceed ten per cent of the total income of the owner

¹[(3) Where property is owned by two or more persons and their respective shares are definite and ascertainable, such persons shall not in respect of such property be assessed as an association of persons, but the share of each such person in the income from the property as computed in accordance with this section shall be included in his total income]

(FB) The income and profits from immovable property are to be ascertained by finding out the sum for which the property might reasonably be expected to let from year to year. Where the immovable property consists of a number of market stalls, this is to be done by ascertaining the annual value of each of the stalls which in the aggregate make up the property to be assessed. In determining what that annual value is, the Income tax Officer must have regard to the facts of the particular case under enquiry one of such factors is the actual daily rent of each of the stalls 9 R 154=1931 R 99 (SB). In computing the notional annual value of a house which is not in fact let, the cost of collecting the rent if the house was let cannot be deducted from that notional value, because even in the case of a house which is in fact let, the collecting charges may not be deducted unless they have actually been incurred and in that case the sum which may be deducted is limited to a sum "not exceeding the prescribed maximum" 10 P 261=1931 P 233. The house tax is not a part of the rent of the annual income accruing from the house property to the landlord, but is a mere liability of the landlord incidental to his owning the property which he lets out to the tenants on rent. 30 PLR 429=1929 L 503=140 IC. 1=1932 C 886 (SB), 131 IC 193=1931 L 320 (FB). Sec 9 (2), proviso RESIDENCE—BUILDING OWNED BY COMPANY AND PARTLY LET FOR OFFICERS AND PARTLY LET OUT TO MEMBERS—The word 'residence' in S 9 (2), proviso, bears the ordinary meaning, i.e., the place where a human being eats drinks and sleeps, or where his family and servants eat, drink or sleep, or where there is some permanence or continuance of such eating, drinking and sleeping. It does not bear the extended meaning, which it bears in the case of a company, namely, the place where the company keeps house and does business.

There is no justification for applying the word to a fictional person, such as that of a limited liability company. Consequently, a building owned by a Stock Exchange Association, which is partly occupied by its offices and partly let out to its members for their business, but not used by them for their residence, does not constitute "residence" under the proviso to S 9 (2) 39 CWN 327=62 C 347.

PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE—In estimating or arriving at a decision as to the annual value of building the Income tax Officer is entitled to take into account the actual sum expended in the erection of the building. The finding of the Income tax Officer is one of fact with which the High Court cannot interfere 146 IC 550 (1)=1933 L 829. No mandamus to be issued when the amount involved is very small 146 IC 551=1933 L 822.

Secs 9 and 12—Where the assessee having taken land on a long lease under which the land together with the building thereon will revert to the possession of the lessor on the expiry of the lease, has erected thereon masonry buildings and has received rents from lessees of the buildings, whether the tax payable by the assessee in respect of the rents is to be determined in accordance with S 9 or with S 12 144 IC 344=37 CWN 881=1933 PC 180=65 MLJ 247=55 A 452=60 IA 307 (PC). Sec 10 BUSINESS—MEANING—See 41 CWN 46=ILR (1937) 2 Cal 36. Carrying on business can exist only when there is a succession of acts and the performance of a single act apart from special circumstances is not enough even though it may result in gains or profits 57 B 651=35 Bom LR 914=1933 B 422. See also 1935 L 53 S 10 of the Act deals only with businesses which are being carried on and not businesses which have ceased to be carried on. A company can carry on several distinct and separate businesses and it must always be a question of fact whether those businesses are separate or so interlocked with the main chief business of the company as to be really one business. If separate businesses are carried on during the year of account, the profits and gains of each of them separately will have to be arrived under S 10 (1) and (2) of the Act after making the allowances given in sub-S (2), and the loss if any, in any one or more of the businesses would under S 24 of the Act, be set-off against the profits and gains of the more successful businesses arrived at in the same way and the aggregate income computed. But an assessee company cannot adopt this course when the businesses in which the losses are incurred have ceased to be carried on in the year of account 1935 M 330=68 M L J 379=58 M 433 (F B). The members of the Karachi Chamber of Commerce provide for themselves certain facilities in trade, such as a measurer of merchandise and pay for these facilities. They combine as a Chamber and provide these facilities for themselves as members of that Chamber and they pay more than is actually necessary for the provision of these services. Held, the measurement fees and charges realized by the Karachi Chamber of Commerce from its members are not taxable income. They are not profit on trade within the meaning of S 2 (4) and S 10 of the Act, but are savings. The fact that the office of public measurer serves not only members of the Chamber but members of the public as well or that the members are incorporated as a Chamber under the Companies Act, does not destroy the mutual basis of the members dealing with the Chamber 1939 I T R 575=1939 Sind 308. Association of merchants formed for protecting and promoting interests of members trading in grains and seeds—Opening of Produce Exchange Department and clearing house—Charging of fees from members—Income from sale of samples received for qualitative analysis and penalties levied for trading in breach of rules not taxable as profits and gains of business 1939 I T R 594.

"INCOME" AND "PROFITS"—DISTINCTION—52 M 64=1929 M 387=56 M L J 481 (F B). Term "profits" implies a comparison between the state of a business at two specific dates usually separated by an interval of a year, and if the company is to be regarded as dealing in house property by letting out for premium and rent in the course of and for purpose of its business, the money value of the extent to which at the end of the year it better its position by such means will be assessable as profit. If its position is bettered by other means from causes not directly connected with the business of the company, the enhanced value though realised is not part of the profits of the business. Every thing depends on what the business is 34 C W N 327=1930 C 1 (F B). Debt discharged by consideration other than cash. True value of consideration must be looked to 9 P 240=1930 P 81 (S B). S 10 deals solely with the profits or gains of any business carried on by the assessee. It does not refer to profits or gains generally from whatsoever source derived 26 N L R 75=1930 N 183. Sums received by a firm, in the nature of a solatium, for the compulsory cessation of certain agency contracts, are not "income, profits or gains" arising from business carried on by them and they are consequently not liable to be assessed to income-tax 59 I A 206=59 C 1343=1932 P C 138=63 M L J 124 (P C). See also 1941 I T R 642 (business "profits or income," what are). Where there is no Hindu joint family but still on account of the minority of sharers, the sharers have all to be looked after by a common guardian and the business is carried on with the properties of the tenants in common put together with the advantages of such condition the Crown can assess the person carrying on the business under S 10 (1), 55 M 891=1932 M 378=62 M L J 600 (F B). In order that a payment in kind may be taxable income, it is essential that what is received in kind should be the equivalent of cash or should be moneys worth 60 I A 146=12 P 318=64 M L J 612 (P C). Assessee having more than one business can set-off expenses incurred in re-starting business which has to be stopped on account of cyclone as against profits and gains in other business 1935 M W N 1208=69 M L J 876 (F B).

A DEBTOR WHO GIVES HIS CREDITOR A PROMISSORY NOTE FOR THE SUM HE OWES CAN IN NO SENSE BE SAID TO PAY HIS CREDITOR—He merely gives him a document or voucher of debt possessing certain legal attributes. So far as such promissory note is concerned, the assessee does not receive payment of any taxable income from his debtor or indeed any payment at all 60 I A 146=12 P 318=64 M L J 612 (P C).

APPROPRIATION OF PAYMENT TO INTEREST—OPTION OF TAX PAYER—An assessee took over from the debtor in satisfaction of a loan six items of property movable and immovable amounting in all to Rs 20,74,973. Assuming that these six items might be treated as moneys worth, it was contended that the sum which far exceeded the total amount of interest due on the loan must be treated as applicable in the first place to the discharge of the debtor's liability for interest. Held that the basis of the presumption, namely, that it is to the creditor's advantage to attribute payments to interest in the first place, leaving the interest bearing capital outstanding was gone. Moreover, if the question were one between the debtor and the creditor (i.e., assessee), the assessee might to the last moment appropriate the above mentioned amount to capital account, for in a question of the revenue the tax payer is entitled to appropriate payments as between capital and interest in the manner least disadvantageous to himself 60 I A 146=12 P 318=64 M L J 612 (P C).

FOREIGN REMITTANCE—CAPITAL OR PROFIT—There is no presumptio juris that a sum received from a foreign partnership is remitted out of the profits of that business. Where a firm was assessed to income tax in respect of certain sums received from a foreign business and both the Income tax Officer and the Assistant Commissioner held that the sums were the assessee's share of profits. Held, that a further reference to the High Court on that question was not maintainable 11 R. 397=1933 R. 217.

PAYMENT OF ARREARS OF ROYALTY—Where an assessee agreed to take a colliery business on the representation that it was free from encumbrances which had accrued due prior to his getting possession. Held, that he could not deduct the amount so paid from his income.

NOTES

60. I A 146=12 P 318=64 M L J 612 (P C)

LOSS OF CAPITAL—The assessee who was carrying on business in piecergoods accepted deposits from various peoples for the purpose of that business and paid interest on those deposits which were used in his piecergoods business. He had, however, no money lending business. As a result of a dacoity committed in his premises one night, a sum of Rs 14,400 was lost and it was claimed that this sum should be deducted in computing the profits and gains under S 10 (1), Income-tax Act. Held, that the amount in question was neither the stock in trade nor expenditure necessary for the carrying on of the 'business' of the assessee or for earning the receipts, but was clearly a loss of capital and was not deductible. 1935 L 53. As to what is capital expenditure, see 62 C 87=39 C W N 70.

ISOLATED SPECULATIVE VENTURE—PROFITS FROM—Assessee who was a landowner and money lender and had an interest in certain cotton mills purchased in Court auction the right, title and interest of a certain person in some legacies which were the subject of litigation. After a protracted litigation extending over several years, he was able to realise a sum of some money in respect of the legacies which was far in excess of the purchase money paid by him. That excess receipt was sought to be assessed to income-tax. Held that the transaction could not be described as an adventure or concern in the nature of trade but it was an isolated transaction in no way connected with any other trade or business activities of the assessee, and that consequently the amount of excessive receipt was not clearly assessable to income tax. 68 M L J 222=58 M 363=1935 M 387 (F B).

BAD DEBTS AND TIME BARRED DEBTS—The presumption that a debt barred by time is prima facie bad is rebuttable by evidence according to the circumstances of the case. A debt becomes actually bad when it becomes irrecoverable and not when it is merely time-barred. It may become bad even before it is time barred when it becomes quite irrecoverable by the circumstances of the debtor. (1932 P C 178 Ref.) 13 P 501=1934 P 46. See also 1939 I T R 149, 1938 Pat 577, 1938 Cal 636.

WHAT ARE PROPER DEDUCTIONS—Money embezzled by the clerk of the assessee is a deduction in computing the income or profits of the business, so also the boarding expenses of servants and their transit charges are items of deduction. 4 P 387=1925 P 408. Cf 59 M L J 403. A loss whether by embezzlement or whether by theft is not one of the allowances which is allowable to the assessee under S 10. 17 Pat 102=19 Pat L T 176=1938 Pat 159. An assessee is entitled to deduct the freight charges etc. from the market value at the ports, provided the charges are shown in the accounts as having been incurred. The deductions can be allowed in the following year if the charges are then shown. 1931 L 759. Firm carrying on business in partnership with other firms—Losses if a deduction—Expenses on

The Burma Railways Co. are the owners for the Railway system and all its premises for the purpose of S 9 (2) of the Income-tax Act (VII of 1918), but they are owners not by reason of their being partners with the Secretary of State for India. 64 I C 801=11 L B R 33. Body of trustees carrying on business—Liability to income tax. 1930 L 929. The amount of interest due on a mortgage debt but not actually paid is an allowable item of expenditure under head "house property income" under the section. 54 C 630=31 C W N 557=1927 C 553. The mere fact that the debtor of an assessee has made an entry in his books showing a credit to the assessee for the amount of interest due in the accounting period does not necessarily mean that the amount had been received or realised by the assessee and does not justify income tax assessment. In order to justify the assessment, there must be a clear finding based on some evidence that the amount was realised or received in some form by the assessee in the accounting period. A presumption by itself does not justify assessment. 15 L 486=1934 L 408. But see 13 R 243=1935 R 171 (S B). Where the debtor executed a fresh promissory note for interest due on a prior debt and both in the interest account of the creditor and in the account which they kept, relating to the debts of their respective debtors, the interest in question was shown as having been received by the assessee during the year of account, and it was so stated in the profit and loss account of the firm. Held that in effect what happens in such cases is that the assessee is content to stay their hands in connexion with the recovery of the loan and interest under the old transaction in consideration of the obligation undertaken by the debtors under the new promissory note which consists of the interest due under the old loan which is capitalised for the purpose of the new transaction. In other words, the assessee were investing the old interest as capital in the new loan. Hence such amount was interest upon loans that had accrued to the assessee in the accounting year, and as such was assessable to income-tax for the year. 13 R 243=1935 R 171 (S B). CAPITAL AND REVENUE EXPENDITURE—DISTINCTION—See 46 C W N 6 When an expenditure is made, not only once and for all, but with a view to bringing into existence an asset or an advantage for the enduring benefit of a trade, there is very good reason—in the absence of special circumstances leading to the contrary—for treating such an expenditure as properly attributable not to revenue but to capital. If the money is spent for purposes of the trade, and the expenditure would, if successful, produce a capital asset or an asset of an enduring character which is of a capital nature, it is equally a capital expenditure if the expenditure is unsuccessful. The question whether the expenditure is a capital or a revenue payment is not to be tested by seeing whether it can be shown to be productive. Nor is the fact that what is produced by the expenditure is impalpable or intangible or incalculable any justification for holding that it must be treated as of a revenue nature. And when the payment in fact creates advantages of an enduring nature, it must be properly treated as capital and not as revenue, and therefore it cannot be charged against the profits for purposes of assessment to income tax 1939 I T R 92 See also 41 C W N 46=1933 Cal 777=60 C 840

Sec 10 (2) (iii)—A finance company, which as part of its business invested money in various parts of the world borrowed in India a sum of thirty two lacs of rupees and invested it in foreign securities. The company claimed to deduct from their taxable profits in British India the interest on the borrowed amount notwithstanding the facts that the borrowed money was employed outside British India and that the profits derived therefrom were not brought within British India and therefore did not attract income tax in India. Held, that an allowance cannot be made under S 10 (2) (iii) in respect of interest on capital borrowed for the purpose of the business—that business should be one that earns or is capable of earning taxable profits, or at least one which is so earned on that taxable profits may be earned, whether in fact profits are earned or not. 56 B 92=33 Bom L R 1587=1932 B 94 Sale of its shares and investments by a bank in order to meet withdrawals by depositors is a normal step in carrying on the banking business. See also 1945 ITR 358 S 10 (2) (iii) makes a distinct departure from English law which provides that interest on capital employed in business is not an allowable deduction. Interest paid to a partner on capital borrowed from him is an allowable deduction from the profits earned under S 10 (2) (iii) 163 IC 275=1936 S 68. Agricultural income is totally excluded from the operation of the Income tax Act and the sources of income enumerated in S 6 cannot include agricultural income. S 10 therefore applies to business assessable under the Act and the "allowance" referred to in sub-S (2) of S 10 cannot apply to agricultural income but only to interest paid in respect of capital borrowed for the purposes of the business assessable under S 6 of the Act. Therefore the money borrowed by the assessee for the purpose of paying land revenue cannot be exempted from income tax under the provisions of S 10 (2) (iii) 38 P L R 402=1936 L 595. Where an assessee raises capital in British India to invest it outside British India the interest he has to pay is an expense incurred in connexion with his outside investment and he is not entitled to deduct such interest from his income in British India the said income comprising or including interest income paid to him on fixed deposit by the same bank 1936 L 1001. In the absence of any express provision in the Act an assessee is not to be deprived of the advantages conferred by exemptions such as S 10 (2) (iii) of the Act because the capital benefiting therefrom by means of permissible deductions happens to produce a non-taxable income. Where a person carrying business as a money lender borrows money for his money lending business lends it out to constituents and is obliged in the course of business to receive agricultural lands in repayment of his debts from such constituents he is entitled to a deduction of the interest paid by him on so much of the capital borrowed by him for business purposes as is represented by the agricultural lands got in under S 10 (2) (iii) of the Act in computing the profits and gains of the banking business for the year of account. R 31 of the Income tax Act clearly applies to the business of a dividing (Insurance) society when the Memorandum of Association and the Rules of the company show it to be a dividing society, the fact that part of the policy monies are divided among the subscribers cannot make it a mutual benefit society especially when there is no mutuality between the shareholders of the company the assessee and the policy holders the shareholders and policy holders being two separate entities. It cannot be said that the business of the company is no business within S 10 so as to exempt it as a mutual benefit society. The membership in many cases was merely nominal, the large profits which the company (fund) made by way of interest on loans granted to those taking one rupee shares were distributed to its real shareholders and the nominal members who had taken one rupee shares invested practically nothing and consequently nothing was paid to them out of the profits either by way of dividend or in reduction of interest. These members by borrowing from the company made for it large profits in which they were not allowed to share. Held (1) that the company was not a Mutual Benefit Society in spite of the altered memorandum and articles of association but was a banking concern, and its income was therefore taxable. (2) that as there was no payment of interest to shareholders or subscribers on the capital subscribed by them, and as the company only paid dividends to its members, which were dependent on the earning of profits, the company was not entitled to claim a deduction in respect of these sums under S 10 (2) (iii) of the Act, the sums so paid not being in the nature of interest on borrowed capital. The original cost of any particular asset, is entirely a question of fact, and like any other question of fact depends upon the evidence produced to prove the same. The mere production of documentary evidence showing that a contract has been made for purchasing assets at a certain price does not conclusively establish the correctness of a claim made by an assessee that for the purpose of S 10 (2) (vi) the original cost is the amount shown in the document. These cannot be deemed to be a part of the consideration for the sale and therefore cannot be taken into account in determining "the original cost" to him. But sums spent by him in making additions to buildings and machinery must be taken into account in calculating the depreciation to which he would be entitled. (1939) I T R 374. The word "assessee" in S 10 (2) of the Income tax Act, in the case of an assessment under S 26 (2), based on the profits of a predecessor, must refer to such predecessor. The word "assessee" cannot in such a case be interpreted as meaning the person by whom the income-tax assessed is actually payable. The successor is for the purposes of assessment under S 26 (2) to be assumed as his predecessor with respect to the previous year and the profits have to be computed on this assumption. To entitle an assessee to claim an allowance under S 10 (2) (vi) of the Income-tax Act on account of depreciation of buildings, machinery, plant, etc., "used for the purpose of the business," it is not necessary that there should have been an actual working of the machinery in the year of account. The word "used" may be given a wider meaning so as to embrace passive as well as active user. When machinery is kept ready for use at any moment in a factory under an express contract from which taxable profits are earned, the machinery can be said to be used for the purpose of the business which earns the profits though it is not actually worked. If the contribution of the assessee to the business in question is the obligation to keep his machinery ready for actual use at any moment, and if the profits of the assessee during the year of assessment could not have been earned except by his maintaining his factory and machinery in good working order, that involves the user of the machinery and the factory, entitling the assessee to claim deduction under S 10 (2) (vi) I L R (1937) Bom 821=39 Bom L R 903 1937 Bom 493.

Secs 10 (2) (vi), 14, 19 and 20.—The Income tax Act is concerned with securing revenue to Government and there can be nothing in it which would justify a company in retaining for itself income tax in respect of its shares with no obligation to pass the amount on to Government. In the case of a company the tax has to be paid by the company direct and not on behalf of the shareholders. The provisions of S 20 of the Act, which are no doubt mandatory, only apply where the company is liable to tax. A company is assessed to income tax on its profits and pays the tax direct. There is no express provision in the Act enabling a company which has paid tax to deduct from dividends the amount of such tax. But since income tax has to be discharged out of profits before any distribution can be made, where tax has been paid the company must apportion the burden amongst the different classes of shareholders, according to their legal rights. S 20 recognises a right in the company to deduct tax where tax has been or will be paid on the profits distributed. But where no income tax is payable by the company there is no burden to adjust, and the company is not therefore entitled to make any deduction in respect of income tax from the dividends paid. company, and it is not disputed that the assessee could not earn profits or gains without secretaries, treasurers or managers, such expenditure has to be deducted from the profits and gains. It is necessary to scrutinize with care the sense in which the word "profits" or even the phrase "net profits" is employed. A sum which is to be regarded as "net profits" for the purpose of ascertaining the remuneration of the agents of a firm or the secretaries, treasurers and managers of a company, is only "net profits" in the different sense of being taxable when such remuneration can be classed as outside the scope of expenditure from income which is incurred solely for the purpose of earning profits. 1941 Rang L.R. 181=1941 Rang 145=1941 I.T.R. 155. Dunkley, J.—When there is an agreement between the assessee corporation and the secretaries, treasurers and managers under which before ascertaining the divisible profits of the assessee at all, the secretaries, treasurers and managers are to receive upon a particular conventional basis a commission as remuneration for their services, there is no agreement for division of profits, because in order that it can be held to be an agreement for division of profits, there must be a sort of joint venture and there must be one single profit fund for all purposes, not two profit funds to be ascertained for different purposes. Where there is one profit fund which has to be ascertained for the purpose of calculating the remuneration of the secretaries, treasurers and managers, and another and quite distinct profit fund to be ascertained (after the remuneration of the said employees has been fixed) for the purpose of calculating the profits, divisible among the shareholders, there is no case for division of profits. In the second, the sum payable as such remuneration must of necessity appear as an expenditure or a "revenue charge". Such remuneration is clearly an expenditure incurred by the assessee solely for the purpose of earning such profits or gains within Cl. PRINCIPLE OF SUBSECTION.—It is not possible to lay down any hard and fast rule or to enunciate a rigid and scientific principle which can be applied as a criterion for determining whether a particular expenditure is capital expenditure or not. The question is one of fact. But the question whether a particular sum is or is not a permissible item of deduction is one of law or at any rate one of mixed law and fact. If it is found that the expenditure in question is or is not made, as the case may be, with a view to bringing into existence some asset or advantage for the enduring benefit of the trade the finding will be one of fact, when there is evidence to support that finding, it will not be subject to review by the High Court. 62 C. 87=39 G.W.N. 70. ILLUSTRATIVE CASES.—The share of profits allowed to participating policy holders is conditional on profits being earned and cannot accurately be described as a payment made to earn profits. It assumes that profits have first come into existence. But profits on their coming into existence attract income tax at that point, and the revenue is not concerned with the subsequent application of the profits. The share of profits so allotted to participating policy holders is not, therefore, a permissible deduction. An assessee carried on two businesses one of selling goods in his own shop and the other of selling goods on commission. In an accounting year while submitting a return, through mistake, he entered some items in his shop business which in fact fell under his commission business, where he would have been exempted from tax in respect of those items. In the subsequent year he sought to deduct those items from his income. Held, that the proper remedy for the assessee was to move the income-tax authorities and to show to their satisfaction the mistake he had made and to claim a refund for that year and not to ask for its deduction in the current year. 17 Pat 102=174 I C 580=19 Pat L T 176=1938 Pat 197. A suit for arrears of rent and royalty was brought by the superior landlord, and the assessee were joined as one of the defendants in the suit as assignees of the original grantees of the mining leases. They successfully defended the suit and incurred a considerable sum as costs which they contended was deductible from the income profits and gains under S 10 (2) (ix). Held, that the costs incurred was not an expenditure allowable against profits under S 10 (2) (ix) inasmuch as the assessee's defence in the suit had nothing to do with the earning of any profits or gains in the year previous to assessment or in any year at all prior to the year of assessment, and the suit was fought and the expenditure was incurred to prevent a liability for rent and royalty arising in the future. Per Pantridge, J.—The expenditure was of a capital nature and as such was not an allowance within S 10 (2) (ix) of the Income tax Act I L R (1941) 1 Cal 572=1941 I T R 573=46 C W N 6. Where the assessee entered into an agreement with the Government for the excavation of lime shells in certain Government lands, and for the exclusive privilege of excavating chunam shells, he agreed to pay a sum of money in twelve equal quarterly instalments payable in advance, the portion of such an amount falling within the year of account payable by the assessee was not deductible in computing the income derived from the excavation and sale of lime being a capital expenditure. The payment was not made in order to carry on an already existing business and to earn a profit out of it. The payment to be made was merely for the purpose of starting that particular venture. Any expenditure made thereafter would of course be deductible. But this was an initial expenditure without which the assessee could not even have begun winning shells. 1934 M 617 (2)=67 M L J 350 (F B). See also 1939 I T R 652. Per Aston A J C.—No doubt expenditure in the nature of charity or presents can never be deducted in the case of a business, if the gifts are of a voluntary nature, but gifts given to employees may be deducted when they are given as perquisites in return for services which they have rendered, even though such gifts may not be legally claimable by employee. 145 I C 202 1933 S 145. Per Rupchand, A J C.—In order to bring Christmas presents within the purview of Cl (9), S 10, there must be sufficient material before the Income tax authorities to enable them to hold that the expenditure had been incurred solely for the purpose of earning profits. Such presents are in certain kinds of business, specially when made by non Christians, necessary for the purpose of securing business and therefore a legitimate item to be considered. 1933 S 145

Where a company has brought out its agents, with a view to running their own business by their own staff, by means of a payment, the payment made out of circulating capital is a revenue payment and not a capital expenditure, and is properly deductible by the assessee when arriving at their profits for the purpose of income tax, as a payment made out of circulating or floating capital, and not resulting in the acquisition of anything by way of a new asset or addition to the fixed capital and not capital expenditure. 62 C 87=39 C W N 70. A company carrying on a hotel business in Madras and Octacumund and empowered under its Articles of Association to lease its buildings, leased its premises in Octacumund along with the furniture and fittings to a firm for the purpose of running a hotel and claimed depreciation on the buildings and furniture leased to the firm. Held, that the letting of the premises was part of the business of the company and it was therefore entitled to an allowance for depreciation in respect of the buildings and furniture under S 10 (2) (vi) of the Income tax Act I L R (1940) Mad 178=51 L W 222=1940 Mad 366= (1940) 1 M L J 319 (F B). A claim with regard to sums spent on furniture for office cannot be allowed as it is in the nature of capital expenditure. 145 I C 202=1933 S 145. A payment, the making of which is conditional on profits being earned cannot properly be described as an expenditure incurred for the purpose of earning such profits. A company carrying on the business of communication by wireless entered into an agreement with the Communications Company which was carrying on business of communication by cable. It was agreed between them that the Communications Company was to deliver all plant and machinery belonging to them to the Wireless Company on the Wireless Company agreeing to carry on the business of the Communications Company in India in conjunction with its wireless business. It was also agreed that the Wireless Company was to give one half of the net profits of each year in consideration of the use of plant and the business given to it. The consideration money was not described in the agreement as rent for the use of plant. The agreement did not also contain several of the clauses which a lease of a plant of such character would naturally contain. The Income-tax Officer assessed the Wireless Company on the total income derived from the business and securities without making any allowance for the one half profits which were paid by the Wireless Company to the Communications Company under the agreement. Held, that it was impossible to presume or infer that the half share of profits was being paid only as rent or as a similar payment, in consideration merely of the use of plant. The sum was in truth made payable as part of the consideration in respect of a number of different advantages which the Wireless Company derived from the agreement. The agreement as a whole was much more like one for a joint adventure for a term of years between the Wireless Company and the Communications Company than one for a lease for that period. The consideration money was not therefore allowable to be deducted for the purpose of

[(1914) A C 1001 Ref 1 60 I A 146=64 M L J 612 (P C)]. The provisions of S 13 to the effect that income profits or gains shall be computed in accordance with the method of accounting regularly employed by the assessee do not imply that the assessee must necessarily adopt the financial year as the account period or must adopt a method which would avoid two dates of the 31st March falling within one accounting period. 164 I C 316=1936 L 546. Where an assessee keeps his books on a cash basis and the officer accepts that basis the calculation must be based on actual receipt in the year of computation. 1930 A L J 549=1936 A 279. It is perfectly open to an assessee to change a method of accounting which he has regularly employed for some years at any period in any particular year. There is nothing in the section to prevent him from so doing. He can thus change from a mercantile basis to a cash basis provided that the change is not merely for a casual period. If a change is made it must be at some definite moment of time and must be in good faith. 38 Bom L R 934=1936 B 397. S 13 of the Income tax Act relates to a method of accounting regularly employed by the assessee for his own purposes and does not relate to a method of making up the statutory return for assessment to income tax. The section clearly makes such a method of accounting a compulsory basis of computation unless in the opinion of the Income tax Officer the income profits and gains cannot properly be deduced therefrom. It is not a correct view of the section to say that the Income tax Officer in prima facie entitled to accept the profits shown by the accounts where there is a method of accounting regularly employed by the assessee it is the duty of that officer where there is such a method of accounting to consider whether the income profits and gains can properly be deduced therefrom and to proceed according to his judgment on that question. 65 I A 1=1 L R (1938)

When the income tax authorities had once adopted the method of assessing interest on the accrued or mercantile basis it would not be open to them to turn round and adopt a cash basis when the interest was subsequently realised by the assessee so as to get over the period of limitation prescribed by S 34. Per Manohar Lal J—What the law required the Income tax Officer to see is not a system or account to be kept by the assessee in respect of a particular loan which may have been omitted in that account, but the system of accounting which the assessee regularly adopts for his purposes with respect to all the loans which he discloses. If any loans are deliberately left out from the account regularly kept by the assessee, it would then be open to the Income tax Department to disbelieve the accounts and to proceed in any way they choose by acting under the proviso to S 13 but on exercising a judicial discretion. 185 I C 83=1939 I T R 522. An assessee is no doubt at liberty to adopt any system of account that he likes but it must be one that clearly reflects his income in respect of the fixed period of the previous year and one regularly adopted by him for the purposes of his business. Under the mercantile system entries are made in the accounts on the date not of receipt of expenditure of money but on the date of transaction irrespective of the date on payment ordinarily as soon as the transaction is entered in account books the assessee can be said to have received the sum, whether it is actually realized or not. Where therefore after entering such transaction an assessee credits that sum to suspense account because he is not hopeful of recovering that sum. Held that this crediting to the suspense account is not based on any regularly system and as such the sum credited to suspense account cannot be excluded in computing income tax that is taxable. 168 I C 18. Lah 306=1937 L 338 (F B). Where the assessee a building contractor has been maintaining accounts on the mercantile system of accounting he is liable to be assessed on the profits shown in the accounts even though a portion of the amount spent by him in making the constructions has not been realised. 1939 I T R 513. Where the creditor does not allocate the sum between principal and interest but records it in a general ledger as suspense the assessing officer is justified in the absence of any evidence of appropriation to interest wherein a particular payment did not exceed the amount due in respect of interest in assuming that the ordinary course of business had been followed and treating it as interest. 9 P 240=1930 P 81 (S B). That being so the assessee is entitled to deduct from his estimated income the actual losses that may have been suffered in a particular year and the amount of irrecoverable debts that should have been discovered and could have been discovered in a particular year 1929 A 819=124 I C 467 The procedure of the assessing authority is a judicial one and he ought to act on evidence. But where money is brought into cash account he has the right to require a satisfactory explanation of how and why it came in and in the absence of a satisfactory explanation or if he receives an explanation which he cannot believe the assessing officer is entitled to regard the account as unsatisfactory. If he finds that a money lender is in the habit of showing in his books that loans carrying interest have been repaid without interest or that a loan secured by a note has been renewed by a new note without any provision for interest he is at liberty to consider the accounts unsatisfactory 1937 Lah 919 In the case of an assessment under the Income tax Act the only person who has knowledge of all facts in regard to the maintenance of accounts is the assessee himself. The burden in the first instance is always on him to establish that accounts asked for are not maintained and his attempt to prove that point may always be met by reliance on circumstances indicating that the evidence given or led by him cannot be relied upon. The Income tax Officer is entitled to disbelieve improbable statements and to ask for something more to be produced by the assessee which will satisfy him and the appellate authority that the accounts demanded are not in fact maintained 1941 I T R 225=1941 Oudh 279 See also 1937 Lah 721

LANDS TAKEN OVER IN LIQUIDATION OF DEBTS DUE TO ASSESSEE—PROFIT AND GAIN HOW

COMPUTED—No doubt the value of the land taken over in liquidation of debts due to the assessee as set out in the assessee's books of account may be treated as prima facie evidence of its true value and the assessee normally would have no cause of complaint if the income tax authorities accepted for income tax purposes the value which the assessee himself had put upon his assets in his books of account. But in every case it is incumbent upon the Income tax Officer to ascertain as a matter of fact what are the real profits and gains of the business in the accounting year. Thus if the estimated value of the lands in the accounting year is greater than the principal sum than was lent the income tax authorities will be entitled to treat the balance after deducting an amount equivalent to the loan as representing profits and gains accruing from the transaction, and to assess the same as income chargeable with income tax. But if the estimated value of the lands is less than the amount of the principal sum that has been lent no tax will be chargeable in the accounting year in which the lands are transferred although it may be that the estimated value of the lands in that year exceeds the amount due to the assessee in respect of interest on the loan. But as the assessment is made upon the footing that the transaction has been completed during the accounting year the assessee is not entitled to have the value of the lands reassessed in any other accounting year except that in which the lands are sold by him and until the sale takes place the final adjustment of the assessment must necessarily remain in suspense 12 R 483=1934 R 274 (S B) interest accruing in this manner should be assessed to income tax, it cannot be said that in these circumstances there were no materials before the Income tax Officer which would justify him in concluding that these sums represented interest liable to assessment, which the assessee has regarded as being liquidated by delivery of fresh promissory note. In such cases if the assessee wants to escape assessment for such interest they should so adjust their accounts as to make it clear that the acceptance of a fresh promissory note is not taken as effecting payment of the interest due under the old loan 13 R 231=1935 R 109

Sec 13 Proviso—No burden is imposed on the Income tax authorities to prove by 'positive evidence' that the accounts are unreliable or that the figure at which they assess is the correct figure. In the first place the question of unreliability of accounts is a question of fact and primarily falls for the determination of the Income tax authorities alone. If therefore it is once decided by them that the accounts are fictitious or unreliable their finding cannot be disturbed unless of course it is altogether capricious and injudicial. Secondly the Income tax Officer cannot be fixed with the knowledge of the state of the assessee's account and cannot subsequently be expected to lead evidence to prove the assessee's transactions for the accounting year. It can not be denied that there must be some material before the Income tax Officer on which to base his estimate but no hard and fast rule can be laid down by any Court to define what sort of material is required on which his estimate can be founded. The law nowhere contemplates that the Income tax Officer is a party to the case in the sense in which an ordinary party to a civil litigation is and he cannot be expected to be in possession of such evidence as would be required from an ordinary litigant to refute the case of his adversary. 39 P L R 1028=1937 Lah 721. See also 1941 Oudh 279. Under S 13 proviso of the Income tax Act the Income tax Officer is the sole judge on the question of the possibility of deducing the income from the method of accounting employed by the assessee and if the principle of applying a flat rate is not objected to its reasonableness cannot be made the subject of a reference to the High Court under S 66 (3). 1939 I T R 151. The language of the proviso to S 13 makes it clear that discretion is vested in the Income tax Officer but obviously it was not the intention of the Legislature that such discretion should be arbitrary. What the Court has to consider is whether the Income tax Officer exercised his judgment in arriving at the conclusion that the income profits and gains were not properly deductible from the assessee's regularly kept books of accounts if he did exercise his judgment and did not act arbitrarily then having regard to the language of the proviso his discretion cannot be interfered with. I L R (1940) All 805=1941 A L J 79=1941 All 24. No doubt the Income tax Officer is the sole arbiter for determining under the proviso to S 13 of the Act how the profits are to be computed. But it is a question of law into which the High Court is entitled to inquire whether there is any evidence on which the Income tax Officer could come to the decision that the method of accounting adopted by the assessee is such that the gains could not be computed except by the arbitrary method contemplated by the proviso. If there was no evidence to justify the Income tax Officer's rejection of that method of accounting the assessment should be made under first part of S 13 and not under the proviso. When there is no other reason except the fact of reduced profit to justify the assumption that profits cannot properly be deduced from a method of accounting which admittedly has been regularly employed by the assessee and has been accepted in the past the use of the proviso to S 13 for the purpose of introduction of an arbitrary manner of computing the profits is not justified. 1934 L 876. Under S 13 of the Income tax Act the Income tax Officer has a discretion to accept or reject the assessee's books. If he rejects them as he is entitled to do and if the principle of flat rate thereby becomes applicable the amount of such rate is entirely in the discretion of such officer. The mere fact that a high rate of profits has been applied by the department will not by itself warrant the High Court in directing the Commissioner to state a case. 1938 A L J 507=1938 All 367. When an Income tax Officer is acting under the proviso to S 13 of the Income tax Act he must remember that his judgment must be properly exercised. It is misleading to describe this duty of the Income tax Officer as a discretionary power. The application of a flat rate is not always proper when a truer state of income can be ascertained. 1938 N L J 172=1938 Nag 483. Where operating under the proviso to S 13 the Income tax Officer in dealing with a money lending firm arrives at an income based upon an ascertainment of the average interest percentage on the whole capital it cannot be said that it is an arbitrary way or a mere guess work. Secs 13 and 23 (3) RELATIVE SCOPE AND INTER DEPENDENCE OF —S 13 of the Income tax Act cannot be divorced entirely from S 23 (3) because it is only in an inquiry under S 23 (3) that S 13 can operate. There is no conflict or divorce between Ss 13 and 23 (3). In proper cases the two sections work together. But the proviso to S 13 does not have reference to the manner in which information is obtained either by private inquiries or otherwise. It relates to the manner in which material before an Income tax Officer shall be used. I L R (1940) Kar 309=1940 Sind 92 S 23 is concerned with assessment and S 13 with computation. It is not quite correct to say that an assessment should be made under the proviso to S 13 when the assessee's books are found unreliable and rejected though it must in such circumstances be in accordance with a computation made under the proviso to S 13 1939 I T R 515. All that S 13 really says is that if the method of accounting employed by the assessee is one which does not properly disclose the income profits and gains of the assessee the Income tax Officer can adopt his own method. But in doing so he must have reference to the accounts before him as S 13 does not contemplate the rejection of the accounts. S 13 adds nothing to and takes nothing away from S 23 (3). I L R (1939) Mad 404=1939 Mad 371= (1939) 1 M L J 451. Where no return has been made at all or if a return has been made and the notice given has not been complied with then S 23 (4) applies and the Income tax Officer has to make the assessment to the best of his judgment. But where there has been a return and the notice has been complied with and it is found that the books which are put forward to support the return are unreliable then one goes to S 13. S 13 is not an assessment but a computation section. The proviso to S 13 gives the Income tax Officer as wide if not wider powers than he is given under S 23 (4) and it is not unreasonable because S 23 (4) applies to a case where the assessee does nothing whereas the proviso applies where the assessee does something positively false. 1939 I T R 613=1939 N L J 553 =1940 AC 48.

CI (1) APPLICABILITY—CONDITIONS —The income of an impartible Raj in the hands of the holder is to be assessed on the footing that the income is the income of indi-

The assessee should establish that he is a member of a Hindu undivided family and further that the sum in question has been received by him as such. The relation of cause and effect must exist between the position of the assessee as a member of a Hindu undivided family and the receipt by him of the sum which is a question for the purpose of assessment. If a person who is a member of a Hindu undivided family receives an allowance not because he is such a member but wholly apart from that position, S 14 (1) does not apply. 149 I C 306=1934 A 818. See also 1936 M 67=70 M L J 13 (F B). The Income tax Act clearly contemplates that, in the case of members of a joint Hindu family, the unit of taxation shall be the family itself and not each individual member, i.e. the entire joint income of the members of the family is taxable only in the hands of the family and no part of it is taxable in the hands of the individual coparceners. This provides the clue to the meaning of the words as a member of a Hindu undivided family occurring in S 14 (1) of the Act. S 14 (1) exempts from taxation in the hands of a member of a family income which is liable to taxation in the hands of the family whether it has been so taxed or not. In this view of the matter the burden is on the assessee to show that the sum in respect of which he claims exemption is assessable in the hands of the family. Quære—Whether an allowance paid to a member of an undivided family and not exempted from assessment under S 14 (1) may not be exempted on some other ground. 14 P 785=16 Pat L T 351=1935 P 342 (S B). The expression 'Hindu undivided family' occurring in the Income tax Act connotes a family restricted to the coparcenary, i.e. a family having coparcenary interest in income or property and not a joint family consisting of several members living together irrespective of the existence or non-existence of any coparcenary property. A Hindu cannot be considered to be a member of a coparcenary when he has no sons and when the other members of the family living with him are only females. Even when there are male members who can be coparceners with him there must be ancestral or joint property or property thrown into the common stock before there can be a coparcenary or Hindu undivided family as contemplated by the Income tax Act. The income from property which is neither ancestral nor thrown into the common stock but which has been treated as separate property by the members of the family concerned cannot be regarded as the income of a Hindu undivided family for purposes of income tax. An assessee claiming exemption under S 14 (1) of the Income tax Act should establish that he is a member of a Hindu undivided family and further that the sum in question has been received by him as such. If such a member is assessed to income tax on the amount of the maintenance received by him from the holder of the impartible raj the question for consideration is whether the allowance received by him is a payment made to him as a member of the family. If the assessee is by custom applicable to the estate entitled to be maintained with the revenue of the estate and if the allowance fixed for him is in satisfaction of his right to be so maintained he should be considered to have received it as a member of a Hindu undivided family. Sec. 16: TOTAL INCOME—MEANING.—UNREALISED DECREE —See 1935 A.L.J. 374 =1935 A 378. The scheme of the incometax is that there is to be a statement of the total income of the assessee from which is to be deducted, for the purpose of assessing income-tax, but not of super-tax, nor the purpose of any graduation of income-tax by reference to total income, the amounts of interest on tax free securities and of dividends and shares of profits already taxed. 61 I.A. 209=58 B. 317=66 M.L.J. 643 (P.C.). There is no warrant for holding that unless a minor is admitted to the benefits of a partnership without any contribution to the assets, S 16 (3) (a) (ii) (as amended by the Amending Act of 1937) has no application. There is nothing in the section which justifies the Court in drawing a distinction between a case where a minor's property is with a firm and the case where the minor is allocated a share without any contribution to the assets. The section can only be construed in accordance with the words used in it 54 L.W. 732=1941 Mad. 924=(1941) 2 M.L.J. 891 (S.B.).

of the Indian Income-tax (Amendment) Act, 1939, from assets remaining the property of the settlor or disposer, shall be deemed to be income of the settlor or disposer, and all income arising to any person by virtue of a revocable transfer of assets shall be deemed to be income of the transferor

Provided that for the purposes of this clause a settlement, disposition or transfer shall be deemed to be revocable if it contains any provision for the retransfer directly or indirectly of the income or assets to the settlor, disposer or transferor, or in any way gives the settlor, disposer or transferor a right to reassume power directly or indirectly over the income or assets

Provided further that the expression 'settlement or disposition' shall for the purposes of this clause include any disposition, trust, covenant, agreement, or arrangement, and the expression 'settlor or disposer' in relation to a settlement or disposition shall include any person by whom the settlement or disposition was made

Provided further that this clause shall not apply to any income arising to any person by virtue of the settlement or disposition which is not revocable for a period exceeding six years or during the lifetime of the person and from which income the settlor or disposer derives no direct or indirect benefit but that the settlor shall be liable to be assessed on the said income as and when the power to revoke arises to him

(1) For the purposes of inclusion in the total income of an assessee any dividend shall be deemed to be income of the previous year in which it is paid, credited or distributed or deemed to have been paid, credited or distributed to him, ¹[and shall be increased to such amount as would, if income tax (but not super tax) at the rate applicable to the total income of a company for the financial year in which the dividend is paid, credited or distributed or deemed to have been paid, credited, or distributed, were deducted therefrom, be equal to the amount of the dividend]

Provided that when any portion of the profits and gains of the company out of which such dividend has been paid, credited or distributed or deemed to have been paid, credited or distributed was not liable to income tax in the hands of the company, ¹[the increase to be made] under this section shall be calculated upon only such proportion of the dividend as the amount of the profits and gains of the company liable to income-tax bears to the total profits and gains of the company]

²[(3) In computing the total income of any individual for the purpose of assessment, there shall be included—

(a) so much of the income of a wife or minor child of such individual as arises directly or indirectly—

(i) from the membership of the wife in a firm of which her husband is a partner,

(ii) from the admission of the minor to the benefits of partnership in a firm of which such individual is a partner,

APPLICABILITY—It is the law in force at the time of assessment which governs the assessment and not the law as it was during the year in which the income was earned. Hence the income of the year 1938-1939 accrued before the Amendment Act came into force and derived from assets comprised in revocable instruments of trust and settlement deeds executed by the assessee in favour of his daughters in April 1933 before the Amendment Act has to be deemed to be the income of the assessee under revocable transfers of assets as contemplated by S 16 (1) (c) of the Income tax Act as amended by Act VII of 1939. 1942 1 T R 1=55 L W 15=(1942) 1 M L J 16 (S B) See also 1941 Pat 599 transactions are assumed to be valid and the income arising from the transferred assets is the income not of the husband but of the wife who received the assets from the husband by transfer. The section in no way affects the validity of the transfer but only provides a method by which the income of the property transferred is to be assessed and it provides that such income will be included in the husband's income for purposes of taxation and will not be taxed separately. 20 Pat 202=21 Pat L T 1096=1940 P W N 1016=1941 Pat 59 (F B). There is no reason why S 16 (3) (iii) should not be held to apply to a wife's income arising from assets transferred to her by her husband before the Amending Act of 1937 came into force. The sub section is to have effect in respect of any income chargeable to income tax for any year subsequent to that date. The wording of the sub section is wide enough to cover not only income from assets transferred by a husband to his wife after the passing of the Act but also income arising from such assets transferred before the passing of the Act. 20 Pat 202 (F B). See also (1942) 1

M L J 16. Where an assessee who is proceeded under S 16 (3) (a) (iii) in respect of the income of his wife makes no effort to prove that moneys appearing in his wife's account in his books have come from other sources than himself, it is open to the Income tax authorities to infer that the moneys were received by her from her husband otherwise than for adequate consideration and treat the interest thereon as part of the assessee's (husband's) income for purposes of S 16 (3) (a) (iii). There is no natural presumption in the case of the assets of a married Hindu lady that they are transferred to her by her husband out of love or affection. It is not an uncommon thing for a husband to put money in the name of his wife without ever intending to give it to her. 1942 I T R 71=55 L W 75=(1942) 1 M L J 164.

See 16 (3) (iii) (as amended by Act IV of 1937) S 16 (3) (iii) and S 17 APPLICABILITY—TRANSFER BY HUSBAND TO WIFE ON ACCOUNT OF NATURAL LOVE AND AFFECTION.—The word consideration in S 17 (3) (iii) of the Income tax Act as amended in 1937 is used in its legal sense and must be given a meaning similar to that which it has in the Contract Act. A transfer by a husband to his wife on account of natural love and affection only without any monetary consideration passing from the wife to her husband cannot be held to be a transfer for consideration and in any case it is not a transfer for adequate consideration within the meaning of S 17 (3) (iii). Transfers by a husband to his wife of assets otherwise than for adequate consideration cover all transfers in the nature of gifts or transfers made purely on the ground of natural love

(2) Where there is included in the total income of any assessee any income (including income from a share in an unregistered firm, if assessed as such) exempted from tax by or under the provisions of this Act, the income-tax excluding super-tax payable by the assessee shall be an amount bearing to the total amount of the income-tax excluding super-tax which would have been payable on the total income had no part of it been exempted the same proportion as the unexempted portion of the total income bears to the total income]

(4) Where any income exempted from tax under clause (c) of sub-section (2) of section 14 which has been taken into account under sub-section (2) or sub-section (3) of this section as part of the total income of an assessee for the purpose of determining the income-tax or super-tax payable by him is in a subsequent year brought into or received in British India by the assessee and becomes chargeable with tax accordingly, the tax including super-tax payable by the assessee on his total income of that subsequent year shall be—

(a) the amount which bears to the total amount of the tax including super-tax which would have been payable on his total income as reduced by the amount of the income so brought into or received in British India had such reduced income been his total income the same proportion as his total income bears to such reduced income, or

(b) the amount which bears to the total amount of the tax including super-tax which would have been payable on the amount of the income so brought into or received in British India had such income been his total income the same proportion as his total income bears to the amount of the income so brought into or received in British India, whichever is the greater]

REQUIREMENT—Where an Insurance Company (not incorporated in British India) has failed to make a return of the total income under S 22 (1), the Income tax Officer is justified in applying R 35 of the Income tax Rules made under S 59 of the Act. To apply that rule he has first of all to find out what is the total income profits or gains of the assessee company. Where for the purpose the officer had no other reliable data except a triennial valuation he is entitled to assume that the profits for the year in question could be the average annual profits shown in the triennial valuation after deducting the premiums paid on participating policies. 55 P 637=33 Bom L R 807=1931 B 418. Besides owning a firm at Benares the two partners had an interest in numerous firms bearing the same name and carrying on business at different parts of the country. In the year of account it was found that the firm made no profits but the firms in which the partners were interested made considerable profits. The question having been raised whether the firm could be assessed in respect of those profits held that the partners were members of the other firms only in their individual capacity the firm itself being incapable of being a partner and that the assessment of the firm with reference to the profits of the other firm did not arise. 1932 A L J 999. See also 62 C 133=39 C W N 253. The assessee is entitled to have two previous years, one for the head office and one for the branches but in his assessment he must add the results of the two each year, and make his return on this basis. He cannot accumulate the results of two years of the branches and account for them in one year's results of the main office. 1937 L 308.

See 22 (2)—[See also notes under S 23.] Where an assessee received a notice from the Income tax Officer under S 22 (2) requiring him to make a return in the prescribed form and verified in the prescribed manner setting forth his total income during the previous year and the assessee does neither fill the form nor verify such form in the prescribed manner but instead writes a letter intimating his non liability to be taxed under the Act it must be taken that he has failed to make a return under S 22 (2) within the meaning of S 23 (4). 133 I C 753=1931 P 306 (F B). The Income tax Officer issued by means of registered post acknowledgment due a notice under S 22 (2). The notice was delivered by the postal preon to the assessee's son who was found to be a minor and possessed of ordinary intelligence. The son was living with his father and when on previous occasions notices had to be served on the assessee they were taken delivery by his son. Held that in proper circumstances a minor son might be an agent of his father and that the service of the notice was good service. 54 A 548=1932 A 374. A notice under S 22 (2) was issued to the assessee who was an undivided Hindu family and in that notice as in all such notices the assessee was required to submit a return and four capacities were indicated one above the other and the notice went to the assessee without any one of these capacities having been scored out. The assessee was in no doubt as to which capacity of his was under investigation. He had been assessed in previous years as an undivided Hindu family and he submitted his return as an undivided undivided Hindu family and without scoring out any of the four capacities. Held that the notice issued by the department could not be said to be invalid or

SCOPE AND APPLICABILITY — S 22 (3) is intended to enable a person who has made a return, to correct a wrong statement or supply an omission discovered in the return subsequent to its submission. PROCEDURE—Per Curiam—It is not sufficient for an assessee to suggest to the Commissioner the questions of law. It is for the Commissioner to find the facts first and then to state the point of law which arises out of those facts and on which he desires an opinion. He may then if he likes give his own opinion on the case 1927 P 390. The combined notice under Ss 22 (4) and 23 (2) is not illegal 1934 N 183. The issue of a notice under Ss 22 (4) and 23 (2) presupposes the existence of a valid return having been made 1934 N 183.

SECS 22 (4) AND 23 (4) CALLING OF EVIDENCE FOR INQUIRY—POWER OF INCOME TAX OFFICER—It is the requirement of the Income tax Officer which is to be satisfied by the assessee under sub S (4) of S 22 and not what the assessee thinks the Income tax Officer should in the circumstances of the case have required. In other words the final arbiter of what is required is the Income tax Officer and not the assessee. It would therefore be entirely for the Income tax authorities to determine what evidence they consider relevant for the purposes of their enquiry and to contend that a certain piece of evidence which they considered to be relevant was not relevant at all to the matter at issue would be in a way to encroach upon their domain. Similarly if an Income tax Officer calls for all the previous accounts relating to the various businesses conducted by the assessee but the assessee withholds some of them and the Income tax Officer utilizes the accounts produced by the assessee in making his estimate, it cannot be argued that those accounts which were not produced by the assessee were not required for the purpose of the assessment. The withholding of some of the account books which the assessee had been called upon to produce amounts therefore to a non-compliance with the terms of the notice issued under sub-S (4) of S 22 and entails all the penalties laid down in sub S (4) of S 23 (53 A 451 Dist 52 M 194 (F B) Rel on) I L R 1938 Lah 551=1938 Lah 551 See also 1938 Rang 287.

income profits and gains for the purposes of Ss 10, 11 and 12. It deals with 'return' and not primarily with accounts. If the return is 'correct and complete' then the income tax officer has to 'assess the total income of the assessee' and determine the sum payable by him 'on the basis of such return'. He is bound to do this and he has no option to do anything else. 1938 N L J 172=1938 Nag 485. When once the Income tax Officer has made the assessment under S 23 (1) that assessment is settled. On the general principles of law governing estoppel, neither the subject nor the Crown ought to be at liberty to go behind the amount of profits and gains when once determined by any competent authority. The assessment once made according to the provisions of the Income tax Act can only be reopened in accordance with the provisions of the Act. 177 I C 255=1938 Cal 557 (S B). See also 1937 Lah 721. Ordinarily and apart from the two cases coming within the purview of S 34 of the Income tax Act 1922 viz (1) where income has escaped assessment in any year and (2) where income has been assessed at too low a rate in any year there is no time limit prescribed or necessarily implied in the Act within which an assessment must be made or completed and an assessment made after the expiry of the tax year is valid. See Simble. Even in the two cases to which S 34 applies if a notice is served within one year after the expiry of the tax year the subsequent assessment or re-assessment may be made at any time and not necessarily within the year following the tax year. 61 I A 10=61 C 285=38 C W N 319=66 M L J 121 (P C). The mere fact that a certain income has not suffered tax because of a device adopted by the assessee would not enable the department to assess the same in subsequent years when the device becomes apparent to the department. It is only when according to a particular system adopted by the assessee allocations are made not in the year when the amount is received but in later years that the income so allocated can be said to be the income liable to be considered in the assessment year. 163 I C 324=1936 A L J 549=1936 A 279. See 23 (2). When an assessee has made a return which he knows is a bona fide return and in which he has put in his total income to the best of his then information there might yet be some omission on his part due to some cause or other. The issue of a notice under S 23 (2) is mandatory under certain circumstances. When the Income tax Officer has reason to believe that the return filed by the assessee is incorrect or incomplete and if he is not satisfied with the correctness of the assessee's return the law requires that he shall serve a notice under S 23 (2) which then becomes imperative. The Income tax Officer cannot proceed to make the best judgment assessment on the ground that there has been failure to comply with notice under S 22 (4) because if a valid notice under S 23 (4) is issued the assessee might remove suspicions of the officer and satisfy him that his return is correct and complete. They are for the benefit of the assessee who has to choose as to which of the options he will exercise. The law did not intend to give that option to the Income tax Department, and it is not for the Income tax Officer to decide which of the alternatives he will give to the assessee. Although in a previous year of assessment, a decision is arrived at after investigation and inquiry that certain deductions ought to be made it is still open to the Income tax Officer to reopen the question in a subsequent year of assessment, if fresh facts come to light which on investigation of the Income tax Officer to come to a different conclusion from that of his predecessors. The Income tax Officers are to be guided by principles of natural justice and cannot arbitrarily change the assessment 1930 L 605. See also 1930 M 209=58 M L J 250 (F B) 1933 O 396. The order of an Income tax Officer in a particular year allowing the salaries of two of the partners as business deductions does not bind his successors in a subsequent year 14 I C 198=1911 L 341. In an ordinary case, particulars in respect of which and the ground on which the Income tax Officer thinks that the statement was either not genuine or complete ought to be given in a notice especially in cases where the objection is that the accounts are incomplete. But where the finding is that the accounts of the assessee in previous years as well as in the current year were not genuine but merely cooked for income tax purposes the Income tax Officer is under no obligation either in law or in common fairness to set out all the reasons which led him to come to such a conclusion 7 R 281=1929 R 102. Where the Income tax Officer makes an assessment to the best of his judgment under S 23 (4) of the Act he must do so according to rules of reason and justice and state in his order the materials or reasons on which his judgment is founded 7 R 669. See also 8 R 203. Per Sulaiman C J.—In a proceeding under S 23 (3) there can be no objection in the Income tax Officer or the Assistant Commissioner acting upon the assessment for the previous year if no better evidence is forthcoming even though that assessment might have been made to the best of his judgment under S 23 (4). The fact that during the previous year the income was assessed on a certain figure is certainly some evidence on which he can proceed even independently of any presumption of continuity. If the assessee fails to produce satisfactory evidence he fails to displace the previous year's estimate, which is certainly admissible against him 58 A 200=1936 A 286 (S B). In every case before an ex parte assessment is made under S 23 (4) the Income tax Officer must invariably conduct such "local inquiry" to ascertain the income of the proposed assessee for the "previous year" as the circumstances of the case may warrant and he must place on the record "a note of the details and results of his inquiry" in order that the Commissioner of Income tax under S 33

Per Sulaiman, C J — Enquiries made by the Income tax Officer from the people of the district, after proceedings under S 23 (3) had started of which no notice had been given to the assessee, are illegal and not authorised by sub-S (3). Similarly enquiries made by the Assistant Commissioner during the hearing of the appeal behind the back of the assessee are not justified by the provisions of sub S (3) and the result of such private enquiries should not be made the basis of any assessment. 48 A 200=1936 A 286 (S B).

Where the Income tax Officer issued a combined notice under Ss 22 (4) and 23 (2) requiring the assessee to produce the accounts and the notice was served on the gumasta of the assessee held there was sufficient compliance with the law as to notice. The word person clearly includes a firm as provided by the General Clauses Act, 1897 and when the return is made on behalf of the firm by a partner it is the firm that is the person who makes the return and any proper service on the firm as authorised by S 63 (2) will be a proper service. 48 M 602=49 M L J 124. A combined notice was served upon the assessee under S 22 (4) to produce accounts and under S 23 (2) either to attend or to produce or cause to be produced any evidence in support of his return. A certain date was fixed. The assessee obtained an adjournment until a certain date. On the adjourned date the assessee applied for further adjournment on ground of illness. The Income tax Officer refused the application and proceeded ex parte under S 23 (4) to make the assessment to the best of his judgment. Held that the officer was not bound to announce before hand how he proposed to deal with an application for an adjournment. The assessee had already obtained one adjournment until a certain date. It was his duty if he desired a further adjournment, to apply on a date earlier than the adjourned date. The assessee in fact delayed his application for further adjournment until the very day appointed for compliance with the orders. Even if this could be said to be a case of exercising a judicial discretion there was no ground for suggesting that it was wrongly exercised. Secs. 23 (3) and (4).—See also Notes under S 13 supra. Under S 23 (3) of the Income tax Act, if the account books of the assessee are found to be unreliable and are rejected, and the assessee fails to produce evidence on which the Income tax Officer can make a proper assessment of the assessee's income the Income-tax Officer must himself take steps to procure material for the purpose if it is not already in his possession. He can call witnesses and make his own inquiries and when he has material on which he can assess he must consider it and make an assessment to the best of his judgment. The only difference between such an assessment under S 23 (3) and an assessment under S 23 (4) is that the Act contemplates a more summary method when the Income tax Officer is acting under S 23 (4). I L R (1939) Mad 404=1939 Mad 371=(1939) 1 M L J 45. In making an assessment under S 23 (3), there is nothing in the Act which requires the Income-tax Officer to disclose to the assessee the material on which he proposes to act or to refer to it in his order but natural justice requires that he should draw the assessee's attention to any such material and give him a reasonable opportunity to meet the case arising therefrom before making his order. Further an order under S 23 (3) is appealable and hence it should contain with sufficient precision the materials on which the assessment is based so that the appellate authority may form a just opinion on the fairness of the assessment. The assessee is, however, not entitled to demand copies of the confidential statements in the possession of the Income tax Officer or to demand that his informants should be called by the Income-tax Officer, so that they may be cross examined by the assessee and the Income tax Officer is not a Court in the usual meaning of the term when he is holding an inquiry under S 23 (3). Under S 37, he has merely certain powers of a Civil Court for the purposes of Ch IV. S 23 (3) is not exhaustive and there is implicit in the section in its context, the power to collect and act on other "evidence" in a wide sense of the term, it is not necessary to invoke the proviso to S 13 of the

If the officer had been of opinion that the transactions in suspense accounts were not temporary deposits but loan transactions resulting in profits to the assessee, he might have included such profits under S 23 (3) in the assessment made by him. He must not act dishonestly, vindictively or capriciously because he must exercise judgment in the matter. He must make what he honestly believes to be a fair estimate of the proper figure of assessment, and for this purpose he must be able to take into consideration local knowledge and reports in regard to the assessee's circumstances, and his own knowledge of previous returns by and assessments of the assessee, and all other matters which he thinks will assist him in arriving at a fair and proper estimate, and though there must necessarily be guess work in the matter it must be honest guess work. In that sense too, the assessment must be to some extent arbitrary. S 23 (4) places the officer in the position of a person whose decision as to amount is final and subject to no appeal but where decision, if it can be shown to have been arrived at without an honest exercise of judgment may be revised or reviewed by the Commissioner under the powers conferred upon that official by S 33. There is no justification in the language of the Act for holding that an assessment made by an officer under S 23 (4) without conducting a local inquiry and without recording the details and results of that inquiry, cannot have been made to the best of his judgment within the meaning of the section [1931 R 194 (F B), Appr, 1937 P C 133=(1937) 2 M L J 43 (P C) See also 1938 Lah 867 There is no foundation for the suggestion that because an earlier Income tax Officer was disposed to fasten on one parti

[1923 R 108 (F B) Foll] 159 I C 646=1935 L 858. The word 'assessment' in S 23 (4) means determining the total taxable income and the sum payable on it. An assessment in default is a very serious thing, and unless it is open to the Court to insist that notices under Ss 23 (2) and 22 (4) are given so as to afford reasonable opportunity to an assessee to comply with their requirements, the honest and diligent taxpayer will have no security for fair treatment and no remedy in the absence of fair treatment. Where a notice is received at 3 P.M. on 18th of a month requiring the assessee to produce any evidence on which he might rely in support of his return on the 19th, the notice is not such a reasonable notice as law requires affording the assessee proper opportunity to comply with its return. 134 I C 1275=1931 O 729 (S B). Before the Income tax Officer can obtain jurisdiction to assess summarily under S 23 (4), it is not necessary that there must be a failure in each of the cases mentioned in S 23 (4). 133 I C 753=1931 P 306 (F B). Where an assessee received a notice from the Income tax Officer under S 22 requiring him to make a return in the prescribed form and verified in the prescribed manner setting forth his total income during the previous year and the assessee does neither fill the form, nor verify such form in the prescribed manner but instead writes a letter intimating his non liability to be taxed under the Act, it must be taken that he has failed to make a return under S 22 (2) within the meaning of S 23 (4). 133 I C 753=1931 P 306 (F B). Where the return under S 22 (2) did not bear verification or the signature of the assessee, there is no proper return and the Income tax Officer could impose best judgment assessment under S 23 (4). 56 A 418=1934 A L J 47=1934 A 930. Where the Income-tax Officer comes to the conclusion that the assessee has been withholding books of account which are not produced in accordance with a notice under S 22 (4), he is entitled to make an assessment to the best of his judgment under S 23 (4). More so when other documents have been withheld by the assessee and there has been deliberate misrepresentation on his part to the Income tax authorities. 1936 L 750. See also 1938 Lah 551=40 P L R 321. A return which deliberately failed to comply with the rule contained in S 22 (2) that the return was to be of the total income of the assessee is no return at all within the meaning of S 22 (2). So where an assessee who had four branches sent in a return which did not mention two of them and the omission was not corrected in spite of time granted for it, the Income-tax Officer is entitled to make an assessment to the best of his judgment under S 23 (4). 1933 A L J 49=1933 A 197. The assesses were asked by the Income tax Officer by notice under S 22 (4) to produce their books of account on the date fixed in the notice. They entered appearance but produced no account books. An adjournment was given to enable the parties to produce the evidence in their possession. On the date fixed for hearing, on the officer requesting them to produce the evidence, the parties turned round saying that they had no evidence. They did not make any affidavit in support of their statement, nor did they try to convince the officer in any other way of the truth of their statement. books and does not produce them he can be assessed in default under S 23 (4), what ever other evidence he might choose to put forward in support of his return. Other evidence, in the absence of the books can hardly satisfy a reasonable man. But it was never intended by the Act that failure to produce books, prior to the filing of a return, should deprive the assessee of his right to have the return duly and properly inquired into. A return, which by S 22 (3), is to be deemed to be a return made in due time cannot be treated stillborn because of a previous failure to comply with a notice under S 22 (4). 134 I C 1275 = 1931 C 729 (S B). Where the assessee does not produce any vouchers or any other material which may enable a detailed check of his account books, the value of the account books produced by the assessee is, therefore, no higher than his mere word. 1936 L 856. Where the books of account of the assessee did not give a complete and correct version of the actual business and though the Income tax Officer accepted them to a certain extent, he added a certain sum to represent the amount of omissions. Held, that, in making an assessment, the Income-tax Officer should proceed on judicial principles, but as in the case under consideration there was evidence before him to show that books could not be relied upon his inclusion of certain sum for omission was justifiable. 1936 L 836. In a case in which an assessee has duly filed a return of the "previous year" and has also on receipt of a notice under S 23 (2) produced evidence in support of the return including some but not all of his account books, and the Income tax Officer is not satisfied with such evidence, he can at that stage issue a notice under S 22 (4) calling upon the assessee to produce his complete account books for the "previous year" and for three years prior thereto, and on the assessee's failure to do so assess him under S 23 (4). 12 L 129 = 1931 L 87 (F B). Per Tel Chand and Dalip Singh JJ—"The legislature should take the earliest opportunity of reviewing the position and, if possible, of redrafting and rearranging the same. This seems all the more necessary as the interpretation which the Court has felt bound to put on these sections is likely to work a great injustice in some cases." 12 L 129. In making the "assessment to the best of judgment" under S 23 (4), the Income tax Officer does not possess absolutely arbitrary authority to assess at any figure he likes and the Income-tax Officer though not bound by strict judicial principles, should be guided by the rules of justice equity and good conscience. 12 L 129. See also 7 R 609, 8 R 203, 1933 O 396. But see 9 R 281 contra. The expression "to the best of

A judicial discretion presupposes that power has been confided to the tribunal to act or refrain from acting in a particular way in certain proved or admitted circumstances, whereas under the section if the the assessee has not chosen to state an account, the officer shall make an assessment and he has no discretion in the matter. 9 R 281 = 1931 R 191 (F B). See also 132 I C 564, 159 I C 606 = 1935 L 853. If he fails to do this he must put up with the estimate by the officers made with the best of his ability, though it is true that the officer is not entitled to make a guess without evidence 9 P 240=1930 P 81 (F B). Where the accounts or documents or evidence produced by the assessee do not furnish sufficient material for an assessment and in particular if they so far from revealing the income intentionally falsify the income, it is open to the Income-tax Officer to make an assessment under S 23 (4), for the assessee has failed to comply with all the terms of the notice. The question whether there has been a compliance with the terms of the notice is not a question of law but a question of fact. Further, whether the evidence before the Income-tax Officer is sufficient to justify him in rejecting the accounts of the assessee is also a question of fact 137 I C 732=1932 O 164 Where the books of account of the assessee are not produced and the Assistant Commissioner makes an assessment to the best of his judgment if the enhancement is based on materials from which he could reasonably conclude, though only on a rough estimate that the income is of a certain specified amount, such an enhancement is legal. But if on the other hand the enhancement is wholly arbitrary and based on no material, it would be illegal 7 R 645 Although a summary assessment was higher than that of the previous year which was based on the returns submitted by the assessee, if it is based on some evidence, it cannot be said it is arbitrary and so illegal 1932 P 166=140 I C 712 But see also 9 R 281 An Income tax Officer of the principal place of business is not bound to accept the report of the Income-tax Officer of a place where assessee is carrying on a branch business, nor is he bound to refer the matter back to the latter officer for further enquiry. The former can assess the assessee according to his judgment under S 23 (4) 1930 A L J 1=1930 49 (F B) Per Mokery, J.—"It is the ordinary privilege of a subject that he shall not be taxed on his income without a proper investigation. It is open to the assessee to prove what his income is before he is assessed on the income. If it had been the intention of the legislature that the mere word of the Taxing Officer should be final, one should find a clear indication of that in the language of the statute 1930 A 49 (F B). Where the Income tax Officer does not get proper material on which to find out the true income of an assessee it is in the interests of the State to guess the income of the assessee. The assessee cannot complain that he has been overtaxed if owing to his own failure the officer is not able to do justice towards him. But where the proper materials are before the Officer, he should utilise them and make an assessment under S 23 (3) which is liable to be re-examined in appeal. When an assessment is made more or less on matters which have been guessed out, there cannot be a proper appeal. assessment 9 P 172=10 Pat L T 769=1930 P 14 An appeal is shut out under S 30 not by way of punishment to the assessee, but it is shut out because there are no materials which can be properly placed before an appellate Income tax Officer. On reading, therefore, the two Ss 22 and 23, it is abundantly clear that a right to make an assessment to the best of the officer's judgment cannot be made after an enquiry has been started so as to shut out an appeal simply because at any time after the enquiry has been started, the assessee fails to produce an account as asked for 1930 A L J 1=1930 A 49 (F B) But see 12 L 125 (F B) cited supra. In the case of an assessment under S 23 (4) the only question of law that could arise is whether there were any materials upon which the Income-tax Officer concerned could find that there was no sufficient cause excusing the assessee from complying with the requirements of law as prescribed by S 27. In cases of this kind the giving of positive evidence by the department about facts which are within the special knowledge of the opposite party is almost out of question, and the materials which come within the description of circumstantial evidence or general probabilities which would justify a presumption under S 114 of the Evidence Act, are materials upon which the Court can come to a finding just as properly as it could upon positive evidence 1941 O W N 757=1941 Oudh 445. See also I L R (1941) All 1=1941 A L J 12=1940 All 530. The jurisdiction exercised by the High Court under the Income tax Act is a special jurisdiction and is consequently circumscribed within the limits specified in the statute. The power of revising, reviewing or interfering in any other manner with an assessment made under S 23 (4) being nowhere conferred upon the High Court expressly or impliedly by the Act no such power can be exercised merely by virtue of the general inherent jurisdiction of the High Court, if any I L R (1938) Lah 477=40 P L R 308=1938 Lah 545.

STATING CASE TO HIGH COURT—A point of law would invariably be involved in an ex parte assessment which is not shown to have been made to the best of his judgment by the Income-tax Officer, so as to make it the subject of a reference to and decision by the High Court under S 66 (2) or (3) 1934 N 183. See also 1941 A L J 12=I L R (1941) All 1=1940 All 530, A I R 1940 O 362. When a person without being called upon under S 22 (2) to furnish a return of his income for the previous year, voluntarily files a return of such income in the prescribed form and duly verified in the prescribed manner, the question whether the return voluntarily filed is a valid return or not is an important question of law and it is necessary to state the case to the High Court 10 L 773=31 Panj L R 23=1930 L 246 (2). An assessee whose return is disbelieved and who is summarily taxed with out being given notice under S 23 (2) can apply to the High Court to have a case stated under S 66 (2), as the question raised challenges the very foundation of the assessment 29 C W N 23=1925 C 173. If an assessee disputes in his statement the authority of the Income tax Department to adopt a flat rate, then a question of law may arise for consideration of the High Court as to whether in the absence of other reliable data as to income of an assessee from a certain source an Income tax Officer is justified in making an assessment based on a formula deduced by taking a certain percentage of the gross turnover as representing a fair margin of profit. But if assessee admits that he has nothing to say if some percentage is adopted to find out income from a particular source, it is not open to him to urge merely the question of the reasonableness of the extent of the percentage adopted 1929 N 243. Assessee called upon to attend and produce evidence—Assessment under S 13 (proviso)—Appeal rejected—Application to Commissioner to state a case rejected—Application to High Court 6 Pat L T 500=1930 P 194. Although the Act does not specifically provide for granting adjournments to comply with the terms of the notice served on the assessee under Ss 22 (4) and 23 (2) in practice adjournments are generally allowed for sufficient cause on the principle of justice, equity and good conscience. If therefore for any reason, a prayer for adjournment has to be refused a definite order, either oral or written must be passed by the officer and communicated to the assessee or his agent when he is present, before proceeding with the drastic action of summarily assessing him under S 23 (4). Failure on the part of the Income tax Officer in observing the aforesaid elementary principle of judicial procedure does considerably detract from the technical legality of the summary assessment order recorded by him against the non-applicant 1930 M 113 (S B) Rel on J 1934 N 183 (2). When there is ample evidence upon which the Income tax Officer can find that there was no sufficient cause preventing the assessee from producing account books requisitioned under S 22 (2) and it appears upon that ground he had refused to cancel the assessment made under S 23 (4) and his order is upheld by the Assistant Commissioner on appeal for the same reason, there is no question of law arising under the circumstances for the purposes of S 66 (2) 9 R 21=1931 R 97. See also 1932 O 164. The question whether an assessment made by the Income-tax Officer under S 23 (4) is valid or not is not a question of law that arises or can arise out of an order of the Assistant Commissioner passed under S. 31 and such a question cannot therefore be made the ground for an order by the High Court under S. 66 (1) requiring the Commissioner to state a case. But see 133 I.C. 753=1931 P. 306 (F.B.) holding that the Commissioner may be required to state a case raising the question of law whether or not the facts established are such as to bring the case within the ambit of proviso to S. 30 (1). APPEAL.—An Assistant Commissioner should bear the assessee or his counsel and should then decide whether the case really fell under S. 23 (4). He should not merely scrutinize the memorandum of appeal and the assessment order of the Income-tax Officer behind the back of the assessee or his counsel and dismiss the appeal on the ground that it is not allowable. 54 A. 496=1932 A. 390. See also 101 I.C. 321=1927 L. 5, 133 I.C. 753=1931 P. 306 (F.B.). A person who has been assessed under S. 23 (4), is not entitled to prefer an appeal to the Assistant Commissioner on the ground that he was not liable to be assessed under the Act. Proviso to S. 30 (1) is bar to such an appeal. [10 L. 596 (F.B.), Foll] 133 I.C. 753=1931 P. 306 (F.B.).

SECS 23 (4) AND 27.—Under S. 23 (4), the fact of failure to comply with the notice under S. 22 (4) makes it compulsory on the officer to make an assessment, and under S. 27 unless the officer is satisfied that the assessee had not a reasonable opportunity to comply or was prevented by sufficient cause from complying with that notice, the assessment must stand. That he had sufficient cause for not complying with another notice is irrelevant. 41 C.W.N. 719=1977 P.C. 177=(1917) 2 V.L.J. 43 (P.C.).

SECS 23 (4), 30—34 AND 35. FINAL ASSESSMENT UNDER S. 23 (4).—WHEN CAN BE REOPENED—POWERS OF COMMISSIONER.—It is true that the Act nowhere imposes any limit of time within which an assessment under provisions of Ss. 27 and 29 is to be made and that the service of the notice of demand can therefore be made at any time. But it is not true that after a final assessment under those sections has been made, the Income-tax Officer can go on making fresh computations and issuing fresh notices of demand to the end of all time. When once a final assessment is arrived at, it cannot be reopened except in the circumstances detailed in S. 34 and S. 35 of the Act and within the time limited by those sections. It is quite impossible to suppose that the Income-tax Officer may in every kind of circumstance and after any lapse of time make fresh assessment or issue fresh notices of demand, or that the Commissioner can direct him to do so. The Commissioner's powers under S. 33 can only be exercised subject to the provisions of the Act, of which the provisions in Ss. 34 and 35 are in this respect of the greatest importance. Where therefore an assessment is made under S. 23 (4) of a registered firm assessing it only to income tax, the assessment is final in respect of income tax and super tax. If on the discovery of a mistake the registration is cancelled by the Commissioner under S. 33, the order assessing the firm to super tax more than one year after final assessment under S. 23 (4) is beyond the powers of Income-tax Officer. 65 I.A. 236=1 L.R. (1938) Bom. 487=42 C.W.N. 873=1938 O.W.N. 621=1938 P.C. 175=(1938) 2 M.L.J. 115 (P.C.). Where an assessment has been made not in form only but in fact, not ostensibly but actually and in good faith under S. 23 (4) of the Act and where the Assistant Commissioner, upon consideration of the facts, has found that the assessment was properly so made, the proviso to S. 30 bars an appeal, and the order of the Assistant Commissioner rejecting the appeal is not an order under S. 31 inasmuch as he has not "disposed of" the appeal. Hence there can be no question of law referable to the High Court under sub S. (2) or sub S. (3) of S. 66. 1940 All. 530.

Sec. 24—Scope of section 55 M 818= 62 M L J 638 (F B) The word 'assessee' has not been used in S 24 in the strict sense of a person by whom income tax is payable but means and signifies the person against whom assessment proceedings have been started and who has been asked to give a return of his total income during the previous year under S 22 (2) 182 I C 270= 1939 Cal 196 (S B) Applicability of section—Condition of set-off—Company having several businesses—Losses in some which have ceased to exist—If can be set off against—Profits or gains of others 68 M L J 379 (F B) Where the assessee paid certain commission to his Banker for realising interest on Government securities on his behalf held that such payment could not constitute "loss" of profits or gains in the sense the expression has been used in S 24 9 Pat 139=1929 P 419 Although the Act nowhere in terms authorizes the deduction of bad debts of a business such a deduction is necessarily allowable But they must be bad debts incurred in that particular year For the purpose of computing yearly profits and gains, each year is a separate self-contained period of time, in regard to which profits earned or losses sustained before its commencement are irrelevant. It thus follows that a debt which had in fact become a bad debt before the commencement of a particular year could not properly be deducted in ascertaining the profits of that year, because the loss had not been sustained in that year. 59 I A 290=1932 P C 175=63 M L J 861 (P C) [1929 N 50 Reversed. See also notes under S 10, Cl (2) (12)]. So long as there is any ray of hope left to recover a debt however dim it may be, and so long as a debt is in the process of realization it cannot be said that it has become irrecoverable and hence bad. 168 I C 549=1937 L 338 (F B). Upon a dissolution of partnership a partner's share of the losses for several preceding years cannot be accumulated and thrown into the scale against the income of another partner for a particular year. No principle of writing off bad debts could justify such a course whether in the year following the dissolution or in some subsequent year in which the partner's insolvency has crystallized. The "bad debt" would not if good have come in to swell the taxable profits of the other partner. Hence where the assessee is made to bear an ex partner's share of loss in another partnership business by reason of the ex partner's inability to meet it and the assessee transfers such loss to his own business and treats it as a bad debt, he is not entitled to set off such amount against the income profits or gains as loss in his business within the meaning of S 24. It cannot be considered as a bad debt made by the assessee in the course of his business. [1934 M 557 (S B) Affirm.] 63 I A 233=71 M L J 772 (P C). A debt due from a limited company can be treated as irrecoverable and a bad debt for the purposes of income tax and as a business loss under S 24 of the Income tax Act even when the debtor company is not actually wound up or has not ceased to be a going concern. The question is one of fact to be decided on the relevant facts of the particular case. 61 I A 318=58 B 579=67 M L J 213 (P C). Debt due from a joint stock company cannot be said to be a bad debt, so long as the company is carrying on business as a going concern. See 56 B 457=34 Bom L R 1235=1932 B 609. Whether a debt is a bad debt and if so at what point of time it became a bad debt are questions of fact to be decided in the event of dispute by the appropriate tribunal and not by the ipse dixit of any one else. The assessee has no option of declaring a debt as bad. The mere fact that a debt was incurred at a date beyond the period of limitation will not of itself make the debt a bad debt. Still less will it fix the date at which it became a bad debt. A statute barred debt is not necessarily barred necessarily good. The age of the debt is no doubt a relevant matter to take into consideration. In every case it is a question of fact to be determined after consideration of all relevant circumstances. 59 I A 290=1932 P C 178=64 M L J 861 (P C). See also 1941 I T R 635, 1933 S 148. that there has been a loss that is a loss of profits or gains 26 N L R 75=1930 N 183 S 24 should be read in as liberal a manner as possible Where there is a bona fide loss a man can always set it off against his income profits or gains under the same head and in exceptional cases where the loss is so heavy that it more than counterbalances the whole of the profits under that head of income in order that the assessee may obtain his full relief Held that the amount of rent of a certain property which was occupied by a tenant who in spite of the efforts of the assessee (landlord) persisted in making default and which amount the landlord in a subsequent litigation had to forego in order to secure the eviction of the tenant is not liable to be taken into account as the income of the assessee in arriving at the total sum on which the assessment is to be made 132 I C 1=32 P L R 418=1931 L 656 Salt trade—Deposit of securities for deferring payment—System of deferred payment abolished—Assessee selling securities and incurring loss—Right to set-off 165 I C 617=1936 L 45° Assessee having business in Bombay and Rangoon—Assessment in 1937 1938—Loss in Rangoon business—Claim to set-off—Rangoon ceasing to be part of British India after 31st March 1937 does not deprive assessee of right to set-off—Facts to be taken into account as in previous year 1940 I T R 1 Assessee having three shops—One stopped in accounting year—Losses in same made up of bad debts interest and miscellaneous items of expenses—Right to set-off against profits of other shops—Bad debts—When to be wiped out 1941 I T R 635

LAND PURCHASED BY COPARCENARY IN PARTITION—LAND ALLOTTED TO ASSESSEE—SUBSEQUENT SALE—LOSS CANNOT BE CLAIMED AS SET-OFF—A land was purchased in 1920 by the coparcenary of which the assessee was a member, in partnership with a stranger to the coparcenary In 1924 in a partition between the coparceners this property was allotted to assessee He sold it in 1928 The assessee claimed that he was entitled to deduct from his income the loss which he had sustained i.e. the difference between the price at which the land was purchased in 1920 and the price at which it was sold in 1928 Held that the purchase was an investment of capital in land and not a purchase made for the purpose of business in buying and selling land and when it came to the assessee it formed part of his capital The assessee was not therefore entitled to claim the loss as set-off 1933 S 145=145 I C 20°

LOSS SUSTAINED OWING TO PARTNER'S DEFAULT—DEDUCTION or —The mere absence in the Act of a provision for loss in respect of a time-barred debt is no ground for disallowing it, but whether such loss could be claimed in any particular year or not is a question of fact depending upon the circumstances of each case Where, therefore an assessee is being taxed personally, it is open to him to say that on a settlement of accounts of the old partnership he treated the amount due by a partner as a loan made by him personally to that partner and that the loss which he consequently sustained on account of the failure of such partner to pay back loan is a loss which he is entitled to claim credit for in assessing the profit which he has made in respect of all kinds of business carried on by him in the year of assessment This is permissible to him under S 24 (1932 P C 178 Rel on) 1933 S 145=2° S L R 243

Sec 24 and 26—See 1937 S 201 Whether a firm is registered or unregistered partnership does not obstruct or defeat the right of a partner to an adjustment on account of his share of loss in the firm whether the set-off be against other profits under the same head of income within the meaning of S 6 of the Act or under a different head So long as the set-off is of the share of the loss made by the firm in the year of account, the adjustment does not involve the taking of any general or other account between the partners, or indeed any examination of the accounts of the individual partners in the books of the firm. 63 I A 238=59 M 716=71 M L J 72 (P C) S 24 of the Income tax Act which enables an assessee to set off the loss of profits under any head mentioned in S 6 against the profits received under any other head can only apply in a case falling under S 26 (2) to the successor who is the only assessee Under S 26 (2), it is peremptory that where there has been succession to a business it is the successor, and not the predecessor who is to be assessed Whether by doing so one or the other is deprived of an advantage which he would otherwise have enjoyed under S 24 is irrelevant S 24 does not apply by any means to every assessment it only applies where there is a profit under one head and a loss under another tax is assessed on salaries in the year in which they are earned. If the section were to apply, it would lead to this very strange and unreasonable result that an assessee who chooses to relinquish his appointment in the 11th month of the year would escape payment of income tax on the salary earned by him in these 11 months; whereas, if he continued for one month longer, admittedly he would be assessable on his salary in the whole of the 12 months. 1935 M. 953=69 M L J 611 (S.B.). be passed if (1) the members of the family have separated in status from each other and (2) there has been a partition of all the joint family property For the purposes of the Income-tax Act members of an undivided Hindu family cannot enter into a partnership in respect of a portion of joint property which they have partitioned among themselves while retaining the status of an undivided family and keeping the rest of the property joint 1 L R (1938) All 632=1938 A L J 610=1938 All 452 S 25 A does not of necessity demand a partition by metes and bounds But it contemplates that there should be firstly a finding by the Income tax Commissioner that the Hindu joint family as such has disrupted and secondly a finding that the joint family property has been divided among the various members or groups of members in definite portions And it is not sufficient that a mere disruption of the Hindu family should be proved There must also be whether by consent or otherwise a definite ascertainment of the shares of the different members composing the Hindu family 154 I C 191=1935 L 81 (S B) Under S 25 A of the Income-tax Act the Income tax Officer has a discretion to conduct an inquiry

His decision is a decision on a question of pure fact, and so long as his discretion is not exercised arbitrarily or fancifully, and there are before him some materials on which he can arrive at the conclusion at which he has arrived, his decision cannot be canvassed before the High Court on an application under S. 66, because no question of law can arise thereout. 177 I.C. 582=1938 Rang L.R. 130=1938 Rang. 154. A mere recital of a prior division of property in a will, even though it be a registered one, is no evidence of division and cannot confer title. And such a document cannot be deemed by itself to be evidence of a disruption of a Hindu undivided family within the meaning of S. 25 A. 1933 L. 815. The dissolution or existence of a joint Hindu family depends on the intention of the members thereof and is a question of fact. It is therefore open to the Income-tax Officer to decide on the facts whether the intention to dissolve is present or absent. 1933 L. 827. When persons claim to constitute a partnership firm for the registration of which they make an application, the Income-tax Officer may call upon them to prove by evidence that they are what they claim to be before he proceeds further with the application and it is consequently open to him to find against declarations contained in a partnership deed and reiterated by the parties before him that a Hindu joint family still exists. 83 P.L.R. 947=1932 L. 575. Although the income earned in a certain year forms the material out of which the assessment is made, it is the making of the assessment and the date thereof that determines the applicability of the law and procedure governing such assessment. S. 25-A therefore applies to a case where the section is passed before the commencement of the year in which the assessment takes place, even though it may not have been passed when the income under assessment was earned. 138 I.C. 187=1932 L. 575. The Income-tax Officer is not ordinarily bound by the correctness of any previous orders passed by him, but when the Income-tax Officer has passed an order under S. 25 A (1) clearly finding after an enquiry that there has been a separation among the members of a Hindu joint family, he is precluded by sub S. (3) of S. 25 A from making any fresh enquiry into the question of separation or jointness. The power to go behind the prior order is expressly withdrawn by sub S. (3) of S. 25 A. 31 N.L.R. Secs 25 A and 26 APPLICABILITY—S 25 A covers a case of joint Hindu family in which there has been a disruption and consequent partition but no continuance of the business either by the members of the joint Hindu family on contractual basis or by some of them alone or jointly with others or even by strangers. Where the business has been discontinued S 25 A will apply but where it is continued S 26 will apply. In cases under S 26 the shares of partners are not to be included in the assessment on the family 167 I C 936—1937 L 172 (S B). Where on the breaking of a joint family, the separated members immediately form themselves into a firm, S 26 will come into operation, and the assessment on the firm should be made under that section and not under S 25 A of the Act 1935 L 681

SCOPE AND APPLICABILITY—HINDU UNDIVIDED FAMILY—IF CAN BE SUCCEEDED BY LIMITED COMPANY—So far as the scheme of the Income tax Act goes each section deals only with the matters specified therein and goes no further, and each section completely covers the matter with which it deals. S 25 A applies only to those cases where the question involved is one of pure and simple disruption of a Hindu undivided family unattended by conversion, or transformation into a new entity. In the same manner, S 26 is intended to meet completely those cases which are specified in sub Ss (1) and (2) thereof respectively, in whatever way the situation envisaged there may arise. If, therefore, in the place of a Hindu undivided family, which is a person, a new firm is constituted or a new company brought into existence which again is a person it cannot be urged that the provisions of sub S (1) or sub S (2), as the case may be, are not attracted, simply because there exists a section which expressly deals with the disruption of a Hindu undivided family. A Hindu undivided family and a firm or a limited company are mutually exclusive and cannot co-exist. Accordingly without disruption the conversion of a Hindu undivided family into a firm or a company in its entirety is unconceivable and so long as it remains undivided, the question of succession to it as a whole by another entity does not arise. But is it possible under the income-tax law that a person conducting several businesses may be succeeded in a particular business which is divisible from the other businesses of his as a Hindu undivided as a person can in the matter of such business be succeeded by a company to that extent. The assessment on the successor is to be made under S 26 (2) of the Act as if he had been carrying on the business, profession or vocation throughout the previous year and as if he had received the whole of the profits for that year 18 Lah 325—39 P L R 934—1937 Lah 830

Secs 25 A and 26 A. JOINT HINDU FAMILY—NOT "FIRM"—The very definition of a "firm" involves the idea of contractual relationship between several persons and when the finding of fact of the Income tax Officer is that there is no contractual relationship between these persons but the relationship between them is that of joint Hindu family relationship based on status and not on contract there is no firm in existence which he could possibly register under the provisions of S 26 A 1933 L 827. Under S 25 A the Income-tax Officer does not inquire into a question of separation or disruption of the family, notional or otherwise, he has to inquire into the question of whether the joint family property has in fact been divided. Where an application under S 26 A for registration of a joint Hindu family as a firm was filed, and the assesses nowhere suggested that joint family existed alongside the new partnership, and there was no evidence that the family was divided. Held, the Income-tax Officer was right in coming to the conclusion that the partnership transaction was not a genuine one 164 I C 799—1936 P 476

Secs 25 A and 66 (3)—The questions whether S 25 A requires actual partition of the family property by metes and bounds as a condition precedent to the recognition of a partition under S 25 A, and whether a finding of the Income tax Officer is supported by any evidence, are questions of law 1933 L 952

CONSTITUTED.—The assessee is entitled to an adjudication of the question whether a new firm has been constituted so as to attract the operation of S 26 and he could not be deprived of this legal right, merely on the ground that an adjudication on this question would tend to affect the decision of the Income tax Officer under S 26-A in a case in which no appeal is competent. S 26-A no doubt deals with assessment after partition of an undivided family, but it does not exclude the possibility of the members so separated to constitute themselves into a firm so as to bring their case within the ambit of S 26. 1935 L 275=156 I C 833, 18 L 325. The assessee who were a joint Hindu family consisting of a father and his seven sons and who were hitherto assessed as an undivided family, separated during the year of account, and shortly thereafter the father and his seven sons formed themselves into a firm and applied to the Income tax Officer to register the firm under S 26-A of the Income tax Act, and to make the assessment under S 26 (2). Held, (1) that there had been no succession within the meaning of S 26 (2) of the Act, and the Income tax Officer was therefore not bound to register the firm under S 26-A and to assess under S 26 (2), (2) that the Income tax Officer was bound to make the assessment under S 26-A (2) of the total income received by the joint family as such and to hold each member liable for his proportionate share of the tax so assessed. 40 Bom L R 452=1938 Bom 350.

See 26 (1) and (2).—Derbyshire, C J—S 26 (1) contemplates a business which continues in existence both during the period of the predecessor and during the period of the successor. When there is no such business in existence continuously during the life of the predecessor and of the successor, S 26 (1) can have no application. The provision in S 26 (2) as regards succession in business is designed merely with a view to preserve, in a proper case where there is a succession, a measure upon which the successor may be assessed in the first year of his proprietorship of the business, and that is at the root of the necessity for there being a real continuity of the business. The object being to measure the income of the successor by the past history of the business, it is essential that there should be a very close identity between the business in the former proprietorship and the business in the present proprietorship. There can be no succession under S 26 (2) to a part only of the business. 41 C W N 132=1 L R (1937) 2 Cal 7. The words "change in the constitution of a firm" mean a change in its partners or personal but not a change in the proportion in which the partners divided the profits. 177 I C 192=1938 Cal 562. It is open to any person to reduce the incidence of his income tax in any legitimate way, and the mere fact that a reconstitution of the firm has reduced the incidence of the tax is by itself no evidence that the reconstitution is not real. At the time of the reconstitution of a firm the new capital was introduced. Nor was there the valuation of assets. After registration had been refused the firm reverted to its old constitution. Held, that there were not sufficient grounds for supposing that the reconstitution was a bogus arrangement. 178 I C 404=40 P L R 639=1938 Lah 194.

Costello, J—There cannot, generally speaking, be a succession to a part of a business, but that does not imply that if what is succeeded to is not the same extent of trade or even does not include a particular line or set of customers, it necessarily follows that there cannot be a succession to the trade or business. The word "succession" does cover any case of transfer by one trader to another of the right to that benefit which arises from connection and reputation. If the business is one business throughout, even though in one year it operates in more places than one, whereas in the succeeding year it operates only in one of those places, the matter certainly falls within the purview of S 26 (1), even if it cannot be said that there is a succession. A mere change in the composition or constitution of the firm is within the contemplation of S 26 (1). 41 C W N 132.

Panckridge J—Under S 26 (2), it is not necessary to determine to whom the good will, the marks and the firm name legally belong. The important thing is that new firm does in fact use them in their business, and each one is a factor, to be taken into account in deciding whether that business was one, in respect of which the new firm should be regarded as the successor of the old. successor to a business profession or vocation is under a statutory liability imposed by S 26 (2) in respect of the profits earned in the previous year by the person he succeeds. The fact that the business was carried on in two places in the previous year and in one of those places only in the succeeding year does not of itself make the business carried on during the second season a different business from that carried on in the first season. The question depends ultimately on the identity of the business carried on by the assessee with the business to which he is said to have succeeded, and the admissions and conduct of the assessee with regard to the business are of the greatest assistance in arriving at a decision on the point. The fact that no tangible assets have passed from the old firm to the new appears to be matter of very little importance. S 26 (1) has only application when a change occurs in the constitution of a firm or a firm is newly constituted during the currency of a partnership. The sub-section has no application where the new or succeeding firm comes into existence after the term of the former partnership has come to an end owing to effluxion of time. 41 C W N 132—I L R (1937) 2 Cal 7.

Per Mukherjee J—The process of assessment begins with the service of notice under S 22 (2), and it continues until some order of assessment is made. If therefore after aforesaid notice has been received by the assessee and before filing a return he dies, and is succeeded by a person it would be competent to the Income tax Officer to find, if the evidence justified the finding, that the person on whom notice was served had carried on a business and was succeeded in that capacity by another person. 182 I C 270=1939 Cal 196 (S B). The object of S 26 (2) is to assess the successor on the profits of the business which he is deemed constructively to carry on during the previous year. The language of the section itself shows that the assessment is based on the assumption that the successor received the entire profits of previous year. S 26 (2) has therefore no application, when there is loss in the year of accounting in the business in respect to which succession has taken place, and there are no profits for which the successor could be taxed. 182 I C 270=1939 Cal 196 (F B). see also 45 C W N 681.

Sec 26 (2) MEANING OF TERMS—"BUSINESS"—Business in S 26 (2) is not business in the abstract, but business in concrete. 138 I C 673=1932 S 189. The words any business in S 26 do not mean each and every business carried on by the former owner of a business. Where a company owning several businesses transfers one business to another company, the latter company is successor to the former and is assessable in respect of that business. 55 M 832=1932 M 434=63 M L J 15 (S B). The expression "where at the time of making an assessment under S 23" merely means "when the time comes to make an assessment." 12 P 5=1933 P 123. The plain meaning of the words "succeeded in such capacity by another person" is that if there is a business profession or occupation which was formerly carried on by a person and that property has now been taken directly by another person who continues the business the transference of ownership whether it be by operation of law or inter vivos is a succession. The real test of whether there has been a succession or not is to be decided by an examination of the business. Where a business was continued after a change of ownership, held that there was a succession to a business. 12 P 5=14 Pat L T 171=1933 P 123. See also 138 I C 673=1932 S 189. 168 I C 209=1937 Rang 102 (S B). Money lending business by joint family—Partition—Business recommended by some of the members—No succession. 11 R 501=148 I C 594=1934 R 13 (S B). The requisites of succession under S 26 (2) of the Income tax Act are (1) there must be a business in existence prior to the date of an assessment being made, and (2) on the date of the making of the assessment it must be carried on by a person different to the person who carried it on prior to the date of the assessment, that is to say, the business must be the same but the person carrying it on must be different. What the section requires is that it should be the same business and not business of the same nature.

Where certain persons have for several years possessed the monopoly of supplying labour to the Port Trust, not jointly, but under different contracts, and finding that their monopoly is about to come to an end owing to the adoption by the Port Trust of the policy of inviting tender, and in order to secure continuity for their business they enter into a partnership and put in their tender for the contract, and being successful find themselves in a position to continue the business without a break, it is not correct to say that to continue to supply labour to the Port Trust as before, or that what they do after that date is the same business. The prior business of the partners must be deemed to come to an end on the constitution of the partnership and thereafter a new and separate partnership is started to carry on a business of the same nature. There is consequently no "succession" within the meaning of S 26 (2). 1937 M 316=(1937) 1 M L J 619 (F B). See also 32 S L R 203=1938 Sind 33. Transfer of agency by one agent to another. Where a notice has been given under S 22 (2) to a person to furnish within the time specified a return in the prescribed form the process of assessment has begun and continues until some order of assessment is made. The words at the time of making the assessment in S 26 (2) therefore mean in the course of the process of assessment. Where at the date of his death a person carrying on business has been served with a notice under S 22 (2) and the time for furnishing the return had not expired and no return had been made a person who succeeds to that business is taxable under S 26 (2). 61 I A 312=13 P 607 =67 M L J 422 (P C). S 26 (2) operates not merely to fix the liability to pay tax but governs also the process of computation of the tax. A person may be succeeded by another in a business in the sense that it is the same sort of business although not the same business. 138 I C 673=1932 S 189. The real test to determine whether there is "succession to business" within the meaning of S 26 (2) of the Act, is the identity of the two businesses and the time intervening between the closing down of the old business and the opening of the new one in its place. The delay is a question of degree and in some cases the delay may mean a cesser of profit making operations and never any real cessation of the business at all. But where that time intervening between the two businesses is so great that "succession to old business" cannot be inferred there is no "succession to business" within the meaning of S 26 (2) of the Act. 1937 Rang L R 26=1937 R 102 (S B).

EFFECT OF —S 26 (2) is evidently intended to secure to Government a tax based on the earnings of a business for a full year notwithstanding the transfer of the business from one person to another before the expiry of the year provided of course that the business is continued by the transferee. If the transferor and the transferee are separately taxed for profits earned by them during the period each of them carries on business the incident of taxation would be seriously affected and if the income for the whole year though enjoyed by two different persons is liable to be taxed at the end of the year, it is but proper that the person who is in possession of the business at the end of the year should be made responsible for it leaving it to him to settle the equities between him and the transferor with regard to the apportionment of such taxation. 138 I C 673=1932 1932 S 189.

OBJECT OF SECTION —S 26 is designed for the purpose of making somebody assessable to income tax and the whole scheme of the Act is not to assess two people at the same time, but is to find somebody who is either properly assessable or more conveniently assessable and what S 26 (2) says is that where a person who was not the former owner of a company is found to be owning that company in the year of assessment, that person is to be assessed. That is not only a convenient course, but seems to be a just one. Upon whom the burden is ultimately to fall is a matter of arrangement between the vendor company and the purchaser company. 55 M 832=63 M L J 15 (S B).

A PERSON includes the Secretary of State when engaged in enterprises of a commercial nature. The acquisition by him of a railway in the exercise of the statutory powers vested in him under the Railways Act would nevertheless make him the successor of the company in respect of such railway. 138 I C 673=1932 S 189.

"CAPACITY" EXPLAINED—By capacity is meant a position enabling one to do some thing. 138 I C 673=1932 S 189.

ESCAPING ASSESSMENT—Though it may appear somewhat unreasonable to the Court that a company should escape assessment of tax on a profit which it has admittedly made, yet, if the law, as it stands enables the company to avoid payment of the tax, the Court is bound to give effect to it. Therefore where the Government acquires a private concern whom it pays profit for the previous nine months and keeps to itself profit for the last three months of the year, S 26 (2) applies to such a case and the company can not be assessed for the profits given to it by the Government. 138 I C 673=1932 S 189.

Where on the death of a partner his widow is taken in as a partner and his minor children, three sons and three daughters, are admitted to the benefits of the partnership as a body and not as individuals, and an application is made under S 26-A of the Act for registration of the new firm, stating that the widow is entitled to a six annas share, though under the deed her share is really only two annas the remaining four annas being intended for the benefit of the minor children who are admitted to the benefits of the partnership as a body, it cannot be said that the shares of the minors are specified with certainty so as to comply with S 26-A of the Act. EFFECT OF—S 26 (2) is evidently intended to secure to Government a tax based on the earnings of a business for a full year notwithstanding the transfer of the business from one person to another before the expiry of the year provided of course that the business is continued by the transferee. If the transferor and the transferee are separately taxed for profits earned by them during the period each of them carries on business the incident of taxation would be seriously affected and if the income for the whole year though enjoyed by two different persons is liable to be taxed at the end of the year, it is but proper that the person who is in possession of the business at the end of the year should be made responsible for it leaving it to him to settle the equities between him and the transferor with regard to the apportionment of such taxation. 138 I C 673=1932 S 189

OBJECT OF SECTION—S 26 is designed for the purpose of making somebody assessable to income tax, and the whole scheme of the Act is not to assess two people at the same time, but is to find somebody who is either properly assessable or more conveniently assessable, and what S 26 (2) says is that where a person who was not the former owner of a company is found to be owning that company in the year of assessment that person is to be assessed. That is not only a convenient course, but seems to be a just one. Upon whom the burden is ultimately to fall is a matter of arrangement between the vendor company and the purchaser company. 55 M 832=63 M L J 15 (S B)

S. 26-A refusing to register a firm was not appealable before the 11th September, 1933, on which date S. 30 (1), as amended by the Amending Act XVIII of 1933, came into force. A proceeding under S. 26-A is a proceeding different from proceedings under S. 23 of the Act; hence an order under S. 26 A not being made in a proceeding which is an essential part of another proceeding in respect of which appeal was specially provided by S. 30 (1) was not appealable on that ground also. (1940) Kar. 299. S. 30 provides for appeals against certain specific orders and it necessarily follows that orders passed under sections which are not mentioned in S. 30, are not appealable and are therefore final in the sense that they cannot be reopened at any subsequent stage. The Income-tax Act is a special enactment which gives the authorities specific powers for purposes of assessment and these powers can only be attacked in the manner prescribed by the Act. 164 I.C. 1018=1936 L. 621. An individual partner may appeal from the assessment of the firm of which he is a partner; but he cannot, in an appeal from an order assessing him personally ask for a re-determination of the question of the assessment of the firm and the income which has come to his share according to that assessment. 1941 I.T.R. 190. An assessee is not competent to withdraw an appeal presented by him under S. 30. I.L.R. (1938) Lah. 359=1938 Lah. 741.

Sec. 30 (1). PROVISO: EFFECT.—The proviso to S. 30 (1) has not the effect of taking away a right of appeal in cases where the assessee does not challenge the assessment levied on him under S. 23, Cl. (4), but only challenges his liability to be taxed in a different capacity from that possessed by him and more so when such a capacity has been duly recognised by the Income-tax Officer. Even if the proviso be open to a double construction, the proviso should be so interpreted as to exclude an appeal only in respect of an assessment levied under S. 23, Cl. (4) and not to an appeal of this nature. 28 S.L.R. 174=1934 S. 46. See also 1940 I.T.R. 421=1940 Sind 214; 15 Luck 132=1940 Oudh 52 (denial of liability before Income-tax Officer, if pre-requisite to right of appeal). PROVISO—SCOPE AND EFFECT.—Refusal of Income-tax Officer to make fresh assessment under S. 27—Appealability—Effect of cancellation of order of assessment under S. 23 (4). 116 I.C. 479=1929 R. 8. A person who has been assessed under S. 23 (4) is not entitled to prefer an appeal to the Assistant Commissioner on the ground that he was not liable to be assessed under the Act. Assistant Commissioner in appeal from the order of assessment, the latter is perfectly justified in refusing to allow it to be raised when it involves the production and hearing of fresh evidence. The High Court will not interfere with the discretion of the Income tax authorities in refusing permission to the assessee to adduce fresh evidence. 59 M. 263=1936 M. 776=71 M. L. J. 35 (1 B.). See also 62 C. 1011. An order confirming an assessment within the meaning of S. 31 of the Act means an order having reference to the assessment and affirming it. Where an appeal is dismissed by the Assistant Commissioner of Income-tax on the ground that it is barred by limitation, without even considering the question of assessment, the order of dismissal is not an order confirming the assessment under S. 31, for the purposes of S. 66 (2) of the Income tax Act. S. 66 (2) does not apply to such a case and the High Court cannot direct the Commissioner to state a case. 155 I. C. 124=1935 A. L. J. 845=1935 All. 572.

An application for copy of an order passed by the Assistant Commissioner of Income tax falls within paragraph 5 of Art. 1 (a) of Sch. II of the Court-Fees Act and requires a Court-fee of two annas. 11 P. 40=1912 P. 103. When the Assistant Commissioner in an appeal to him from the order of assessment of the Income tax Officer reduces the amount of income under one head but increases the amount under another, the net result, however, being a reduction both of the total income assessed and the tax, it is not an order "enhancing the assessment," though it may involve an enhancement of a particular item of income and no appeal lies to the Commissioner under S. 32 against that order. 36 L. W. 868=63 M. L. J. 805 (1 B.).

Secs. 32 and 33.—Where the assessee files an appeal from the order of assessment by the Income tax Officer the Commissioner can take action under S. 31 and proceed to enhance the assessment after having disposed of the assessee's appeal under S. 32 but the exercise of the powers of review under S. 33 would however, be subject to the limitation provided in S. 31. The Commissioner when dealing with the appeal under S. 32 can pass orders only with respect to the subject matter of the appeal, and cannot suo motu proceed to enhance an assessment which he has the power to do under S. 31 of the Act. If the Commissioner calls for the record of a case after disposing of the appeal preferred to him against the order of an Assistant Commissioner he would be exercising powers of review in respect of proceedings which have been taken by an authority subordinate to him and not in respect of proceedings taken by himself as a Court of appeal. 30 P. in the absence of any order which the High Court can inquire into. The ultimate authority on the question whether the proceedings before the Assistant Commissioner are ultra vires or not is the High Court and not the Commissioner. 1933 S. 158=145 I.C. 145. It is competent for a Civil Court to make a declaration that the registration of the partnership instrument was null and void, and this course may be taken by the Court notwithstanding any concurrent remedy in that behalf under the Income-tax Act, that may be open to the plaintiff and therefore notwithstanding the fact that the plaintiff applied as assessee to the Commissioner of Income-tax for cancellation of the registration under S. 33 and that the application was rejected, the Court is entitled to make the declaration. 1933 R. 229=11 R. 380 Quare.—When the Commissioner of Income tax has exercised his powers of revision under S. 33 of the Income-tax Act with reference to one point, whether it is open to him to exercise his powers of revision again in respect of the same order in respect of other points which do not affect the previous one? 1940 I.T.R. 437.

LIMITATION—Even though no limitation of time is prescribed for interference by way of revision under S. 33, the Court would almost always incline in favour of taking the view that such exercise of power should be within a reasonable time of the proceedings sought to be revised, reasonable time being computed by the Court having regard to all the other provisions of the Act, to the facts of the particular case and the special features, if any, of it. 1927 M.W.N. 611 (F.B.). SECS 33 AND 34: ORDER OF INCOME-TAX OFFICER UNDER Ss 22 AND 34—REMEDY OF AGGRIEVED PARTY.—If the orders of the Income-tax Officer under S. 22 and S. 34 are without jurisdiction, the Act provides the Commissioner with powers of revision under S. 33. If the Commissioner passes an order under S. 33 which the assessee considers prejudicial to him, he can avail himself of the provisions of S. 66 (2) of the Act as amended by Act XVIII of 1933. The contention that an application under S. 66 would entail delay, even if correct, does not justify the assessee in neglecting the remedy provided by the Act and in seeking instead to call in aid the extraordinary powers of the High Court to issue a writ of prohibition against the Income-tax Commissioner. 62 C 1011.

SECS 33, 34 AND 35: COMMISSIONER'S POWERS.—The Commissioner's powers under S. 33 of the Act are subject to the time limit of one year mentioned in Ss 34 and 35. Hence where the order of the Income-tax Officer is revised and cancelled by the Commissioner more than a year after it was passed, the cancellation is illegal. 28 S.L.R. 174=149 I.C. 1204=1934 Sind 16.

SECS 33 AND 66: ORDER ARISING UNDER S. 33—COMMISSIONER NOT OBLIGED TO STATE CASE.—There is no express obligation upon the Commissioner to state a case on an order arising under S. 33; nor has the High Court power to order him to do so under S. 45, Specific Relief Act. The Commissioner has a discretionary power vested in him. [7 R 511, Foll.: 49 M. 725 (S.B.), Diss 1 58 B 361=36 Bom.L.R. 23=1934 B. 62. See also 1939 I.T.R. 506, 1940 I.T.R. 437. The Income tax Act does not contemplate any fresh notice to be served upon the successor inasmuch as the proceedings once started against the predecessor continue against the successor even if the predecessor has ceased to exist 18 L 325. Either the firm itself is liable to be assessed or its individual partners 46 L W 901=(1937) 2 M L J 928 (F B). No jurisdiction is given to either of these officers to make a new assessment for the purpose of taxing the whole of that assessment. It is therefore not open to the Assistant Commissioner on appeal to grant any relief other than setting aside the extra assessment by the Income tax Officer. 1931 A L J 878. When an assessment has already been made in respect of the previous accounting year under S 34 the question whether all income which had accrued and had escaped assessment had been assessed to tax or not depends upon the investigation of facts of the case. 1931 C 761 (S B). Per Rankin C J—It may be that income cannot be said to have escaped assessment except in the case where an assessment has been made which does not include the income. At all events income has not escaped assessment if there are pending at the time proceedings for the assessment of the assessee's income which have not yet terminated in a final assessment thereof. 35 C W N 310=58 C 909=1931 C 545 (S B). (Original proceeding against the assessee kept alive on account of a subsequent transfer of proceeding to a special officer being declared invalid). Where income has been assessed in the hands of an assessee to whom it was subsequently found not to belong the income must be said to have escaped assessment within the meaning of S 34. 8 L 354=1927 L 248. When the Income tax Officer takes action under S 34 of the Indian Income tax Act for the purpose of raising the rate of tax on the ground that the rate originally fixed was too low he is not bound to reopen the whole assessment and reassess the income that is to determine afresh the correct taxable income of the assessee and enquiry need not go beyond the facts on which the raising of the rate depends. 1930 M 126=58 M L J 23 (F B). Where a creditor had, prior to the year of assessment received a sum of money from a debtor and he transferred the sum to interest account in the assessment year, and such sum was not taxed before nor was it treated as non taxable held that it must be treated as interest received in the assessment year and its assessment is not time barred. 9 P 240=1930 P 81 (S B).

ESCAPED ASSESSMENT—BURDEN OF PROOF.—Under S 34 the onus does not lie on the income tax authorities to satisfy the Court upon facts that income, profits and gains had escaped assessment. The effect of so holding would be that in every case in which proceedings are taken under S 34 the assessee would have an appeal on facts. Under S 34 if the income tax authorities have not misdirected themselves in law, and there were materials before the income tax authorities upon which they could find that income, profits and gains had in fact escaped assessment, the High Court will not interfere or disturb the finding of fact at which the income tax authorities have arrived. (1935 B 410 Diss.) 14 R 228=1936 R 219 (S B). See also 59 B 626=37 Bom L R 697=1935 B 410. It is always open to an assessee under S 34 to show in any way he can that the income profits or gains alleged to have escaped assessment have not in truth and in fact escaped and for this purpose it is not true that that income profits or gains have necessarily escaped assessment, because they have not been assessed under the right head. But if it is once shown that income has escaped assessment, the assessee cannot under S 34 resist proceedings to assess it merely by showing that other income profits or gains have been assessed at too high a figure. 34 C W N 816=1930 C 627 (F B).

NOTICE.—The Income tax Officer can issue a notice under S 34 even after an assessment has become final in appeal before the Assistant Commissioner of Income tax. A notice under the section can be issued without proving by admissible evidence before the issue of such notice that such and such income and such sources have escaped assessment. All that is necessary is that the Income tax Officer must have reason to believe that income has escaped assessment. 1942 I T R 79. There is no standard form of notice prescribed in S 34 and all that the section requires is that a notice containing all or any of the requirements which may be included in a notice under S 22 (2) shall be served. So where the so-called notice was in the form of a letter by the Officer but it contained all the details provided for in a notice the notice must be treated as sufficient and regular in form. 61 C 132=38 C W N 204=1934 C 515. It is the Income tax Officer who is to decide whether income chargeable to tax has escaped assessment; he is the person charged with the duty of taking action under S 34 where such action ought to be taken. Apart from the assessee no person other than the Income tax Officer can by reason of S 54 of the Act have any knowledge of the first assessment and upon what data it was based and none else is in a position to decide whether income has escaped assessment or not. In deciding whether income has escaped assessment the Income tax Officer must not act on suspicion or conjecture, he must decide the questions upon a fair and reasonable consideration of such information and materials as were available to him. He need not hold a formal enquiry but he should indicate to the assessee the nature of the alleged escapement so as to enable him to identify it and explain it if he can. In other words he should give the assessee an opportunity of being heard before he decides against him that income has escaped assessment and proceeds to upset the settled assessment. If the Income tax Officer is satisfied with the assessee's explanation there is an end of the matter. On the other hand, if after a fair consideration of all the information and materials before him, including the explanation the assessee has given, or the failure of assessee to give any explanation of the alleged escapement, the Income-tax Officer acting as a responsible man comes to the conclusion that income has escaped assessment he may say so, and once he has so decided he may proceed under S. 34. Coming to a decision after giving an opportunity to the assessee of his being heard is a condition precedent to taking action under S. 34. The Income-tax Officer cannot proceed to act under S. 34 by merely stating that he has 'reason to believe' that income has escaped assessment 177 I. C. 255=1938 Cal. 557 (S.B.). Where the assessee company has succeeded to the business in issue after notice duly served under S. 34 upon the predecessor, the former is liable to be assessed without fresh notice being served upon it under the section. The Income-tax Act does not contemplate any fresh notice to be served upon the successor, inasmuch as the proceedings once started against the predecessor continue against the successor, even if the predecessor has ceased to exist 18 Lah. 325=1937 Lah. 830. When a notice under S. 34 has been served on a person and he has made a return in response thereto and then died, the proceedings can be continued by the issue of notices under Ss. 22 (4) and 23 (2) to the successor of such person. It is not necessary that the proceedings against the successor should be started de novo. 57 M.

357=1934 M. 63=66 M.L.J. 17 (F.B.). When income has escaped assessment, an assessment can be made under S. 34 on the successor of the person who, if no succession had taken place, would have been liable. Such an assessment is not invalidated by the fact that the succession took place after the close of the year in which he escaped assessment. See 57 Mad. 357=66 M.L.J. 17: 1936 Lah. 750. The issue of a fresh notice under S. 34 does not do away with the previous assessment under S. 23 (4). 1931 A. L.J. 1109=1932 A. 83. S. 34 itself mentions that notice under S. 34 may contain all or any of the requirements which may be included in notice under S. 22 (2). So when a notice under S. 34 is issued another notice under S. 22 (2) is not necessary. 1936 L. 750

RE-ASSESSMENT—WHEN CAN BE MADE.—Income in respect of which a final and conclusive assessment has been made cannot be subjected to re-assessment except when the assessment has been fixed at too low a rate either under S. 34, or under any other section of the Income-tax Act. 14 R. 228=1936 R. 219 (S.B.). But see also 146 I.C. 300=1933 Rang. 350, 1933 Sind 158.

Sees. 34 and 23 (4).—When once a final assessment is arrived at, it cannot be re-opened except in the circumstances detailed in S. 34 and S. 35 of the Act and within the time limited by those sections. This evidently implies that even the "best judgment" assessment can be re-opened under S. 34 1938 Lah. 867. See also 1938 P. C. 175=65 I. A. 236.

Sees. 34 and 35.—An assessment cannot be said to become final and conclusive until the time limited for altering the assessment under S. 34 or 35 of the Act has expired; and until such time an assessment may be corrected in a proper case. 1 L.R. (1939) Bom. 445=41 Bom.L.R. 652=1939 Bom. 362. Ss. 34 and 35 are not mutually exclusive, and the fact that a mistake might be remedied under S. 35 is no reason why the assessment should not be altered under S. 34, if the case falls within that section. 1 L.R. Sec 40 —S. 40 is not a charging section. It is only a machinery section enabling the Income-tax Officer to assess the trustees or guardians as representing their beneficiaries or wards if they so choose. But it is not obligatory for the officer so to do and the section cannot be invoked to prevent him from assessing on other basis. 55 M. 891=1932 M. 378=62 M. L. J. 600 (F. B.). Section 40 was enacted to provide for certain special cases without its affecting in any way the liability to be taxed under the charging sections. It is merely a machinery section and not a charging section and making the trustees liable for beneficiaries in certain cases, where the beneficiaries are difficult or impossible to get at and where the trustee acts as a conduit-pipe for the conveyance of the income to the beneficiaries. It does not affect the charging Ss. 3 and 10 of the Act under which the trustees as an association of individuals, carrying on a business, are liable to be assessed in respect of the gains of the business carried on by them. In fact it is clear that this is the only way that the profits and gains of the business carried on by the trustees can be taxed. S. 40 is not therefore applicable to trustees who are liable under the general provisions of the Act to be assessed. 1930 L. 929. Even apart from S. 40, there may be other cases in which the trustees in receipt of trust income may be chargeable with tax on such income. By Act IV of 1913, for settling certain properties belonging to Sir Currimbhoy Ebrahim, Baronet, appellants were incorporated as trustees for executing the trusts. By S. 6 the corporation was to pay out of the income from the properties all rates and taxes and sundry other outgoings. By S. 7 the corporation was required to form two funds, called the Sinking Fund and the Repair Fund, and to carry annually thereto respectively, out of the income of the properties, certain sums calculated on percentages of capital sums there specified. By S. 8, the residue of the income was to be paid to the Baronet for the term being, if of full age, for his own absolute use and benefit. Held, that, so far as concerns the money which the appellants employ in maintaining the Sinking Fund and the Repair Fund and in defraying outgoings, they are not exempt from liability to pay tax. [William v. Singer, (1921) 1 A. C. 65, Reif.] Held, also, that even with reference to the balance of the trust income paid over to the Baronet, it was 'receivable' or 'owned' by the trustees and so rightly assessed. 61 I. Sec. 41: APPLICABILITY.—"MANAGER APPOINTED BY COURT"—K instituted a suit against R for a declaration that he was entitled jointly with R to certain properties and also for partition. A consent decree was passed, the terms of settlement providing that both K and R were each entitled to equal shares in the properties. A partition of the properties was ordered to be effected and Commissioners who were appointed for that purpose were directed to take accounts of the joint estate and divide the properties equally between both of them. Official Receiver was appointed receiver of the properties and was invested with the power of dividing the income of the properties equally between K and R. The Official Receiver was however subsequently discharged by a consent order which jointly gave liberty to both K and R to realize the rent of properties on joint receipts and to meet the necessary expenses. The documents of title were kept in joint custody and both were given liberty to invest money which would come to their hands and divide the same equally. Both K and R while in possession under the above arrangement divided the receipts between themselves in equal shares. The Income-tax Officer assessed K in respect of his share in the property presumably including half annual value of the property in the assessable income of K under the head "property". K objected to the assessment invoking the provisions of S. 41. Held, that S 41 did not apply because in the circumstances K and R were never appointed managers or receivers of the property by or under any order of the Court within the meaning of S 41 and the Income-tax Officer did not therefore act illegally in assessing K in respect of his share in the property. 1939 I T R 394=1 L R (1939) 2 Cal. 300=40 C W N 1009=1939 P C. 163=(1939) 2 M L J. 893 (P C).
